

Chapter 95-1

One look at Ling Dang and you could tell she had been crying for a long time. Her little face looked absolutely pitiful as she lay slumped on Liang Shi's shoulder, tears and snot smeared all over Liang Shi's clothes.

Liang Shi didn't bother asking Sun Meirou for the details first—she focused on comforting Ling Dang.

"Sweetheart, don't cry anymore. How about Auntie takes you out to play?" Liang Shi coaxed her. "Rainbow and Sheng Yu are outside. Do you want to go play with them?"

Ling Dang shook her head, burying her face into Liang Shi's shoulder. "No~"

So pitiful.

Liang Shi didn't force her. After all, Ling Dang's emotions had calmed down a little.

She wasn't wailing loudly and emotionally like before—now she was just hiccupping and sobbing intermittently.

Liang Shi's heart ached just watching her.

Afraid the child would feel worse, Liang Shi didn't discuss the matter with Sun Meirou in front of her.

Liang Shi carried Ling Dang outside the kindergarten. Sheng Yu spotted them first and called out, "Liang Wenxuan!"

Ling Dang sniffled and held onto Liang Shi tighter, absolutely refusing to get down from her arms. Liang Shi patted her back and patiently coaxed her, "Look how much fun Rainbow and Sheng Yu are having. Why don't you go play with them too? They can only do three moves in cat's cradle¹—don't you know the moves after that? Go teach them."

Ling Dang continued shaking her head. "No~"

A child who had been wronged was clingy beyond reason—there was no room for negotiation.

But Sheng Yu ran over and pressed herself against Liang Shi's leg, reaching out to tug at Ling Dang's leg. "Liang Wenxuan, what's wrong with you? Crying, crying—how embarrassing."

Rainbow tugged at Sheng Yu, signaling her to stop talking, but Sheng Yu just stared at her with wide eyes. "Why are you pulling me?"

Rainbow: "....."

Little-adult Rainbow was feeling very exhausted.

"Liang Wenxuan, come down and play." Sheng Yu enthusiastically invited her. "Do you want to go build sandcastles with us?"

Ling Dang was a tiny bit tempted, but still refused. "No~"

"You're such a big kid already, my sister can't carry you." Sheng Yu said. "You're so heavy."

Upon hearing this, Ling Dang kicked at her, but Sheng Yu nimbly dodged and continued in an annoying manner, "Oh right, Liang Wenxuan, you call my sister 'Auntie,' so doesn't that mean you should call me 'Auntie' too? Hahaha, I'm older than you!"

Ling Dang had originally wanted to sulk and feel sorry for herself quietly, but Sheng Yu made her so angry that she turned around and glared at her fiercely. "Impossible!"

"How is it impossible?" Sheng Yu stood proudly with her hands on her hips. "If you don't believe me, ask your Auntie—she married my sister!"

Ling Dang was stunned for two seconds, sniffing through her hiccups, and looked at Liang Shi in confusion. "Auntie, did you divorce Aunt-Mother?"

Liang Shi: "?"

She didn't know whether to laugh or cry. "No, your Aunt-Mother is Sheng Yu's biological sister."

Ling Dang pouted, nearly about to cry again, but Liang Shi patted her head. "There, there, sweetheart, don't cry anymore. How about we go get something to eat?"

Ling Dang choked up, then hiccupped. "I want an ice cream cone."

Liang Shi: "....."

Footnotes:

¹ Cat's cradle (翻花繩): A traditional string game played by children, where a loop of string is woven between fingers to create various patterns. Players take turns transferring the string patterns from one person's hands to another, creating increasingly complex designs. It's a popular children's game in China and many other cultures.