

Chapter 73-1

The agent's question left Liang Shi stumped.

Were they newlyweds?

It seemed like they were.

But it also seemed like they weren't.

Her and Xu Qingzhu's current state was very much like roommates, and roommates who got along extremely well at that.

Xu Qingzhu and the original body were newlyweds.

Thinking this way, Liang Shi's heart actually felt a bit sour.

It was Xu Qingzhu beside her who asked: "How much is this apartment per month?"

The agent immediately answered: "Eight thousand five hundred, deposit one month, pay three months."

"Are apartments in this complex this expensive?" Xu Qingzhu frowned, "My friend rented an apartment in Jingyu District that's bigger than this one, only seven thousand per month."

"The location here is good." The agent said, "Don't look at this apartment as unremarkable, but turn one street corner and you're at the commercial center, it backs onto the Procuratorate¹, and walk forward two more streets and you have the international bilingual kindergarten and Haizhou First High School—a genuine school district property."

Xu Qingzhu: "....."

She frowned: "Haizhou City First High School?"

"That's Huaxing Middle School." The agent said, "Huaxing Middle School's junior high division now has the best enrollment rate in the entire city."

"The First High School is No. 1 High." Xu Qingzhu said, "No. 1 High is on Fanrong Street."

"That's such old news." The agent laughed, "No. 1 High's enrollment rate is terrible now. Huaxing Middle School's undergraduate rate reaches 95% every year."

"Really?" Xu Qingzhu suddenly paused, "What about Huai'an Private School?"

The agent thought for a moment, "That's all a school wealthy people go to, a noble school. How many students inside are there to seriously study?"

Xu Qingzhu hesitated for a moment, "Is transferring schools troublesome now?"

The agent: "That depends on what grade you're in."

"Sophomore year." Xu Qingzhu said, "Just promoted. Her grades are pretty good too."

Standing to the side listening quietly, Liang Shi: "....."

Never expected that just coming to look at an apartment, Xu Qingzhu would actually think about transferring schools for Xu Qingya.

However, they didn't reach an agreement afterward. When the agent said Huai'an Private School was too trashy, not even producing one student admitted to Qingyi University² every year, Xu Qingzhu scoffed disdainfully.

Though she didn't say anything.

However, this apartment fell through—they didn't reach an agreement.

The agent took them to see a few more, but none were very satisfactory.

After leaving that complex, Xu Qingzhu looked at the luxurious exterior of the residential area and said faintly: "Gilt and jade on the outside, rot and decay on the inside³."

Liang Shi: "....."

They did completely give up the idea of finding an apartment in this complex though, shifting their focus to locations between both their companies.

Mainly to be closer to Minghui.

Liang Shi would very likely not work at Dongheng for much longer, so the apartment's geographical location should serve Xu Qingzhu as much as possible.

Footnotes:

¹ Procuratorate (检察院): In China, the People's Procuratorate is a government agency responsible for prosecution and legal supervision, similar to a prosecutor's office in Western countries. Living near such an institution is considered prestigious and safe.

² Qingyi University (青翼大学): A fictional prestigious university in this novel. The name literally means "Green Wing University."

³ Gilt and jade on the outside, rot and decay on the inside (金玉其外,败絮其中): A Chinese idiom meaning something that looks impressive on the outside but is worthless or rotten inside. It's used to describe things or people that are superficially attractive but lack substance.
