

Chapter 38-1

Hearing Yan Si's explanation, Yin Lingzhu found it ridiculous inside.

What did Yan Si mean by what she said?

"Testing? Yan Si, are you sick?" Yin Lingzhu said angrily.

Yin Lingzhu instantly felt that everything was extremely absurd.

"Yan Si, even if you wanted to find an excuse, this excuse is too low-level." Yin Lingzhu looked at her, her chest rising and falling rapidly from anger.

Yan Si also knew she was in the wrong and didn't dare look at her.

"I know I was wrong." Yan Si's voice was very small, filled with deep remorse.

The assistant saw Yan Si like this - her face showed no change, but inside she was exclaiming that she had gotten some gossip about her boss.

She had followed Yan Si for so many years, and this was the first time she had seen Yan Si show such an expression.

She looked at Yin Lingzhu with considerable admiration.

Yin Lingzhu was currently blinded by anger, completely unlike her previous calm demeanor.

"Yan Si, I saw her come out of your office with my own eyes before."

Yin Lingzhu glared at Yan Si, questioning with her mouth.

"At that time, her lips had been kissed by someone, and her dress was wrinkled too. President Yan wouldn't say it was someone else who did this in your office, would you?"

Yan Si lowered her head even deeper. "I knew you were coming, so I specifically had her do that to herself."

The air fell into dead silence.

Si Xin stood to the side, not saying anything.

Yin Lingzhu laughed in extreme anger. "Yan Si, if you're sick, go see a doctor. Don't bother me."

Yin Lingzhu wanted to leave, but Yan Si grabbed her hem.

"Wait a moment, there's also that text message."

Hearing her mention a text message, Yin Lingzhu was a bit confused and didn't react immediately.

Seeing Yin Lingzhu didn't respond, Yan Si raised her head and instantly caught the confusion on Yin Lingzhu's face.

She licked her dry lips, her heart beating rapidly.

But she also understood that if she didn't speak now, there would be very few opportunities left for her to explain later.

"It was the night you signed the divorce agreement, the text message Si Xin sent."

After Yan Si's reminder, those words immediately surfaced in Yin Lingzhu's mind.

Yin Lingzhu pulled her hem from Yan Si's hands.

Yan Si's hands, now empty, paused in the air for a second before she pulled them back.

Yin Lingzhu looked at her, her eyes full of thick mockery.

"Yan Si, you're not going to say that text message was also something you had Si Xin send, are you?"

Under Yin Lingzhu's gaze, Yan Si slowly nodded.

But as if thinking of something, she quickly said, "I didn't know the apartment would have a power outage."

But Yin Lingzhu didn't want to listen anymore.

"Yan Si, if you're sick, go get treatment. Don't bother me."

The anger in Yin Lingzhu's heart overwhelmed everything. She unlocked the door and quickly left.

The assistant originally wanted to stop Yin Lingzhu, but she saw the look Yan Si gave her and understood.

She stood to the side without making any movement.

Seeing Yin Lingzhu leave, Si Xin said hurriedly, "President Yan, can I leave now?"

Yan Si glanced at her, pondered for a few seconds in her mind, then nodded.

Seeing Yan Si's movement, Si Xin was overjoyed and quickly left.

After Si Xin left, the assistant walked to Yan Si's side.

She bent down and asked in confusion, "Just letting Si Xin leave that simply?"

"She did hurt Miss Yin's heart after all."

Yan Si was looking at the wound on her knee. Hearing the assistant's words, she shook her head.

"I just let her leave, but I didn't say I wouldn't take action against her. You know what to do."

"I don't want to see her again, anywhere."

The assistant nodded in understanding.

Seeing that Yan Si had no other instructions, the assistant immediately left.

She knew that Yan Si didn't want her here right now either.

Soon, only Yan Si was left in the room.

The wound on her knee wasn't serious to begin with - she had deceived Yin Lingzhu once again.

How could a simple fall make it impossible to walk?

She smiled bitterly, her finger gently touching the wound, then instantly pulling away.

There was a bit of white ointment on her fingertip.

Looking at the ointment, the light in her eyes flickered.

That previous thought came up again.

Yin Lingzhu returned to her hotel room, as if she had lost all the strength in her body, and heavily collapsed onto the sofa.

She couldn't understand what significance there was in what Yan Si had done.

Regarding what Yan Si had done.

Yin Lingzhu felt it was absurd inside, but she strangely believed that with Yan Si's personality, she really might do this kind of thing.

Testing - how ridiculous.

Yin Lingzhu's lips curved into a smile, showing no readable emotion.

If it had been a few months ago, when she had just signed the divorce agreement, she might have wavered because of Yan Si's explanation.

Would passing the test mean she could like me just a little bit?

As for her now, why would she take another fall?

Yin Lingzhu suddenly felt a bit tired. She lay down on the sofa and slowly fell asleep.

That evening, Yin Lingzhu felt thirsty. She opened her eyes, and moonlight streamed through the window into the room, adding coldness to it.

Only then did Yin Lingzhu realize she had fallen asleep on the sofa, so the curtains weren't drawn.

She rubbed her aching neck and, by the bright moonlight, turned on the lights.

After pouring herself a glass of water, Yin Lingzhu's hand was still on her neck.

But even after drinking the water, Yin Lingzhu's hand hadn't moved away from her neck area.

She didn't think much of it, assuming it was because she had slept on the sofa in the wrong position, causing neck pain.

She quickly washed up and immediately went to bed.

Tomorrow she still had scenes to film.

Even though what Yan Si said had affected her mood, she couldn't lose sleep over it.

Yin Lingzhu placed her hand on the back of her neck and, with the help of drowsiness, slowly fell asleep.