

Chapter 148-2

//

Among the group of five, only Liang Shi and Gu Yixue had cars.

Qi Tang and Tang Zui were a bit intimidated by Gu Yixue, so they chose to ride in Liang Shi's car.

As for Sun Chengcheng, she found Liang Shi's face annoying just looking at it, so she naturally chose to ride with Gu Yixue.

In the car, Gu Yixue asked Sun Chengcheng: "Do you have a grudge against Liang Shi?"

"No." Sun Chengcheng said. "We didn't even know each other before."

"Eyes can't lie." Gu Yixue said while turning the steering wheel to make a turn. "Also, why did you two delete each other before?"

"Don't you think her personality is too annoying?" Sun Chengcheng frowned and asked back. "She said she was married and told me not to like her—narcissistic to the extreme! Isn't it normal that I don't like her? Liking her would be abnormal!"

Gu Yixue recalled the details of her interactions with Liang Shi. After a moment, she said: "Whatever's going on between you two in private, don't bring those emotions in front of the camera."

"Got it, Director." Sun Chengcheng was still fairly obedient in front of Gu Yixue.

The place where Gu Yixue was treating everyone to dinner was a Cantonese restaurant. The place wasn't big, but there were a lot of people.

It wasn't even dinner time yet, and the first floor was already more than half full.

The waiter led them to a private room on the second floor. After entering, Gu Yixue first lit a cigarette, then handed the menu to Liang Shi and the others. Liang Shi passed it to the two younger girls.

The two girls were nervous and a bit intimidated even when ordering, but they still braced themselves and ordered a few dishes.

In the end, it was Sun Chengcheng who did most of the ordering.

It was also while ordering that Liang Shi remembered—Sun Chengcheng was from the South, so Cantonese cuisine was her hometown food.

Gu Yixue smoked by the window, her back to them. After finishing, she waved her hand to disperse the smoke smell before returning to her seat.

Her throat was a bit dry after just smoking, and she asked in a slightly hoarse voice: "Done ordering?"

"Mm." Sun Chengcheng answered. "Take a look and see if there's anything you want to add."

Gu Yixue glanced at the menu and added a few more dishes.

After the waiter left, Gu Yixue started to liven up the atmosphere.

Having assembled many crews before, Gu Yixue naturally had her ways. She first picked the two younger girls to ask: "Have you two written your thesis proposal reports?"

These two girls were still students.

Qi Tang and Tang Zui answered in unison: "Yes."

"This filming will take a month." Gu Yixue said. "Don't let it delay your studies."

"It's fine..." Qi Tang was halfway through when Gu Yixue chuckled lightly: "Of course, don't let your studies delay my production either."

Qi Tang and Tang Zui immediately relaxed.

Mainly because when Gu Yixue smiled, she looked very languid, like a girl next door. Their fear instantly dissipated.

Qi Tang and Tang Zui were naturally quite lively, and they started chatting from there. The private room became much more animated than before.

Only Liang Shi and Sun Chengcheng had zero interaction throughout.

After the food arrived, everyone chatted while eating.

Gu Yixue only ate a few bites before putting down her chopsticks, sitting there poking at her phone.

Liang Shi asked why she wasn't eating.

Gu Yixue shrugged: "I always eat very little for dinner."

But there was quite a lot of alcohol in front of her.

There was also alcohol poured in front of Liang Shi, but she focused on eating first and didn't drink.

Gu Yixue didn't flush much when drinking; she looked the same as usual.

Halfway through the meal, Gu Yixue took her cigarettes and phone and left the private room, saying she was going to the restroom and getting some fresh air.

After Gu Yixue left, the two young girls came to chat with Liang Shi, asking which school she graduated from, whether she had a girlfriend—all teasing questions without really expecting definite answers.

Liang Shi replied fairly politely.

Then Sun Chengcheng asked: "Have you acted before?"

Liang Shi paused. The "I have" that was about to come out of her mouth instantly changed to: "What's it to you?"

Sun Chengcheng: "?"

Sun Chengcheng couldn't believe it and said, puzzled: "Liang Shi, do I have some grudge against you? Why are you targeting me?"

"No." Liang Shi also stood up. "I just find you annoying."

Sun Chengcheng: "?"

"Why?" Sun Chengcheng asked.

Liang Shi stared at her with a frown. After a moment, she answered: "I don't like people with the character 'cheng'¹ in their names."

Sun Chengcheng: "?"

Just as Sun Chengcheng was suspecting this person was the Liang Shi from the original world, Liang Shi said with a tone of disgust: "Oranges are such an unpleasant fruit to eat. By extension, I also don't like people with 'cheng' in their names. How unfortunate."

Sun Chengcheng: "....."

Liang Shi's tone and demeanor were purely that of a nitpicking snob.

The two girls in the private room were both stunned hearing this. The glance they exchanged contained too many things, but the most obvious was shock—there's such an excuse?

Sun Chengcheng muttered under her breath: "As expected, no one named Liang Shi is likeable."

Liang Shi had been paying attention to her the whole time, so of course she heard. But when she looked at Sun Chengcheng, her gaze was still condescending, as if even looking at her was a favor. She said airily: "Sun... Cheng..."

After haltingly saying two characters, Liang Shi clicked her tongue: "Forget it. I can't remember what your name is. Whatever."

Sun Chengcheng: "?"

Liang Shi didn't say anything more to her. She said goodbye to the two younger girls, saying she was going to the restroom, and left the private room.

Sun Chengcheng watched her retreating figure, practically fuming with rage.

What... what the hell was that!

Everyone named Liang Shi was no good—they all came to oppose her!

Outrageous!

Just as Sun Chengcheng was still fuming, Qi Tang suddenly said: "Sister Liang Shi is so pretty. She's probably a rich second generation."²

Tang Zui let out an "ah": "Why do you think so?"

"Her car costs nearly a million." Qi Tang said. "She hasn't really acted much either. She only played two small roles in Zhao Ying's productions—one with only two scenes, and the other stopped halfway through filming with no signs of resuming even now. She definitely didn't earn that from acting, so the only option left is that she's a rich second generation."

"What if she's first-generation rich?"³ Tang Zui speculated.

Qi Tang: "....."

"Get real. How old is she?" Qi Tang said. "She's only been out of school for two or three years. How could she possibly be that wealthy?"

Tang Zui realized: "That's true."

Hearing this, Sun Chengcheng gripped the glass in her hand tightly.

Rich second generation...

How could Liang Shi be living better than her?

That couldn't be allowed.

No matter which Liang Shi it was, that couldn't be allowed.

Footnotes:

¹ "Cheng" (橙): The character in Sun Chengcheng's name means "orange" (the fruit). Liang Shi is making an absurd excuse to dislike her by claiming she hates oranges and therefore anyone with that character in their name.

² Rich second generation (富二代, fù èr dài): A Chinese term referring to children of wealthy families who inherit their parents' wealth rather than earning it themselves. It's similar to the English term "trust fund baby" or "silver spoon."

³ First-generation rich (富一代): Someone who built their own wealth from scratch, as opposed to inheriting it—a self-made wealthy person.
