

Chapter 117-3

Liang Shi's entire face turned bright red.

In her first twenty-five years, she had never experienced such a scene.

She instinctively raised her hand to rub her earlobe, and when she touched it, it was burning hot.

Her whole person was like a thoroughly ripened tomato.

After a long while, Liang Shi felt like she was about to suffocate before she finally exhaled her first breath, but her throat felt dry and she didn't know what to say.

Her mind was also completely blank.

Only after Xu Qingzhu had laughed enough did she say: "Teacher Liang, so you've never been in a relationship before?"

Liang Shi: "....."

What was so funny about this?

"Have you?" Liang Shi asked woodenly in return.

Only after asking did she pause.

What did a relationship matter—she was already married.

Liang Shi opened and closed her mouth, wanting to make up for what she had just said, but didn't know how to say it.

At this moment, it felt like she had lost all the face she'd accumulated over her first twenty-five years.

Liang Shi's light brown pupils glanced lightly toward Xu Qingzhu, her gaze as complicated as her mood.

Xu Qingzhu looked at her, restraining her laughter. Her cool voice still carried the hoarseness from just having let loose. "I've watched other people date."

"From Sally and Lin Luoxi's relationship to their reconciliation, I was on the side eating dog food¹ the whole time." Xu Qingzhu didn't hide it from her. "When I asked Xixi today how to deal with green tea girls², I learned a little from her."

Liang Shi: "....."

No wonder she felt Xu Qingzhu's words earlier were inexplicably familiar—they had the same effect as Liang Xinran's tactics.

Same medicine, different packaging³.

And she hadn't caught on.

When facing Liang Xinran, Liang Shi was unreasonably calm.

But facing Xu Qingzhu, she had no way to handle it at all.

When Xu Qingzhu was quiet and reserved, she was pure, quiet, and aloof, like a lotus on a snow-capped mountain. If you wanted to get close to her, you would inevitably have to experience polar cold.

But when she smiled, those eyes were like a little fox running wild through the mountains.

Liang Shi loved watching her feel free and unrestrained.

But this smile was built on all of her complex emotions, and Liang Shi felt very stifled inside, so stifled she didn't know what to say.

Her heart felt very blocked.

Liang Shi looked at her expressionlessly and ultimately said nothing, lying down on the other side of the bed.

The place that belonged to her, pulling the pillow away.

On this not-so-large bed, she had carved out a space for herself.

And she pulled away from Xu Qingzhu.

She covered herself with the blanket, turned off the light on her side, closed her eyes and said in a low voice: "Going to sleep."

Two very indifferent words.

She didn't lose her temper with Xu Qingzhu either, but from her indifferent tone, one could tell—she was angry.

Xu Qingzhu looked at her back, pressed her lips together to reflect for a few seconds, and asked cautiously: "Are you angry?"

Liang Shi: "No."

Her voice was very cold, though her tone was still gentle, just that her manner was very stiff.

A world of difference from when she had been holding Xu Qingzhu and coaxing her just moments ago.

"Then you're being fierce with me?" Xu Qingzhu said again.

Liang Shi: ".....Mm."

The sound of this "mm" wasn't loud, but anyone could hear her displeasure.

And she frankly admitted she was being fierce.

Xu Qingzhu was stunned for two seconds, but then was amused by her.

The room fell into a strange silence.

A moment later, Xu Qingzhu got up holding her pillow and went out the door.

The door was gently closed.

Liang Shi: "?"

Footnotes:

¹ Eating dog food (吃狗粮): Chinese internet slang meaning to witness other people's public displays of affection, making single people feel like they're being "fed dog food." It's a humorous way of saying you're watching a couple be sweet together.

² Green tea girl (绿茶): Chinese slang for a woman who appears innocent and pure on the surface but is actually manipulative, often used to describe someone who pretends to be naive while scheming. The term comes from the perceived "fresh and pure" image of green tea.

³ Same medicine, different packaging (换汤不换药): A Chinese idiom literally meaning "change the soup but not the medicine," referring to superficial changes that don't alter the essence of something.
