

Chapter 105 Extra

Extra: Bamboo and Yan Si 2

Yin Lingzhu watched her childish behavior and chose to look at the comments together with her.

It had to be said, netizens had always been incredibly fast when it came to gossip.

In just a short while, someone had dug up all of Yin Lingzhu's identities.

Careful people discovered that almost every time Yin Lingzhu appeared, Yan Si was by her side.

This phenomenon immediately attracted a lot of attention.

Yan Si also saw this comment and glanced at Yin Lingzhu somewhat guiltily.

But Yin Lingzhu acted as if she hadn't seen anything and quietly stared at the screen.

Yan Si had just relaxed a little when she discovered there was a link posted by the original poster under that comment.

【Complete collection: Timeline of when Sisi and Yin Lingzhu met.】

When Yan Si saw this comment, her heart rate spiked dramatically.

She wanted to quickly scroll down and skip this topic, but unexpectedly, Yin Lingzhu reached out and clicked on that link.

Yan Si: !

Let me disappear, right now.

That original poster's summary was indeed comprehensive.

And every time Yan Si appeared beside Yin Lingzhu, they had enlarged, paused, and marked it.

At the end of the video, the poster even specifically noted that from Yin Lingzhu's very first show after her debut, Yan Si had always been by her side.

Seeing this, Yan Si was very worried that Yin Lingzhu would be angry.

She still remembered that Yin Lingzhu had once said she didn't want her to cling to her.

Yin Lingzhu still showed no reaction, not even any facial expression.

Her lack of response made Yan Si's heart very nervous.

Even after Yin Lingzhu finished washing up and prepared to sleep, there was still no reaction.

But Yan Si couldn't sit still anymore.

She proactively put down her phone, knelt on the bed with both knees, and lowered her head.

"I'm sorry."

Yin Lingzhu looked at her with an ambiguous smile, her eyes carrying a teasing meaning.

"What did you do wrong?"

But Yan Si, with her head lowered, couldn't see. Hearing Yin Lingzhu's words, she thought Yin Lingzhu was angry now.

So Yan Si lowered her head even more, exposing her pale neck.

"Even though you were unwilling, I still insisted on clinging to you."

Yan Si lowered her head and spoke in a muffled voice.

Yin Lingzhu propped up her chin, the smile at the corners of her mouth never fading.

"So?"

Yan Si's brain went blank for a moment, racking her brains to think of how to answer.

"And, and..."

Yan Si repeated quietly several times but couldn't come up with anything concrete.

Yin Lingzhu actually wasn't angry at all. After all, if she really held grudges about what Yan Si had done in the past...

She smiled.

Then Yan Si wouldn't even be able to get on this bed today.

And her laughter made Yan Si's heart tremble again.

She crawled on her knees to Yin Lingzhu's side, hugged Yin Lingzhu's arm with both hands, and gently shook it.

"Please, don't be angry, okay?"

Yan Si's voice carried caution, and even this coquettish behavior had a small range of motion.

Yin Lingzhu deliberately put on a cold face, pretending to be unhappy.

"You were so excessive in the past, and now you won't even let me be angry. How can you be so domineering?"

Hearing her words, Yan Si's eyes immediately reddened, and her hands slowly dropped.

"I'm sorry."

Hearing Yan Si's voice with a crying tone, Yin Lingzhu realized she had gone too far.

She quickly pulled Yan Si into her arms and wiped away the tears that had seeped from the corners of Yan Si's eyes.

"It's okay, I don't blame you."

The tears that had accumulated in Yan Si's eyes all burst forth at this moment.

"You're mean."

Yin Lingzhu's fingertips brushed across Yan Si's cheek, taking away the tears.

She softened her voice and gently coaxed the person in front of her.

"Yes, I'm mean."

Hearing Yin Lingzhu's doting tone, Yan Si's previously dejected mood completely dissipated.

She suddenly smiled.

"Tell me, will you never leave me for the rest of your life?"

Her hands wrapped around Yin Lingzhu's neck, and her eyes seemed to hold sparkling light because she had been crying.

Yin Lingzhu met her gaze and her heart softened again.

She gently hummed in response.

After that, Yan Si seemed to have found the joy of posting on Weibo, posting five or six times a day.

【The apple that Zhuzhu¹ peeled is so sweet.】

【The food that Zhuzhu made smells so good.】

【The clothes that Zhuzhu personally put in the washing machine look so pretty.】

【Watching the sunset with Zhuzhu.】

At first, Yan Si's fans were still surprised by the content of Yan Si's Weibo posts.

Later, they had become numb to it and started commenting below.

【LMAO, clothes personally put in the washing machine? What, do clothes run in by themselves otherwise?】

【Me, currently eating an apple, suddenly it doesn't taste sweet anymore.】

Yan Si regarded all such comments as people being sour that she had an Alpha.

Yan Si put down her phone and looked at the sunset ahead.

Yin Lingzhu sat beside her.

Looking at the sky dyed red by the red color, the hair by Yan Si's ears was blown by the wind, carrying a cool feeling.

"We'll be together forever, right?"

Yin Lingzhu's pupils reflected this scene. She took Yan Si's hand.

"Yes, we'll be together for a lifetime."

Under the sunlight, their shadows merged together.

Footnotes:

¹ Zhuzhu: An affectionate nickname for Yin Lingzhu, formed by repeating the "竹" (zhú/bamboo) character from her name, showing intimacy and endearment.