

Chapter 54-3

Not far away, there were vendors selling cotton candy, candied hawthorn¹, and various other snacks.

Liang Shi immediately ran over to buy some, but when she arrived, there was only one cotton candy left, and another man also wanted to buy it.

Liang Shi and he spoke almost simultaneously: "Boss, I want this cotton candy."

The vendor looked troubled: "There's only one left."

Liang Shi was usually very easygoing. In situations like this, she would definitely say generously: "Then let him have it."

But this wasn't for her to eat—it was for Xu Qingzhu.

So she couldn't give it up.

Just as her mind was racing through all those arguments she could make with people, the other person said: "Let this young lady have it."

Liang Shi: "?"

She looked over, and the man scratched his head, saying embarrassedly: "Sorry about earlier in the concert hall."

Only then did Liang Shi recognize him—it was the young man who had bumped into her before the show started.

He looked quite young, probably still a student.

A college student who could afford a two-thousand-yuan concert ticket must also be quite wealthy.

Liang Shi didn't think much of it and thanked him.

She saw him settle for buying two candied hawthorn instead. Liang Shi wanted to pay for his purchase together with hers, but he beat her to paying, and even covered her bill as well.

Liang Shi: "..."

In that instant, her favorable impression of this young man doubled.

But she still insisted on giving him back the money. The young man said: "It's fine, it's fine. Consider it my apology to you. Go quickly and appease your girlfriend—I need to go appease my girlfriend too."

Liang Shi: "..."

Despite his young age, he understood quite a lot.

Before leaving, he even leaned close to Liang Shi and whispered: "Sister, your girlfriend is really beautiful."

Liang Shi: "..."

For some inexplicable reason, she replied: "That's my wife."

The young man's mouth formed an "o" shape, then he gave a thumbs up: "Married young—impressive!"

Liang Shi: "..."

"Then I wish you both a long and happy marriage!" The young man smiled brilliantly, and when his girlfriend called for him, he immediately ran over with the candied hawthorn.

His running figure was like a gust of wind. Watching him, Liang Shi couldn't help but sigh with feeling—being young was so wonderful.

You could do anything without restraint.

But as soon as he went over, his girlfriend said they were breaking up.

Liang Shi had already turned around to look for Xu Qingzhu, but she heard him ask with particular hurt: "Haven't I been good enough to you? Why do you want to break up with me?"

The girl's sweet, soft voice said: "I've fallen in love with Shen Siyan."

Listening to this, Liang Shi couldn't help but light a candle for that poor guy.

The young man was almost dying of anger: "How is it Shen Siyan again?! Do you really think Shen Siyan is someone you can reach?"

The girl: "I'm so beautiful—why couldn't I reach her?"

The young man was silent for two seconds: "Do you know what Shen Siyan's family does?"

The girl: "...I don't know. I heard they're very wealthy."

"All I can say is," the young man said helplessly, "you can barely even enter my family's door. Marrying into the Shen family—go dream about it."

The girl immediately started arguing with him.

Liang Shi listened to this drama, looking at the cotton candy in her hand that the young man had paid for, and chose not to mock them out of humanitarian consideration.

When she went over, Xu Qingzhu asked: "What happened?"

"That young man—his girlfriend had a change of heart," Liang Shi shared the gossip she had just learned. The commotion over there had already subsided. The girl had stormed off in anger, leaving only the young man standing there alone with two candied hawthorn.

Like a wooden post.

Xu Qingzhu also glanced over and made a "tsk" sound: "The girl missed out."

"Huh?" Liang Shi was puzzled. "What do you mean?"

"That's Zhao Xuning's cousin," Xu Qingzhu said. "Good character and excellent academically."

Liang Shi: "...!"

What a coincidence indeed.

Xu Qingzhu didn't say anything more after that, but Liang Shi suddenly remembered the name he had mentioned earlier.

"Who is Shen Siyan?" Liang Shi asked. "That girl thought she could marry Shen Siyan."

Upon hearing this, Xu Qingzhu almost choked, coughing several times before finally swallowing the cotton candy in her mouth.

Then she looked at the direction where the girl had left with an indescribable expression: "So young, yet dares to dream of anything."

Liang Shi: "?"

"Huayue International² is backed by Huaguang Group, and Huaguang Group is backed by the Shen family," Xu Qingzhu understood this world's business landscape better than her. "Shen Siyan is the only heir of the Shen family."

Liang Shi: "?!"

The same Shen family that was so difficult to even establish connections with?

Liang Shi suddenly felt that Zhao Xuning's cousin probably didn't stand much of a chance either.

But none of this was important—it was just a small matter in their world.

Xu Qingzhu ate half of her cotton candy before getting too full to continue. Liang Shi kept carrying it for her, and the two even went to have a late-night snack.

Just the usual kind of street food that they would normally never touch, the kind labeled as junk food.

The two wandered around until very late before going home.

Footnotes: ¹ Candied hawthorn (糖葫蘆): A traditional Chinese snack of hawthorn berries coated in hard candy and skewered on a stick ² Huayue International: A business company mentioned in the story as part of the complex corporate hierarchy