

Chapter 164-6

Looking at the slow-witted Zhao Xuning, Liang Shi sighed and remarked: "God is fair. When he opens a door for you, he closes a window."

Zhao Xuning: "....."

Zhao Xuning threw a pillow at her. "Do you have any idea why you've been staying at my place these past days? What are you saying as someone who's about to get divorced?"

Liang Shi: ".....A piece of news."

Zhao Xuning: "Hm? You're not divorcing anymore?"

Liang Shi nodded: "That's right. But how did you know? Oh right, did you know all along that the company was acquired by Xu Qingzhu?"

Zhao Xuning: "I only knew one day before you."

Liang Shi: "....."

"Also..." Liang Shi paused. "Zhuzi is pregnant."

This news actually shocked Zhao Xuning. "Pregnant?"

"Yes." Liang Shi said, "It's been a while now. I didn't even know."

Zhao Xuning, afraid of being wrongly blamed again, immediately clarified: "I didn't know about this either."

The two suddenly paused at this point. After a while, the topic circled back.

Liang Shi stared at Zhao Xuning and said earnestly: "You geniuses are just too arrogant. Try seeing yourself as an ordinary person sometimes. Communicate properly."

Zhao Xuning: ".....Get to the point."

"How many years would you get for talking nicely where you're from?"¹ Liang Shi retorted.

Zhao Xuning was stunned: "What does that mean?"

Liang Shi: "....."

Forget it. Why did she expect this lofty flower² to understand internet slang?

But she couldn't let the "landlord" who had taken her in for so many days stay so troubled. Liang Shi could only speak from her own shallow experience: "If you two love each other, then go tell her. Apologize properly. If you can reconcile, reconcile. If you can get back together, get back together. If you can't... then just wish her happiness."

Hearing this, Zhao Xuning closed her eyes. Her body leaning against the sofa looked exhausted. She pinched the bridge of her nose and said: "Yes, I really do want to wish her happiness. But... I keep thinking about her. I keep feeling like she has some wounds that I need to heal."

Like those wounds that belonged to the two of them.

She needed Shen Hui.

When Zhao Xuning heard the news of Shen Hui's upcoming engagement last night, her whole being went numb. She sat by the bed all night without sleeping.

She didn't smoke, but last night she smoked a few cigarettes, drank some alcohol, and even took melatonin—yet still couldn't sleep.

The moment she closed her eyes, all she saw was Shen Hui calling out to her.

This morning, she filed an annual leave request directly with the hospital and holed up at home wasting time.

If she could drag the progress bar of life, Zhao Xuning would have wanted to drag it straight to the end.

Just let her die already.

Life really seemed to have no solution.

The feeling of doing something wrong was like standing at a fork in the road—once you chose wrong, there was no turning back.

Zhao Xuning didn't know how to describe this feeling to Liang Shi. She just said wearily: "I'll try."

Liang Shi invited her out to eat. She originally wanted to say no, but upon hearing that Xu Qingzhu was also downstairs, she went back to her room to change clothes and headed out.

Someone who usually wore a white coat to work was now wearing a white coat as outerwear too.

Zhao Xuning wore glasses, and with this outfit, she looked exactly like a refined scoundrel³.

Liang Shi stood at the doorway and clicked her tongue: "You totally have the face of a player."

Zhao Xuning: "....."

After going downstairs, Zhao Xuning greeted Xu Qingzhu, then became invisible.

She wasn't just here to eat—she was also out to clear her mind.

If she could find even a sliver of an exit from her current predicament, that would be even better.

But when she asked Xu Qingzhu during the meal, Xu Qingzhu could only answer after thinking for a few seconds: "Have a serious, patient conversation."

Xu Qingzhu had stronger logical abilities than Liang Shi. After dating Liang Shi, she had also become self-taught in the subject of romance, so when speaking to Zhao Xuning, she was clear and systematic.

Zhao Xuning seemed to understand, yet also kind of didn't.

But she did drink quite a lot of alcohol.

After several rounds of drinks, Zhao Xuning's phone rang. It was a college classmate inviting her to a gathering.

She originally didn't want to go, but upon hearing that the person who was about to get engaged to Shen Hui would be there, Zhao Xuning called a car and left.

Liang Shi and Xu Qingzhu stood in place, watching the car drive away.

After a long while, Liang Shi shook her head to herself: "Why does it feel like Zhao Xuning is kind of pitiful?"

Xu Qingzhu was startled: "Who isn't pitiful?"

Liang Shi looked at her.

Xu Qingzhu said quietly: "Sister Hui is pitiful too."

Liang Shi nodded.

Xu Qingzhu added: "I'm pitiful too."

Liang Shi: "?"

Liang Shi was about to say how are you pitiful, but then she thought of everything Xu Qingzhu had said during the day and found herself at a loss for words.

Xu Qingzhu continued: "You're pitiful too."

Liang Shi immediately denied it: "I'm not pitiful. I have such a cute wife. I'm doing great."

Xu Qingzhu: "?"

Xu Qingzhu chuckled softly, resting her chin on her hand as she sat there, her eyes sparkling as she gazed at Liang Shi. "Everyone who falls into love is pitiful."

"Then why fall into it?" Liang Shi asked.

Xu Qingzhu lightly pressed her lips together, her voice very soft: "How would I know~ Anyway, I've fallen for you."

¹ "How many years would you get for talking nicely where you're from?": This is a Chinese internet meme/joke that implies someone is so bad at communicating nicely that it must be illegal where they come from. It's a humorous way of criticizing someone's poor communication skills.

² Lofty flower (高嶺之花): A Japanese-origin term (takane no hana) commonly used in Chinese, referring to someone who seems unreachable or unapproachable, like a flower growing on a high peak—beautiful but distant and hard to get.

³ Refined scoundrel (斯文敗類): A Chinese expression describing someone who looks cultured and genteel on the outside but is actually morally corrupt or mischievous inside. It's often used in a teasing or flirtatious context to describe someone who looks intellectual but has a "bad boy/girl" appeal.
