

Chapter 66-1

As gentle as Liang Shi was, even when extremely angry, she would only say through gritted teeth—don't provoke me.

These words carried an indescribable, ambiguous meaning.

They even sounded somewhat like a coquettish complaint when they reached Xu Qingzhu's ears.

She tilted her head back, her neckline delicate and smooth, her skin milky white, her body emanating a faint fragrance. The scents intertwined in the air.

Liang Shi stood backlit, her long hair draped at her sides, with a few disobedient strands crossing over her ears to cover the side of her face.

Xu Qingzhu's back was against the door, and through her thin clothing, she could still feel the coolness.

While the Alpha's body radiated warmth.

It was truly a world of ice and fire.

Xu Qingzhu suddenly chuckled softly, tilting her head to look at Liang Shi. "So you're angry, then what?"

Her voice rose at the end, as if she was certain that Liang Shi wouldn't do anything to her.

Liang Shi's body continued to lean forward, their bodies almost pressed together. Liang Shi moved close to her ear and said word by word: "Teacher Xu, even a cornered rabbit will bite."

"Bite where?" Xu Qingzhu asked.

Liang Shi: "....."

Suddenly, Xu Qingzhu buried her head in the crook of Liang Shi's neck, her nose twitching, those beautiful lips brushing across Liang Shi's skin.

It cooled the heat on her skin but ignited a fire in her heart.

The restlessness rising from the depths of her heart couldn't be suppressed no matter what, like throwing a spark onto a barren grassland—it caught fire instantly and spread easily.

Liang Shi licked her lips, exhaled lightly, and held her breath.

"Mm." Xu Qingzhu withdrew at the right moment, rubbing her nose. "Ling Dang was right, Teacher Liang really does smell nice."

Liang Shi: "....."

After saying this, Xu Qingzhu gently pushed her. "Rabbit Liang, if you're not going to bite anyone, go downstairs and hold the child, so you'll have somewhere to use your energy."

Liang Shi: "?"

Liang Shi ground her teeth, unable to hold back.

She turned her face and gently bit Xu Qingzhu's neck, immediately withdrawing.

Her warm, moist lips had only just touched the skin on the side of her neck—there was no real harm done.

But she really did bite—someone.

Xu Qingzhu's expression froze, and whatever she was about to say was completely forgotten.

Her mind went blank for a few seconds, but she instinctively licked her lips.

That vampire thought from before sprouted up again like bamboo shoots after rain, and she swallowed.

—Gulp.

In the quiet night, it sounded particularly clear.

Liang Shi said through gritted teeth: "Teacher Xu, I really will bite."

Xu Qingzhu: "....."

Omegas were naturally sensitive to an Alpha's touch. When Liang Shi had just leaned over, Xu Qingzhu's body felt as if an electric current had passed through it, carrying a tingling, itchy sensation, as if one more step forward and she would melt into a pool of warm, soft water.

Liang Shi's long hair still hung down in front of Xu Qingzhu's chest, like gentle waves softly brushing past.

Xu Qingzhu's heartbeat quickened rapidly.

Her hand instinctively gripped the door.

But Liang Shi immediately stood up straight. "I'm going to hold the child."

After saying this, she fled in panic as if wolves were chasing her.

Xu Qingzhu stared at that flustered retreating figure and noticed her ear tips were red enough to drip blood.

—Tsk, want to bite.

Xu Qingzhu closed her eyes and tilted her head back, knocking it against the door.

Really, what was she thinking?

Xu Qingzhu reached up to pinch her own earlobe—it was ridiculously hot.

This unfamiliar emotion left her feeling somewhat at a loss.

Sometimes she acted on instinct, doing certain things, saying certain words, and afterward when she thought back on it...

It didn't seem quite appropriate.

But her heart would feel nervous, yet also tinged with sweetness.

Xu Qingzhu let out a soft sigh. This was too complicated.

It wasn't an emotion that she, a science and engineering woman¹, could understand.

But she seemed... not to dislike it.

If she had time, she might have the inclination to investigate it thoroughly.

But for now, she chose to let things take their natural course.

Footnotes:

¹ Science and engineering woman (理工女): A Chinese term referring to women who study or work in STEM fields (Science, Technology, Engineering, Mathematics). The stereotype suggests they are more logical and analytical, less experienced with or understanding of emotional and romantic matters compared to those in liberal arts or humanities fields.
