

Chapter 177-9

Shen Fenghe believed that people should put more energy into work—romantic entanglements affected judgment too much.

But seeing Gu Yixue crying in her dreams, she always felt her heart being tugged at a little.

When she was young, aside from Shen Hui, she probably took care of this little neighbor girl the most.

But for some reason, this little sister became increasingly rebellious later on, always carrying a roguish air about her.

If she had to use one word to accurately describe Gu Yixue, Shen Fenghe felt it would be: untamed.

Only Gu Yixue had this kind of energy.

The things Gu Yixue thought Shen Fenghe didn't know about—Shen Fenghe had actually seen many times.

Shen Fenghe raised her hand to wipe the tears from the corners of Gu Yixue's eyes, then turned off her phone.

She picked up the phone from Gu Yixue's lap and set it aside, only to see a text message from the platform: 【Quella, if you don't know when to advance and retreat like this, you'll offend people! The domestic market isn't like overseas—it's not somewhere you can dominate single-handedly.】

Shen Fenghe frowned slightly after seeing it, casually swiped down and replied: 【Get lost.】

Then she turned off the phone and tossed it aside.

She stood there looking at Gu Yixue for quite a while before finally reaching out to pick her up and place her on the bed.

Shen Fenghe sighed helplessly, her voice very low: "Still the same as when you were little."

Gu Yixue sniffled and nuzzled closer to her. Shen Fenghe covered her with the blanket and patted her back, saying softly: "Stubborn."

Sure enough, Gu Yixue had a falling out with the platform over the casting issue.

The person who had come to liaise with Gu Yixue was someone with some clout at the platform. After receiving that text message from Gu Yixue, he was so angry he couldn't sleep all night.

The next day, he went to the office and complained, saying he wanted to replace Gu Yixue no matter what.

Someone like Gu Yixue was just using her bit of fame to do as she pleased.

She couldn't possibly make a good production.

Gu Yixue was fine though. After waking up from her nap, she found her phone was off. When she turned it back on, she discovered someone had used her phone to send the word "get lost."

She grinned foolishly at that "get lost" for five minutes. If it weren't for the concern that too much smiling would cause crow's feet, she would definitely have laughed longer.

It was obvious that Shen Fenghe had used her phone to send it.

Gu Yixue was in a great mood and even sent Shen Fenghe a message: 【Good morning, wife.】

Shen Fenghe: 【...】

When she arrived at the platform's office, she heard that the investor for "Sharp Edge" had been changed.

The liaison who had come to complain stared at Gu Yixue with a dumbfounded expression.

Gu Yixue looked at him disdainfully. "Which company is it now?"

Someone else answered: "Jiahe."

It was under the Shen family.

Gu Yixue's lips curved slightly: "Oh~"

"So now I get to decide the casting, right?" Gu Yixue said.

The other party: "...Yes."

The platform was completely subdued by this turn of events and had no temper left. Everyone privately discussed just what Gu Yixue's background was—how could she just change investors like that?

To compensate Guo Xinran, the platform gave her another S+ drama, but this was met with dissatisfaction from Guo Xinran.

Guo Xinran just wanted to act in "Sharp Edge."

She had also recognized the commercial value of "Sharp Edge."

It was just that the Liang family was currently in chaos.

This opportunity to collaborate with the platform on an S+ production was something she had seized amid the chaos. If Liang Xinzhou found out, there would definitely be another commotion.

But there weren't many opportunities left for Guo Xinran.

Guo Xinran could only continue making a fuss with the platform, but her fussing annoyed them so much that they directly gave her the cold shoulder.

On the day "Sharp Edge" was officially announced, Guo Xinran saw that the actress playing Qiao Wenyu was—Liang Shi.

Guo Xinran sulked in her room for an entire day. When evening came, she called Zhang Yangning, her voice cold and carrying a sense of burning-the-boats¹ determination: "Do it."

Zhang Yangning was somewhat hesitant on the other end: "Now?"

Guo Xinran nodded: "Yes."

"Didn't you say to wait until the old lady in your family died?" Zhang Yangning said. "Did she die?"

"Not yet." Guo Xinran said. "Once she dies, I'll lose my backing. She needs to stay alive. I'll help her get revenge and make her happy."

Zhang Yangning scoffed: "That doesn't sound like you."

"What? Gone soft?" Zhang Yangning asked.

Guo Xinran's tone was impatient: "Just do what I tell you to do. Why so many questions?"

"Just asking." Zhang Yangning paused for a moment, then continued: "But she's just a fake. Why do you keep targeting her? When Sun Chengcheng messed with her before, Liang Xinzhou already suspected you. Now if we actually do it..."

"The old lady is seriously ill. He won't dare do anything to me." Guo Xinran said. "If Liang Xinzhou touches me now, he'd be pushing my mother to death. That fake is nothing, but she's been in the Liang family for so many years. Everyone knows she was the most favored one. And the result? She wants to snatch everything."

Guo Xinran scoffed: "I just can't stand people taking what's mine."

Zhang Yangning: "...Fine then. I just like this attitude of yours."

"Do it." Guo Xinran reiterated.

Zhang Yangning agreed.

Liang Shi went to bed the night before with everything calm and peaceful. The next day when she woke up, she found the trending searches had exploded.

Several trending topics in a row, all about Liang Shi.

To be precise, about the original host.

Photos from nightclubs, as well as GIFs of the original host partying with others on luxury yachts and drinking and dancing at clubs.

The most reassuring thing was that no bedroom photos had leaked.
