

Chapter 159-4

Lu Jiayi tapped her forehead: "I'm sorry. I shouldn't have had such a dream that offends you. Psychology says dreams are a person's subconscious, but I really have no intention of destroying your family. Absolutely none. I also know that you and your wife are in love with each other, so I would never have thoughts of interfering. Admittedly, you're very outstanding, very suitable as my business partner, and you also match my requirements for a significant other. But I've never had any inappropriate thoughts about you."

She rapidly said a long string of words, sincerely explaining this matter to Xu Qingzhu.

After listening, Xu Qingzhu had no reaction and just nodded woodenly: "I know."

Two people having the same dream—it was as if something in the universe was guiding them to do this.

And Liang Shi had said—the person you should be with isn't me.

So, was the person she should be with Lu Jiayi?

If Liang Shi hadn't become a different person back then, she and Liang Shi would probably be divorced by now.

If she had returned to being single and met Lu Jiayi, she probably would have become Lu Jiayi's ideal marriage partner.

Someone like Lu Jiayi wouldn't mind that her partner had been married before.

Because Lu Jiayi was someone with a strong competitive drive. She prioritized her career over family and marriage, and had a strong sense of responsibility. Marrying someone like that actually matched Xu Qingzhu's previous expectations.

They were truly incomparably compatible in some aspects.

They both liked obscure books, liked the same poet, and even when working on proposals, whenever one made a point, the other could perfectly supplement it.

So collaborating with Lu Jiayi was a very comfortable thing—so comfortable it was like finding another version of herself.

Living a lifetime with such a person would be very comfortable.

No need to doubt the other person like this, no need to compromise for the other person's feelings, no need to argue with each other.

Because both Lu Jiayi and she valued efficiency. When they had a disagreement about something before, Lu Jiayi sat down with her to discuss it rationally, even listing out three options A, B, and C to resolve it. And she did the same.

With such efficiency, who would argue?

As for cold wars, they simply wouldn't exist.

Work was already busy enough every day—how could there be cold wars?

Not talking when the two of them were together was normal, because they could solve problems effectively.

If there was no Liang Shi... she wouldn't reject someone like Lu Jiayi from entering her life.

But... she had fallen in love with Liang Shi.

She wanted to cling to her older sister.

She wanted to hear Liang Shi call her a "spoiled little princess," wanted to kiss her lips.

Xu Qingzhu sat there in a daze for a long time, until Lu Jiayi's voice pulled her back to reality. "Why are you suddenly asking about this?"

Xu Qingzhu lowered her gaze and smiled bitterly. "Just asking casually."

Lu Jiayi: "Oh..."

After that, Lu Jiayi left. Xu Qingzhu sat there thinking about the logic of all this. Halfway through her thoughts, she actually yawned—something that had never happened before.

Then she realized it was the little one who needed rest.

So she lay in bed and slept.

But halfway through her sleep, she was suddenly startled awake by the sound of wind outside. The biting winter wind was blowing wildly.

Frightened, she opened her phone and subconsciously called Liang Shi.

Soon, the call was answered. Xu Qingzhu said in a choked voice: "Liang Shi, I miss you so much."

There was a pause on the other end. Liang Shi's hoarse voice also carried a hint of tears as she answered: "Baby."

That one word made Xu Qingzhu's tears fall like rain.

Liang Shi said: "Why are you crying again?"

Xu Qingzhu scolded her: "You bad person."

Liang Shi said helplessly: "Don't cry."

Later, Xu Qingzhu thought she had been dreaming again. But when she woke up the next day and checked her phone's call history, she found there was a call record at four in the morning.

It had lasted three minutes.

Xu Qingzhu put away her phone, washed her face in the bathroom, and checked out of the hospital.
