

Chapter 102-2

"Liang Shi." Xu Qingzhu's voice carried a hint of huskiness. Liang Shi swallowed and responded gently, "Hm?"

Xu Qingzhu bit her lip. Looking at her somewhat innocent expression, she shook her head helplessly and sighed softly, "Never mind."

Liang Shi didn't know what she had done wrong or what had upset Xu Qingzhu. She immediately asked, "What's wrong? Don't be ang—"

Before she could finish saying "angry," she decided not to say it at all.

Liang Shi no longer knew what to say. Her mind was completely blank right now. Who knew what she had done?

Xu Qingzhu's upper body leaned forward and kissed her.

Those glistening lips instantly colored Liang Shi's lips.

Liang Shi was dazed for two seconds, then closed her eyes and simply accepted a kiss that couldn't be described in this story.

Yet similarly, when Xu Qingzhu tried to part her teeth, she kept them tightly closed.

Just like last time at the beach, Liang Shi gently shook her head, signaling her not to go further.

How could someone have desires early in the morning?

Paper characters on Jinjiang wouldn't have desires.¹

With Xu Qingzhu's heat period approaching, she was naturally finding it harder to endure. The kisses above the neck took on a different meaning.

In the gap when this kiss separated, Xu Qingzhu looked at Liang Shi with pressed lips. The room was already filled with the intoxicating scent of strawberry Baileys, enough to make one tipsy. Liang Shi swallowed and asked Xu Qingzhu, "Is your heat period coming soon?"

Xu Qingzhu's lips were a vivid red. She closed her eyes briefly, teardrops hanging on her eyelashes, her cool voice carrying a tender tone, "Fifteen more days."

In the blink of an eye, Liang Shi had been here for almost three months, which meant she had fifteen days left for her mission. If she couldn't get one hundred luck points within these fifteen days, she wouldn't be able to get her own body back.

Actually, the reason she didn't really want to have physical contact with Xu Qingzhu was because this body wasn't hers. Moreover, the original owner had used this body to be intimate with many people—she had an addiction, but Liang Shi didn't.

Liang Shi had a slight emotional cleanliness complex and couldn't really accept such things.

She could understand the original owner and respected her choices, but she wouldn't do the same. She also didn't want to use this body that had almost forced itself on Xu Qingzhu to have intimate physical contact with her.

So even if she wanted to do more intimate things, Liang Shi wanted to wait until her own body came to this world and she could return this current body to the original owner—then she would do it.

If possible, she was unwilling to do it.

Just as she had said, she couldn't take responsibility for this right now.

Because to this world, she was an uncontrollable factor. To Xu Qingzhu, she was someone who would definitely have to leave.

She currently couldn't control her own fate, let alone a relationship.

But things always seemed to move toward places beyond her control.

If feelings could be controlled, they wouldn't be called feelings.

Liang Shi looked at Xu Qingzhu. The corners of her eyes had turned red, and she was feeling a bit uncomfortable.

In the ABO world setting, an Omega's body needed intimacy more than an Alpha's. So it was often the Omega's heat period that was harder to endure. Although an Alpha's susceptible period was painful, it wasn't like an Omega's—where without suppressants or bonding with an Omega, they could die.

So as an Omega's heat period approached, they would always carry suppressants with them. Otherwise, if the heat period suddenly arrived, or if they encountered an Alpha's pheromones that were overwhelming enough and had over ninety percent compatibility with the Omega's pheromones, it could easily trigger the Omega's heat.

Liang Shi reminded her, "Then remember to keep suppressants in your bag. When it's close to your heat period, don't go near any Alphas, okay?"

Xu Qingzhu glanced at her. In that glance, emotions rippled like water—seeming both reproachful and annoyed. Her voice was slightly hoarse. "I know."

It was obvious she wasn't feeling well right now.

Liang Shi stroked her back, as if coaxing a child, hoping to make her feel a bit better.

Xu Qingzhu's pheromones were making Liang Shi a bit uncomfortable too, but it wasn't a major issue.

In the dim room, Xu Qingzhu made a movement that couldn't be described with any aesthetic sense, nor could it be detailed.

Liang Shi just let her bite, unable to do anything else. It was just a simple transitional moment. The red at the corners of Xu Qingzhu's eyes spread, like the orange sunset glow of evening.

.....

The corner of Liang Shi's mouth was bitten and broken.

Xu Qingzhu tasted the blood, and her rationality returned slightly. She moved back a bit, but her breathing couldn't calm down. If this continued, she might not be able to breathe at all.

Two buttons on Liang Shi's nightgown had also come undone. It was already a low-cut silk nightgown that slipped off easily.

At this point, it could basically be treated as a deep V-neck slit gown on the red carpet, like the Milky Way scattered across the sky.

Xu Qingzhu lay flat on the bed, trying to calm her desires and overcome this damned desire that came before an Omega's heat period.

But the moment she closed her eyes, Liang Shi's husky voice sounded by her ear—gentle and soft, yet like a fire wanting to consume what little rationality she had left.

Xu Qingzhu was dazed for a moment, then smiled. She didn't dare to say anything more.

Liang Shi was by her ear, asking somewhat awkwardly, unable to get the words out.

Xu Qingzhu buried her head in the pillow, turned to the side, her voice so quiet it was almost inaudible.

Liang Shi nodded. "Okay."

.....

Liang Shi stood frozen there, not knowing what to do.

Then Xu Qingzhu said, "Teacher Liang, I want to hear you sing."

This time it was a command, not a question.

-
1. "Paper characters on Jinjiang" (晉江的紙片人): Jinjiang Literature City (晉江文学城) is one of China's largest online fiction platforms, particularly popular for romance novels. "Paper characters" (紙片人) is a self-aware meta joke referring to fictional characters in novels. The author is breaking the fourth wall here, humorously suggesting that characters in online novels shouldn't have explicit desires—a nod to censorship guidelines on Chinese web novel platforms. ↩