

Chapter 187 - Part 1

Extra 9-1

Shen Hui first saw Zhao Xuning in the school cafeteria.

The medical university had three cafeterias in total, and Shen Hui liked the one closest to their dormitory the most.

One day she went to the cafeteria alone to eat and forgot to bring her meal card.

Because she went too early, there weren't many people in the cafeteria yet. She looked around and noticed Zhao Xuning sitting quietly in a corner eating.

At that time, she was wearing a white shirt, her eyes downcast, her whole body radiating a cold and distant aura. Everything about her conveyed one message—don't come talk to me.

Actually, there were quite a few beautiful people at their school, but not many who were beautiful enough to be remembered at first sight.

And Zhao Xuning's appearance was beautiful to the point of being stunning at first glance.

Perhaps her looks weren't the most outstanding, but her temperament definitely was.

Only her area in the entire cafeteria maintained absolute silence.

Even though her phone was right beside her utensils, she would never look at her phone while eating—it was always face down.

Shen Hui stared at her for a while, suddenly remembering something her roommate had mentioned before.

They said there was a girl in their major who was young, beautiful, and quite arrogant. When a senior came to find her, she immediately said: "Sorry, I don't like men."

Later, that guy awkwardly said: "Little sister, I'm an Omega."

Zhao Xuning was silent for two seconds, "Sorry, I don't like people older than me."

The guy said: "Ah? Then why don't you just directly say you don't like me."

Zhao Xuning: "Mm, I don't like you."

The guy: "...?"

Zhao Xuning's bluntness reached a terrifying level.

Shen Hui's gaze was too direct and easily noticed. Zhao Xuning quickly looked up and made eye contact with her.

Across the distance, Shen Hui could see the range of her eye movement and that appraising gaze.

Shen Hui was quite confident and smiled at her.

As a result, Zhao Xuning had no reaction at all and lowered her head to continue eating.

This instead aroused Shen Hui's desire to conquer. She tugged at the hem of her clothes, planning to go borrow a meal card from Zhao Xuning. But just as she walked over, Zhao Xuning had already picked up her tray and stood up.

Just as they were about to pass each other, Shen Hui deliberately softened her voice and asked in a low tone: "Hello, could you lend me your meal card? I'll transfer the money to you on my phone."

Zhao Xuning didn't even stop walking, heading straight for the dish return area. Her voice was cold: "There's no money left on my card."

Shen Hui: "?"

So Shen Hui watched her figure disappear.

Just like that, Shen Hui didn't eat lunch that day.

She simply felt ignored and quite embarrassed. Miss Shen, who had been beautiful all her life, couldn't accept this kind of humiliation.

When she returned to the dorm, her roommates were still discussing this legendary figure from their department.

One roommate said she saw someone confess to Zhao Xuning on the way back from picking up a package, but Zhao Xuning frowned and said: "You're not my type."

As the department's new rising candidate most likely to become the department flower¹, Zhao Xuning had broken the hearts of countless Omegas and Betas.

Shen Hui scoffed, "Is she really that good-looking? She's not even as good-looking as me."

Everyone: "..."

But they didn't say anything.

Because Shen Hui's appearance was something everyone could see—she was indeed beautiful.

Beautiful to a degree not much inferior to Zhao Xuning.

Just that Shen Hui's appearance leaned toward glamorous beauty. If she stood there without speaking or smiling, it would make people feel particularly distanced, like someone who walked out of a TV screen or painting.

Whereas Zhao Xuning was cold in personality. Clearly she had a very approachable beautiful face, but because of her expression, everyone didn't dare get too close to her.

Each had their own kind of aloofness.

Shen Hui drank some water and didn't think much more about it.

After all, she was just a stranger, so not lending her the meal card was reasonable.

Zhao Xuning probably regarded her as just another one of many people trying to strike up a conversation.

For Shen Hui, this was the first thing Shen Hui said to Zhao Xuning.

Later, after they got together, Shen Hui loved to ask her, "Do you remember when you first saw me?"

Zhao Xuning made a thoughtful expression, then after a moment answered: "During military training, when the instructor pulled you out to sing."

Shen Hui asked again: "Then what about the first thing we said to each other?"

Zhao Xuning: "...Add me on WeChat?"

That was already from that encounter at the sports field.

It was on a certain day afterward. Shen Hui was running on the sports field, while Zhao Xuning was smoking at the edge of the field, standing casually and carelessly, wearing a brown trench coat.

On Shen Hui's way to stretch, Zhao Xuning stubbed out her cigarette, put both hands in her pockets and blocked Shen Hui's path. Her voice mixed with the humidity after rain, carrying a moist quality, frivolous yet casual: "Add me on WeChat?"

Shen Hui raised an eyebrow and handed over her phone.

In Zhao Xuning's perception, this was the first thing they said to each other.

Later, when Shen Hui kept asking this question, Zhao Xuning wasn't stupid—she could always hear the implied meaning.

One day, taking advantage of Shen Hui drinking too much, Zhao Xuning got her drunk and only then coaxed and pestered her to ask. After three rounds of drinks, Shen Hui's mind was muddled and drowsy, so naturally everything spilled out like beans from a bamboo tube.

After finishing, she sat in Zhao Xuning's lap, holding Zhao Xuning's face in both hands, squishing it into a ball, and asked dissatisfied: "Why didn't you lend me your meal card then?"

Zhao Xuning didn't answer at first.

Later, after being squeezed by Shen Hui until her face was red, she told Shen Hui to let go, but Shen Hui wouldn't no matter what, even intensifying by leaning in to bite her face.

After the Nth time of having her face squeezed, Zhao Xuning helplessly grabbed her hands and kissed her face, "I also didn't know you'd become my girlfriend."

Shen Hui suddenly laughed like an idiot.

Shen Hui originally wasn't a particularly cheerful person.

If you asked her middle and high school classmates to evaluate her, they'd probably only come up with one word: glamorous.

Usually she didn't really chat with people much. When everyone joked around, she might just smile along, never participating in the jokes, but never disdaining them either.

Distant, yet close.

That kind of vague social distance.

But in front of Zhao Xuning, Shen Hui seemed to have unlimited energy.
