

Chapter 99-6

//

After Xu Qingzhu left the hospital, she sent Liang Shi a message: [Stop meddling in other people's business from now on!]

Liang Shi, who had just arrived at Dongheng with Ling Dang: [Whose business?]

Xu Qingzhu: [Dr. Zhao and Dr. Shen's.]

Liang Shi: [How would I dare anymore? I just couldn't stand watching Zhao Xuning keep her mouth shut when she should speak up.]

And after she helped speak up, she got sold out in return.

She had witnessed the shattering of a plastic friendship.

Liang Shi: [You saw Dr. Shen?]

Xu Qingzhu: [Mm, we even added each other on WeChat.]

Liang Shi: [shivering.jpg Dr. Shen really knows how to steal someone's wall.¹]

Xu Qingzhu: [...Yes, are you scared?]

Liang Shi: [I think Teacher Xu is a firm wall that can't be pried away.]

Xu Qingzhu: [That depends on who's doing the prying. I quite like Shen Hui-jiejie.]

Liang Shi: [!]

Liang Shi sent her a "nooo~" sticker, then took Ling Dang upstairs to Liang Xinhe's office.

Because both Qiu Zimin and Guo Xinran were hospitalized at the same time, Liang Xinhe had stayed at the hospital all night. So had Sun Meirou.

After a sleepless night, they still had to spin around like tops. They changed clothes in the morning and rushed to the company.

Last night, Liang Xinhe and Sun Meirou had been planning to move out of the old residence.

Liang Xinhe had still been somewhat hesitant. After all, when his older brother moved out, it had already made Qiu Zimin furious. If he moved out now too and quit his job on top of that, Qiu Zimin would probably be so angry she'd have to live in the hospital permanently.

When his older brother was still around, he at least had someone to discuss things with. Now his older brother wouldn't even answer his calls.

He had a bellyful of grievances and frustrations with nowhere to pour them out.

But when he saw Ling Dang, her eyes were still red. The moment she saw him, she hugged him. "Daddy, I didn't push that little brother."

Two days had passed, and Ling Dang was still dwelling on that incident.

Liang Xinhe looked at her eyes. "Baby, why are your eyes so red?"

"Daddy, last night we went to the hospital and saw that auntie." Ling Dang complained with grievance. "That auntie cursed at me. She called me a dog spawn..."

Liang Xinhe: "?!!"

"Auntie hit her." Ling Dang said. "And then she was taken away by the police uncles."

Though young in age, she was crystal clear when tattling. Ling Dang pressed her teary face against Liang Xinhe's shoulder with grievance. "Daddy, can we move out? Living with Da-bo is fine, living with Auntie is fine too, but I don't want to live with New Auntie and Grandma anymore. Grandma scolds Mommy."

Liang Xinhe said immediately, "Move. We'll move today."

Liang Shi stood behind Ling Dang and immediately said, "I didn't teach her to say that."

Liang Xinhe said helplessly, "No one said you did."

If he had been somewhat hesitant before, Liang Xinhe was now firmly resolved. There was still a huge pile of documents on his desk, but he couldn't care about any of that now. He told Liang Shi to call their older brother and ask what to do about the company. Should he come back to talk to Dad, or could he also just quit?

He really couldn't live like this for another day.

Liang Xinhe complained tearfully to Liang Xinzhou. He was working himself to death outside, only for Mom to bully his wife and child at home.

Liang Xinzhou asked him coldly, "So do you still think I was worrying too much back then?"

"No." Liang Xinhe immediately started flattering. "Ge, you're brilliant and mighty. I really... Are you living at Hualuwan now? Or Chenjiang? We might as well move near your place."

Liang Xinzhou: "....."

"Liang Shi is at Chenjiang. I'm at Hualuwan." Liang Xinzhou said. "You'd better stay away from us."

Liang Xinhe: "No way. When Dad comes looking for someone to settle accounts, you need to be in the front line."

Liang Xinzhou threatened, "Then I'll have to beat you up first."

Liang Xinhe: "...That's fine too."

Liang Xinhe was clinging to Liang Xinzhou no matter what. In his heart, his older brother was omnipotent.

Liang Xinzhou didn't say anything more after that. He just told him to move quickly if he was going to move. There was no need to make a scene face-to-face—just move out directly. Anyway, there wasn't much stuff, and they could buy new things.

The best decision Liang Xinhe had ever made was buying property when his older brother bought property. He just didn't buy as many as his older brother—only one unit at Hualuwan, bought in the building next to his brother's.

Liang Xinhe was a man of action. He told Liang Shi to take Ling Dang to his brother's place, then go home to pack up and move first.

Liang Shi told him about Ling Dang being falsely accused. Liang Xinhe promised Ling Dang, "Don't worry. Daddy will definitely get to the truth. I absolutely won't let my precious daughter be wronged."

And so, a dramatic "pulling the firewood from under the cauldron"² began.

Liang Shi took Ling Dang to Hualuwan to find Liang Xinzhou. The moment they entered, Liang Xinzhou also noticed Ling Dang's eyes.

Liang Shi said from the side, "She's been crying for two days."

Liang Xinzhou's face darkened immediately. He asked Ling Dang, "Who bullied you?"

Ling Dang was usually a little afraid of her Da-bo, but she hadn't seen him in a long time. Plus, compared to her New Auntie, she now felt Da-bo wasn't scary at all—he was very reliable.

So she nestled in her Da-bo's arms and tattled in fragments.

Although her words weren't entirely clear, the meaning she expressed was very clear.

After Liang Xinzhou finished listening, he directly pulled Ling Dang toward the door. "Which supermarket did you go to that day?"

Ling Dang answered, "The big supermarket right by our house."

Liang Shi hadn't even processed what was happening. Mainly, she hadn't expected Liang Xinzhou to make a decision so quickly. They hadn't even been inside for three minutes.

While she was still dazed, Liang Xinzhou stood at the door and called out, "Liang Shi, are you coming or not?"

Liang Shi: "....."

Almost without hesitation, Liang Shi responded, "Let's go!"

Footnotes:

² "Pulling the firewood from under the cauldron" (釜底抽薪, fǔ dǐ chōu xīn): A Chinese idiom meaning to remove the root cause of a problem, or to take drastic measures that undermine the foundation of something. Here it refers to the family dramatically moving out and potentially abandoning their roles in the family business, effectively removing themselves from the family power structure.
