

Chapter 191 - Part 2

Extra 13-2

After a while, Gu Yixue felt her body become light—her whole person was suspended in mid-air.

From that time on, Shen Fenghe was already taller than her peers, with more mature thinking and greater strength, so she could easily lift the thin and frail Gu Yixue.

Shen Fenghe rolled up her pant legs, placed Gu Yixue on the edge of the flower bed, then asked in a low voice: "What did she throw away?"

Gu Yixue pressed her lips together: "A pen... pendant."

"What color?" Shen Fenghe asked again.

Gu Yixue: "Red..."

Shen Fenghe asked again: "How big?"

Gu Yixue gestured with her hand to show her, then Shen Fenghe rolled up her uniform sleeves.

Her arms were especially white. Back then, she wore her hair in a ponytail and wore no makeup.

But her figure from behind as she bent over searching for the pendant fell into young Gu Yixue's eyes like a deity.

—

Gu Yixue suddenly woke with a start.

When she woke, it was nearly dawn. Through the gap in the curtains, faint light could be seen. She checked the time—it wasn't even six o'clock yet.

But it was already sunrise time.

Perhaps because she'd had an unpleasant birthday, or perhaps because she'd been too exhausted lately.

Last night, Gu Yixue had dreamed of that incident again.

Later, it became a ball of light enveloping Shen Fenghe, then suddenly the scene changed and she actually heard Shen Fenghe say: "Let's get divorced."

And then she woke up startled, her back covered in cold sweat.

This dream was also quite absurd.

It was also the first time reality and dreams had intertwined together.

Gu Yixue felt her throat was a bit dry and wanted to smoke, but didn't want to show this in front of Shen Fenghe.

Though it was midsummer, she felt cold.

Shen Fenghe had very good sleeping posture—she wouldn't change positions throughout the night.

Last night after they finished, Gu Yixue didn't want to go shower, so she dawdled and acted cute wanting Shen Fenghe to carry her.

Then she nearly fell asleep in the bathtub.

Anyway, she dozed off in the bathtub, and when she woke up, Shen Fenghe was already using a bath towel to dry her body.

Gu Yixue often couldn't figure out what Shen Fenghe was thinking.

Always keeping her at arm's length.

Say she was good to her—not that good.

But say she wasn't good to her—she always touched Gu Yixue in those small details.

Those were moments Gu Yixue needed but that no one had ever paid attention to.

After a night had passed, Shen Fenghe still had her arm under Gu Yixue's neck. Just a slight pull would bring Gu Yixue into her embrace.

Gu Yixue, taking advantage of the fact she wasn't awake yet, quietly rolled over, her head settling into the hollow of her shoulder.

Shen Fenghe also slept lightly. With this movement, she woke up too.

But she only squinted once, then closed her eyes again. Her arm drew back, pulling Gu Yixue into her embrace. Her dry lips lightly touched Gu Yixue's forehead, and her breathing became steady again.

Seemed to have fallen back asleep.

Yes, it was this dragonfly-kiss on the forehead that made Gu Yixue feel that Shen Fenghe did like her.

Even if not as much as work, she still cared.

Gu Yixue's mood was somewhat dejected. Thinking about having to face such high-pressure filming after getting up made her head ache.

Her chin rubbed against Shen Fenghe's shoulder. Shen Fenghe asked in a low voice: "What's wrong?"

Still carrying the hoarseness of not being fully awake.

"I had a dream." Gu Yixue said.

Shen Fenghe asked groggily: "What dream?"

Gu Yixue pressed her lips together and moved closer, her lips touching her throat as she said softly: "I dreamed about that time when Gu Chunmian threw away my pendant."

Shen Fenghe frowned, as if recalling, then said after a moment: "That was so long ago."

"Very, very long ago." Gu Yixue said.

Shen Fenghe agreed: "Yes."

As she spoke, her hand suddenly pinched the back of Gu Yixue's neck, then she gave a rare smile, "You're still as thin as before."

Gu Yixue closed her eyes: "Am I?"

"Quite thin." Shen Fenghe said: "Eat more."

"I know."

After Gu Yixue answered, the room fell quiet.

Until Gu Yixue suddenly asked: "Elder sister, do you hate me?"

Shen Fenghe immediately opened her eyes, staring straight at her: "What do you mean?"

"Just that... the person who ended up marrying you was me, not Gu Chunmian." When Gu Yixue said this, she held her breath, afraid of missing even one of Shen Fenghe's micro-expressions, and tentatively said: "If you had married Gu Chunmian, things would probably be much easier now, right?"

Shen Fenghe pressed her brow, lying flat, and withdrew her arm.

Gu Yixue's neck suddenly felt empty.

Shen Fenghe fished her underwear from the side, reaching behind to fasten the clasps, while asking very seriously: "What are you thinking about?"

Gu Yixue also sat up, hugging her from behind.

Having been too lazy to put on pajamas after finishing last night, their skin pressed together in an instant.

Gu Yixue's body temperature was noticeably lower than Shen Fenghe's.

Gu Yixue said: "Can't you tell?"

Shen Fenghe pressed her lips together: "You should speak directly."

Gu Yixue paused slightly, lowering her head with a smile: "What I mean is, do you regret marrying me?"

Shen Fenghe: "..."

Shen Fenghe turned and pressed her down on the bed, her breath entirely falling on her face, "Thank you for helping me out that day."

Gu Yixue looked into her eyes and froze for a moment, her heart racing wildly.

Shen Fenghe said again: "You are my wife, I will fulfill my obligations properly."

It was like a bucket of cold water poured over her head.

Gu Yixue's heart stopped beating in that instant.