

Chapter 102-1 Extra

Extra: Ji Jingrong Loves Yin Lingzhu the Most (If Line Ending) 1

Regarding what happened last night, Yin Lingzhu could only bury it in her heart.

But this incident still left a very deep impression on Yin Lingzhu.

For the past twenty-something years, she had always been a good girl in name.

She had never done anything improper.

This incident was, for her, the most outrageous thing she had ever done.

Yin Lingzhu returned to her rental apartment, sat in a chair, and closed her eyes.

She had actually slept with someone she didn't know.

Yin Lingzhu thought in disbelief.

Everything from last night seemed particularly memorable.

Even the uncontrollable sound that escaped from her throat in the depths of night seemed to echo in her ears at this moment.

Yin Lingzhu suddenly opened her eyes.

The temperature of her face instantly soared at this moment.

But the more she tried not to recall, the more she remembered every detail clearly.

Yin Lingzhu pretended to fan her face, trying to lower the temperature.

But gradually, her movements stopped.

She realized that her current behavior was somewhat foolish.

Yin Lingzhu barely managed to calm her emotions and hurried to the company.

But throughout the entire day, she was almost absent-minded.

She was even called out separately by her supervising teacher for criticism.

But even so, Yin Lingzhu's thoughts didn't return.

When evening came, Yin Lingzhu packed up her things and left the company.

She couldn't wait to cross the company's main gate, but then suddenly stopped in her tracks.

Yin Lingzhu looked up at the sky, not knowing why she was so excited.

She walked slowly along the road, carefully thinking about her relationship with that person.

So far, she only knew the other person's name and that she was a lawyer.

But she knew nothing about this person's life.

Yin Lingzhu kicked a pebble on the ground, feeling quite frustrated.

Watching that pebble continuously rolling forward, it rolled to someone's feet.

She instinctively looked up.

She saw that the person in front of her was also looking at her.

"You're getting off work so late."

Ji Jingrong's bangs fell over her forehead, and the streetlight's illumination cast shadows from diagonally above her.

A smile hung on her face, making her look particularly gentle.

Yin Lingzhu quietly hummed in response.

She looked up at Ji Jingrong again.

"How did you know I work here?"

Ji Jingrong walked to Yin Lingzhu's side, walking alongside her.

She turned her head to look at the person beside her and smiled.

"Just consider that I have extensive connections."

Yin Lingzhu's nose seemed to be surrounded by a fragrance that made her brain unable to function.

She dazedly hummed in response.

Her body relied on the muscle memory from this period, completely dependent on instinct to go back.

The cool moonlight illuminated the path for both of them.

The two didn't speak along the way, just walking quietly like that.

The atmosphere was quite harmonious for a moment.

It wasn't until they stood at the door of the rental house that Yin Lingzhu said goodbye to Ji Jingrong.

Even though Yin Lingzhu didn't want to part with Ji Jingrong in her heart, she couldn't say anything to make her stay at this moment.

"Bye bye."

Yin Lingzhu waved her hand in a small gesture.

Ji Jingrong also waved at her.

"See you tomorrow."

She said.

Yin Lingzhu lowered her head and hummed.

Back in her rental apartment, Yin Lingzhu lay on the bed and wrapped herself in the blanket.

Thinking about the scene where Ji Jingrong had just said goodbye to her, she clutched the blanket with her hands and embarrassedly covered her head.

The things that happened from yesterday to today were still too stimulating.

Yin Lingzhu's heart couldn't quite handle it.

But she was clear in her heart that she didn't dislike this feeling.

And she even had some vague expectations.

Perhaps she had been a good girl for too long, making people forget that everyone has some rebelliousness in their bones.

A faint blush appeared on Yin Lingzhu's face.

Suddenly, she sat up straight in bed—she had forgotten to ask where Ji Jingrong lived.

She took out that business card from her pocket.

It had Ji Jingrong's work address written on it. Yin Lingzhu placed that business card against her chest.

I'll go see her tomorrow.

Yin Lingzhu thought this with a sweet smile on her lips.

The next day, Yin Lingzhu rarely got up early.

She rummaged through her wardrobe for a long time, changing outfit after outfit in front of the mirror, before finally settling on suitable clothes.

Yin Lingzhu confirmed one last time that there was indeed nothing discordant about her appearance before going to find Ji Jingrong.

Following the navigation, she arrived at the bottom of the building.

She took out the business card, carefully checked the name to confirm there was no mistake, then tidied her clothes and walked inside.

Based on information provided by the front desk, Yin Lingzhu came to the fourth floor.

She looked at Ji Jingrong's name on the door sign and swallowed.

Finally mustering up courage, Yin Lingzhu took a deep breath and raised her hand to knock on the door.

Immediately, Ji Jingrong's voice came from inside: "Come in."

Yin Lingzhu gently opened the door.

"Hello, what do you need to consult about?"

Ji Jingrong looked at the documents on her desk without even raising her head, asking in a businesslike manner.

Hearing this question, Yin Lingzhu's mind went blank.

She was even thinking about whether to immediately make up a reason.

Just as she remained silent, Ji Jingrong sensed something was wrong. She lifted the fallen hair from her forehead and raised her head.

When she saw it was Yin Lingzhu, the surprise in her eyes flashed briefly.

And Yin Lingzhu happened to catch the emotion in Ji Jingrong's eyes.

"Did I disturb you? I'm sorry."

Yin Lingzhu lowered her head and apologized quietly.

"I'll leave right away."

Ji Jingrong immediately blocked her path and had her sit in the chair where she had been working.

"Stay a while longer."

Ji Jingrong's lips curved into a smile, and her eyes looking at Yin Lingzhu were also full of mirth.

Yin Lingzhu felt embarrassed under her gaze and lowered her head.

She completely forgot about her earlier intention to leave.

Yin Lingzhu had gotten up early today, and Ji Jingrong's office had sufficient heating, which inevitably made Yin Lingzhu drowsy.

"Knock knock knock."

The sound of someone knocking on the door brought Yin Lingzhu's gradually dispersing consciousness slightly back.

The visitor was obviously very surprised to see that the person in the office chair wasn't Ji Jingrong.

She scanned around and only spotted Ji Jingrong in the reception chair.

The visitor used her eyes to signal what was going on.

Ji Jingrong didn't explain too much and took the documents from the visitor's hands.

"It's nothing, you can go out."

Ji Jingrong said indifferently.

The visitor looked at Ji Jingrong's appearance, then at Yin Lingzhu's drowsy state, and suddenly a glint flashed in her eyes.

She left the office seemingly elegantly but with rapid steps.