

Chapter 15

The next day, when Yin Lingzhu came to the office, she discovered there was another person there besides Kong Murui.

"Long time no see." Wan Miaoyin stood up and said to Yin Lingzhu.

The morning sunlight streamed in, falling on Wan Miaoyin's white dress, gradually overlapping with the figure in Yin Lingzhu's memory.

Yin Lingzhu also smiled politely, "Long time no see."

Yang Daiyi looked at them in surprise and asked, "Did you know each other before?"

Wan Miaoyin didn't speak, smoothing her dress and sitting back in her original position.

Yin Lingzhu picked up on Yang Daiyi's words, "We were university classmates."

Yin Lingzhu didn't mention the specific relationship between them.

"Well then, before you came, Little Wan and Little Rui already got acquainted. Since you and Little Wan know each other, I won't waste words."

"I plan to have you three form a trio and debut as a group."

"Since Little Yin has shown better stage performance during this period, she'll serve as the leader. Do any of you have objections?"

All three remained silent, indicating agreement.

Yang Daiyi nodded with satisfaction, "Recently, a variety show has approached us. It's a music variety show, so prepare well."

"If there are no objections, Little Wan and Little Rui can go out first. Little Yin, stay behind. I need to speak with you privately."

After the two left, Yang Daiyi sat next to Yin Lingzhu.

"Your relationship with President Yan¹ isn't ordinary, is it?"

"I know you don't want to say much, but for the sake of your future, it's better not to offend President Yan."

Yin Lingzhu nodded to Yang Daiyi, "Don't worry, I understand. I definitely won't cause trouble for the company."

"Good that you understand. Alright, you can go now."

Yin Lingzhu went to the studio, where Kong Murui and Wan Miaoyin had already found the variety show.

"You're here. Come watch with us." Wan Miaoyin was the first to notice Yin Lingzhu, waving at her and patting the spot next to her.

Yin Lingzhu declined with a smile, "I'm not comfortable sitting too close to the screen. It's better if I sit behind you."

Yin Lingzhu chose the spot behind Wan Miaoyin.

Wan Miaoyin didn't say much and quietly watched the big screen in front.

The three didn't leave all day, carefully studying this variety show.

The variety show was called "Dream Music," inviting people with a little fame or no fame at all.

But this show had become very popular precisely because of its authenticity, becoming a sought-after program.

This show allowed both solo singing and group collaborations, but basically, the chosen songs were all current hits.

After discussing, the three finally decided on the number one song on the charts - a song about heartbreak.

Outside, the sky had turned completely dark. It was already 10 PM.

"Alright, everyone go back and rest well tonight. Tomorrow we'll start rehearsing." Yin Lingzhu said.

When Yin Lingzhu was about to leave, Wan Miaoyin called out to her.

"I want to talk with you privately."

Yin Lingzhu looked at Kong Murui, "Then you go to the hotel first, don't wait for me."

Kong Murui hadn't checked out since that day and was still staying in her room.

After Kong Murui left, Wan Miaoyin spoke.

"You don't need to worry, I stopped liking you long ago."

Wan Miaoyin obviously remembered Yin Lingzhu's previous avoidance behavior and explained.

Hearing her words, Yin Lingzhu felt a bit awkward - she had been somewhat presumptuous.

"Then let's have a pleasant cooperation in the future." Yin Lingzhu extended her hand.

Just as Wan Miaoyin grasped that hand, Yan Si suddenly pushed open the door.

Yan Si appeared as she did in public - with a three-part smile² before even speaking.

Seeing the two hands clasped together, the smile on Yan Si's face stiffened.

But immediately she adjusted her state, and no one noticed.

Yan Si knew about Wan Miaoyin - she had specifically investigated her.

Yan Si stared at Wan Miaoyin without speaking, but Wan Miaoyin could clearly feel that Yan Si didn't welcome her.

"Senior, I'll leave first." Wan Miaoyin bowed slightly to Yan Si and gently closed the door when she left.

Hearing the door close, Yan Si dropped the smile she had been maintaining.

"How did you get in touch with her?" Yan Si frowned and questioned.

Hearing her words, Yin Lingzhu couldn't help but want to laugh. What did Yan Si's tone mean?

"President Yan, in what capacity are you managing me now?" Yin Lingzhu said expressionlessly.

"The contract you signed doesn't allow artists to have relationships, and you just got divorced. Have you already found your next target?" Yan Si rapidly spat out a bunch of words.

After realizing what she had said, Yan Si felt somewhat regretful - she wasn't here to argue with Yin Lingzhu.

"She and I are now colleagues, and President Yan, you don't seem to have the right to criticize me?"

Yin Lingzhu thought of Si Xin, "At least I didn't cheat during marriage."

Yan Si looked at the cold appearance of the person in front of her, feeling a stab of pain in her heart.

Only then did she realize she couldn't accept Yin Lingzhu giving her a cold face.

"Nothing happened between Si Xin and me." Yan Si explained dryly.

Yin Lingzhu stared at Yan Si. The person in front of her looked exactly the same as a year ago, unchanged.

"Yan Si, I don't care anymore whether you have a relationship with her or not. Whether you get married to her or not, it has nothing to do with me."

"There's no relationship between us now."

With that, Yin Lingzhu didn't look at Yan Si's expression and walked toward the door.

The moment she turned around, she felt her wrist being grabbed. She looked back at Yan Si.

Yan Si lowered her head slightly and said quietly, "I was wrong."

Yin Lingzhu shook off Yan Si's hand, creating distance between them, crossing her arms, "You were wrong? Where exactly were you wrong?"

"I shouldn't have damaged your glands³. I shouldn't have acted recklessly just because you liked me." Tears flowed from Yan Si's eyes.

Yin Lingzhu looked at Yan Si with red eyes and couldn't help but freeze. She had never seen such a vulnerable side of Yan Si.

Her heart softened a bit. Someone of Yan Si's status was actually crying for her - did this mean Yan Si actually had feelings for her?

Her lips parted slightly, wanting to tell Yan Si to stop crying, but she suddenly realized Yan Si's crying looked somewhat familiar.

She thought about it in her mind and couldn't help but laugh.

The laughter carried desolation and mockery.

In a drama Yan Si had acted in, when her character hurt her lover and later apologized to the lover, it looked exactly the same as now, identical down to every detail.

"Yan Si, please let me go." Yin Lingzhu pleaded with Yan Si.

She didn't know why Yan Si wanted to entangle with her.

The despair in Yin Lingzhu's voice made Yan Si stop her tears.

"Yan Si, you don't know where you went wrong, do you?"

Hearing Yin Lingzhu's question, Yan Si hesitated for a moment, then nodded.

She really didn't know where she had gone wrong.

She thought that as long as she apologized, Yin Lingzhu would come back.

"Yan Si, why are you clinging to me?" Yin Lingzhu asked the question that had been puzzling her all this time.

Yan Si answered decisively, "I like you."

Time seemed to stop at this moment. The studio lights seemed too bright, somewhat dazzling.

Yin Lingzhu felt like the light was hurting her eyes, causing hallucinations.

Yan Si said she liked her - how was that possible?

She hadn't felt any of Yan Si's affection, not even a trace.

"Yan Si, you don't need to tell such lies. I have nothing left to give you now. You don't need to do this." Yin Lingzhu threw down these words and quickly left.

Yan Si reached out her hand again but couldn't hold onto anything.

¹ President Yan (晏總): Yang Daiyi is referring to Yan Si using her business title. In Chinese business culture, it's common to address someone by their title + surname.

² Three-part smile: A Chinese expression describing someone who has a gentle, practiced smile that appears before they even speak - indicating a polished, public persona.

³ Glands: Referring to the scent glands mentioned earlier in the story that are crucial for Alpha/Omega biology in this omegaverse setting. Yan Si had damaged Yin Lingzhu's glands through the pheromone extraction process.