

Chapter 96-5

//

The nearby pediatric hospital was just a five-minute drive away. It happened to be the same hospital that little boy had come to yesterday.

According to Sun Meirou, the other party was afraid there might be aftereffects or something, so they wanted the boy to stay for observation for five days. The expenses would naturally be covered by the Liang family.

At the time, Sun Meirou felt this was unreasonable, but Qiu Zimin didn't want Liang Xinran to be upset. Since it was just a small amount of money, she naturally accepted it.

The benefit of the house being close to the medical university was that there were many different types of hospitals nearby. This medical university-affiliated children's hospital was the best children's hospital in Haizhou City, and hospital beds were hard to come by.

That little boy was truly a waste of medical resources.

After all, how badly could you get hurt from being bumped by a small shopping cart?

Liang Shi wasn't in the mood to think about that right now.

There weren't many people at the hospital at this hour. Liang Shi carried Sheng Yu into the hospital while Xu Qingzhu went to register.

The two of them went upstairs to the department together. When registering, the staff reminded them to hurry if they were going—shift change was coming up soon, and there would be a 10-15 minute gap. So Liang Shi practically ran upstairs while carrying Sheng Yu. Even though she was an Alpha with good stamina, she was still out of breath from running upstairs while holding Sheng Yu.

But they made it just in time—the doctor was still in the office.

The doctor was in the middle of taking off her white coat. Liang Shi set Sheng Yu down on a chair. "Doctor, the child bumped her head. Could you please treat the wound....."

As she spoke, the other person put her half-removed white coat back on and turned around. Liang Shi's words suddenly got stuck.

Seeing that it was her, Shen Hui was also startled. However, she took out a mask from her pocket and put it on. Without speaking to Liang Shi, she walked directly over to Sheng Yu. She first smiled at Sheng Yu, her eyes curving in a particularly warm manner. "Little one, how did you get hurt?"

"I fell on the floor." Sheng Yu said. "I hit the floor."

Shen Hui first examined her wound, then took out disinfecting supplies from the cabinet. She pulled up a chair and sat in front of Sheng Yu, speaking gently. "Auntie is going to treat your wound now. If it hurts, you can grab onto Auntie's sleeve, okay? But don't cry—if you cry, you won't be pretty anymore."

Sheng Yu bit her lip. Fear flashed in her eyes, but she still answered bravely, "Okay."

Xu Qingzhu, who had come up after Liang Shi, stood at the doorway. She hadn't seen that it was Shen Hui. Seeing Sheng Yu sitting there obediently while the doctor treated her wound, she asked Liang Shi, "What did the doctor say? Is it serious?"

Liang Shi shook her head. "We don't know yet."

"It's not serious." Shen Hui's cool, clear voice sounded. "She just bumped it. It might swell tomorrow. I'll do some emergency treatment first. If you're worried something might be wrong, when you come back tomorrow to change the dressing, you can go to the neurology department for a CT scan to see if there's any bleeding in the brain. But it should be fine—bumps and scrapes are normal for children."

"It hurts....." Sheng Yu said quietly, on the verge of tears.

Ling Dang quickly walked over and held her hand. "I'm sorry....."

Sheng Yu huffed softly. "Liang Wenxuan, you're saying sorry again."

Ling Dang lowered her head guiltily.

"Did you knock her down?" When Shen Hui spoke with children, her voice was very gentle, just like a preschool teacher coaxing little ones.

Ling Dang nodded in admission, but Sheng Yu said, "I fell on my own."

"Then you're really brave." Shen Hui said. "Usually, children who get hurt like this would cry."

Sheng Yu answered proudly, "I'm not an ordinary child!"

"Really? Then you're amazing!" Shen Hui praised her while her hands moved steadily, finishing up the bandage.

By now, Xu Qingzhu had finally recognized her voice. She leaned close to Liang Shi's ear and whispered, "Is that Zhao Xuning's ex-girlfriend?"

Liang Shi nodded. "Yes."

Xu Qingzhu clicked her tongue. "She's like a completely different person when she's working."

Before, Xu Qingzhu had seen her cold and aloof demeanor, had also seen her smile alluringly, and she had even greeted her in a friendly manner and apologized.

But when working, Shen Hui radiated a maternal glow. She was very gentle, and the children all liked chatting with her.

Liang Shi nodded in agreement with what she said, but still said with some confusion, "I feel like she really dislikes me. Why?"

Xu Qingzhu didn't understand either. She had just come in, so she could only guess. "Could it be because of Zhao Xuning?"

"It shouldn't be." Liang Shi said. "If she hated me by association¹, shouldn't she dislike you too? But she's very friendly to you."

Xu Qingzhu: "....."

She was silent for a moment, then leaned close to Liang Shi's ear and blew a breath of air. "Maybe it's because I'm pretty."

Liang Shi: "?"

"She said before that she likes beautiful women." Xu Qingzhu said.

Liang Shi: "....."

Was her appearance not good enough?

But the two of them only whispered for a moment. Shen Hui finished quickly and also treated Sheng Yu's nosebleed—patient and gentle throughout.

After finishing, she took off her mask and only then noticed there was another person in the room. Seeing who it was, she was momentarily stunned and asked in disbelief, "You two came together?"

Xu Qingzhu nodded. "What a coincidence. We meet again."

Shen Hui nodded. "What a coincidence."

Her face was full of fatigue. After working all day, she was very tired and had no intention of catching up.

She conveniently ignored Liang Shi standing beside her.

Indeed, Xu Qingzhu could also sense Shen Hui's hostility toward Liang Shi.

How baffling.

Just as Shen Hui was about to take off her white coat again to get off work, the door was pushed open. A woman ran in, gasping for breath. "Dr. Shen, please come quickly and take a look. My son has a fever."

Shen Hui's movements paused. She let out an imperceptible sigh, then resignedly buttoned up her white coat again. "Let's go."

She had just taken one step when the woman suddenly spotted Ling Dang standing to the side. She gnashed her teeth and cursed, "You dare show up here?! You little wretch²!"

The moment those words came out, Ling Dang's body shrank back. Tears fell from her eyes, but she didn't dare cry out loud.

The expressions of all the adults in the office changed simultaneously.

Footnotes:

¹ Hated by association (恨屋及烏): This is a reversal of the Chinese idiom "愛屋及烏" (ài wū jí wū), which literally means "love the house, love the crow on it"—meaning to love someone so much that you also love everything associated with them. Here, Liang Shi is using the opposite concept: hating someone so much that you hate everyone associated with them.

² Little wretch (賤蹄子): A vulgar insult literally meaning "cheap/lowly hoof," traditionally used to demean women and girls. It's an extremely offensive and degrading term, particularly shocking when directed at a child.
