

Chapter 32-2

After Yan Si left, she looked at her phone screen, her eyes full of coldness.

She had originally thought that although Si Xin had some problems with her conduct, she was serious about acting.

But looking at the message Director Zheng sent her, she realized how ridiculously wrong she had been.

[Replace Si Xin. You see which promising newcomer looks good, use her instead. I'll pay the penalty fees.]

[Also, I'll provide the funding for your next drama.]

Seeing the message Yan Si sent him, Director Zheng finally felt relieved of the frustration in his heart.

[Thank you for the trouble.]

Yan Si returned to the hospital room, originally wanting to tell her that she had resolved the Si Xin matter.

But before she could enter the room, she saw that Ming Qingyun was also inside.

Ming Qingyun was currently sitting beside Yin Lingzhu's bed, very close to Yin Lingzhu, almost face to face.

The two were acting very intimately, looking at a phone together.

Seeing this scene, Yan Si's eyebrow twitched, and she directly pushed open the door, "What are you doing?"

Seeing Yan Si enter, Yin Lingzhu spoke with some displeasure, "President Yan, didn't anyone ever tell you to knock?"

Hearing her say this, Ming Qingyun couldn't suppress the smile on her face. Taking advantage of the fact that Yin Lingzhu wasn't looking at her now, she smugly raised her eyebrows.

Yan Si noticed Ming Qingyun's action and looked at her angrily, "Miss Ming should pay attention to her identity. Getting so close to someone else's Alpha - if word gets out, it won't sound good."

The smugness on Ming Qingyun's face didn't change, "If it's Lingzhu, I'm willing."

Yan Si couldn't stand seeing her so happy, but with Yin Lingzhu here, she didn't dare say anything too harsh.

Yan Si snorted and turned to leave.

Yin Lingzhu looked at Ming Qingyun with slight apology, "Her brain just isn't normal. Don't mind her."

Ming Qingyun smiled and said, "It's fine. I've experienced even more serious misunderstandings."

With Yan Si's interruption, Yin Lingzhu's good mood was also gone.

"Let's watch this TV drama when we have time later." Yin Lingzhu closed her phone.

"Alright." Ming Qingyun said with slight regret, "When is Lingzhu planning to be discharged?"

"Tonight, I guess. I don't want to always be in the hospital." Yin Lingzhu said indifferently.

She had come to this hospital many times.

"Good. If Lingzhu needs it, I can find you a few teachers to guide you."

Yin Lingzhu was surprised by her overly enthusiastic attitude, but she felt embarrassed to refuse.

"Alright. If I need it, I'll definitely come find you." Yin Lingzhu looked at her and said.

Ming Qingyun sensed her politeness and distance, "Lingzhu doesn't need to be polite with me. I'd be very happy to help you."

Yin Lingzhu smiled without saying anything.

She always felt that Ming Qingyun's attitude toward her was too enthusiastic, making her somewhat uncomfortable.

"Well then, rest well. I won't disturb you anymore." Ming Qingyun looked at her, with a hint of reluctance hidden deep in her eyes.

That evening, Yin Lingzhu looked at the script in her hands, feeling somewhat devastated.

It was really so difficult. She already knew how everyone at the film crew would look at her tomorrow.

Just thinking about what would happen tomorrow made Yin Lingzhu curl her toes in embarrassment¹.

Having someone who had never acted before come and act - this was really making things difficult for her.

So Yin Lingzhu practiced the script all night. When she arrived at the film crew the next day, she had two dark circles under her eyes.

"Little Yin, I'm really sorry. The screenwriter has been changed, so we're going back to the original script." The director saw Yin Lingzhu and walked toward her from far away, speaking as he approached.

"Little Yin, your eyes?" When the director got closer to Yin Lingzhu and saw her face clearly, he was somewhat surprised.

Hearing the director say this, Yin Lingzhu stopped her hand that was about to cover a yawn, "What's wrong with my eyes?"

The director saw the tears in her eyes and the dark circles underneath, "You stayed up late last night, didn't you?"

Yin Lingzhu smiled slightly, "I did go to sleep a bit late last night."

The director patted Yin Lingzhu's shoulder, "Don't be nervous. In our film crew, you have many seniors. If you have any problems with acting, you can ask any of them."

Though you probably won't need to, since the movie queen² is right beside you.

The director thought to himself, while maintaining his smiling expression on the surface.

Footnotes:

¹ Curl her toes in embarrassment: A Chinese expression (脚趾抓地) that literally means "toes gripping the ground," describing the physical sensation of extreme embarrassment or secondhand embarrassment, similar to the English "cringe."

² Movie queen: In Chinese entertainment industry terminology, "影后" (yǐng hòu) refers to a Best Actress award winner or a highly acclaimed female actress, similar to how "movie queen" or "screen queen" might be used in English.