

Chapter 95-3

After saying that, Sun Meirou—who had never argued with anyone in her entire life—felt incredibly guilty. She then turned around and went upstairs without even eating lunch.

She had an introverted personality and didn't have many friends. Now that Su Yao was asking, she couldn't help but pour everything out like beans tumbling from a bamboo tube¹.

After listening, Su Yao shook her head to herself. "This sister-in-law of yours is no simple character."

Sun Meirou pulled out a tissue to wipe her tears. "I don't really think much of it. Living with in-laws is already troublesome enough. If my in-laws like her, then she can stay—it's just one more pair of chopsticks at the table. Besides, I don't have to serve her anyway. But how should I put it? It's just strange. She hasn't done anything bad, yet ever since she came, our whole family has nearly fallen apart. Before this, I lived under the same roof as my sister-in-law for six years, and we never had a single argument."

Now that she mentioned Yu Wan, Sun Meirou found herself missing her a bit.

After all, they had lived together for six years. Although Yu Wan seemed cold and aloof, she was always thorough in everything she did, and her personality was stronger than Sun Meirou's—she could make decisions.

Whenever Sun Meirou couldn't make up her mind, she always liked to ask Yu Wan for her opinion. But unexpectedly, on the very first day Guo Xinran came back, her brother-in-law and Yu Wan moved out.

Her brother-in-law was even more ruthless—he stopped going to the company altogether.

Now Liang Xinhe was so busy every day that his feet barely touched the ground, and he didn't even have time to come home.

Sun Meirou had also been trying to compromise and make peace, thinking she should get Ling Dang to build a good relationship with Guo Xinran so that Ling Dang wouldn't be mistreated.

Oh right, Guo Xinran had already changed her name—she was now called Liang Xinran.

Before Liang Xinran came back, Ling Dang was the only child in the house. Even Liang Xinzhou, who was used to keeping a cold face, and Yu Wan with her aloof personality, usually gave in to her and doted on her the most.

Everything in the family was prioritized for Ling Dang first, so she was inevitably a little spoiled.

But it was all harmless—once she went outside, Ling Dang was especially well-behaved.

But now that Liang Xinran had arrived, Ling Dang's presence in the house had diminished considerably. If Liang Xinran wanted to talk to Ling Dang or play with her, Ling Dang had to accompany her. Otherwise, she would be lectured by Qiu Zimin for being inconsiderate.

When had the old Ling Dang ever been treated like this?

Sitting in Su Yao's car, Sun Meirou vented all her grievances to Su Yao, feeling deeply wronged inside.

Meanwhile, the three children in the other car were already making a huge ruckus in Liang Shi's car.

To be precise, it was two of them—only Sheng Yu and Ling Dang.

Rainbow sat in the middle with her hands covering her ears, indicating that she didn't want to listen to them arguing.

Sheng Yu was lively. As soon as she got in the car, she said to Ling Dang, "Liang Wenxuan, why did you cry so much? You look like a little pig head."

Ling Dang originally didn't want to talk to her, but Sheng Yu came at her with a "bomb"² right from the start. Ling Dang was so angry that her eyes went round. "You're the pig head!"

Sheng Yu giggled. "I wasn't insulting you. Have you seen that meme? I saw it on my sister's phone—it's that one....."

As she spoke, she pushed her nose up. "Cried until you look like a little pig head."

Ling Dang: "....."

Ling Dang, who had cried until her voice was almost hoarse, was furious. She was so angry she wanted to bite Sheng Yu, but Rainbow was sitting between them.

Ling Dang pushed Rainbow. "Move aside."

Rainbow made a "shh" gesture at her. "Let's be quiet and sleep."

"You're just protecting her!" Ling Dang crossed her arms and huffed coldly. Her little milky voice was adorable, with a hint of hoarseness. "You two are in the same class, wuwuwu....."

"I'm not." Rainbow defended herself. "It's just that you two are arguing too loudly."

Ling Dang & Sheng Yu: "....."

The two looked at each other, and Sheng Yu put her hands on her hips. "Liang Wenxuan, let's annoy her to death!"

Ling Dang nodded and let out a shriek right next to Rainbow's ear. "Ahhh~"

The high-pitched ultrasonic attack was truly something Rainbow hadn't anticipated.

Rainbow covered her ears and leaned back against the car seat, but then the two of them leaned in close to her ears, taking turns launching ultrasonic attacks.

Rainbow had a look of utter despair on her face. Liang Shi stopped them just in time. "Alright, everyone quiet down a bit."

Sheng Yu had even strained her voice trying to blast Rainbow's ears.

The three of them couldn't stay quiet for more than a moment anyway.

Liang Shi drove the car to the nearest McDonald's. The moment the tires entered the parking space, Liang Shi felt like she had gone deaf.

.....

However, when they got out of the car, Ling Dang was in much better spirits. She went off to run wild with Sheng Yu.

Rainbow stood behind them, shaking her head and sighing like a little adult.

Liang Shi patted her head. "Did your ears get blown off?"

Rainbow looked up at Liang Shi and said very sincerely, "Sister Liang, it's better to only have one child."

Liang Shi: "....."

Liang Shi was amused to death by her expression. She flicked Rainbow's forehead. "Go play with them. See what you want to eat, but don't order too much—we're having dinner together tonight."

Rainbow covered her forehead and drew out her response. "Okayyy~"

After buying ice cream cones for them and ordering some fries, Liang Shi went to talk with Sun Meirou.

Su Yao volunteered to watch the children for them.

There were people coming and going outside the McDonald's—it wasn't a good place to discuss matters. So Liang Shi and Sun Meirou went back to the car.

Sun Meirou told her everything starting from last night, recounting all the details.

Liang Shi asked, "Why did Guo Xinran suddenly want to take Ling Dang to the supermarket?"

"Just to take her out for a stroll." Sun Meirou said. "There was nothing to do in the evening. After dinner, Guo Xinran said she'd take her out for a walk, then they went to the supermarket. She wanted to buy her some snacks."

"Alright."

This matter was indeed difficult to handle.

Liang Shi asked again, "Does Second Brother know about this?"

Sun Meirou shook her head. "He's been sleeping at the company. He's so busy right now he's dizzy from it all. I haven't seen him in two days."

Liang Shi: "....."

Hearing how miserable Liang Xinhe was, Liang Shi kind of wanted to laugh.

But Ling Dang's situation couldn't just be left like this.

If Ling Dang could cry for a day and a night over this, she definitely hadn't done it—otherwise she would have apologized long ago.

If she was just wrongly accused like this, Ling Dang would definitely become timid in the future and be afraid to do anything.

Liang Shi comforted Sun Meirou with a few words, telling her not to be too upset. Then she discussed with her about letting Ling Dang stay at her place tonight. After all, there were many children at her place now, so Ling Dang would have playmates and could change her mood.

Sun Meirou was also worried that her newly moved place was small and that these kids making a ruckus would keep her and Xu Qingzhu from sleeping well.

"It's fine." Liang Shi said. "Ling Dang is very well-behaved."

At the same time, Liang Shi asked Sun Meirou about the supermarket where Ling Dang and the others went last night, the hospital where the injured child was staying, and the parents' phone number.

Sun Meirou shook her head helplessly. "I just feel like something's strange. She clearly hasn't done anything bad since she came, but things keep happening in the house."

Liang Shi remained silent and didn't say anything more.

Footnotes:

¹ Pour out like beans from a bamboo tube (竹筒倒豆子): A Chinese idiom meaning to tell everything at once without holding back, like beans spilling out when a bamboo tube is tipped over.

² Bomb/王炸 (wáng zhà): Literally "king bomb," this is a term from the popular Chinese card game Dou Dizhu (斗地主, "Fight the Landlord"). It refers to the highest-value combination in the game (two jokers played together), used colloquially to mean a powerful or devastating opening move or statement.