

Chapter 45-2

Yan Si gripped the two suppressants tightly.

She also had suppressants in her room, which she had prepared for Yin Lingzhu.

Yan Si planned to return to her room, retrieve the suppressants she had prepared, and replace these two.

Just as she was about to leave, Yin Lingzhu suddenly grabbed her wrist.

This startled her, and the suppressants in her hand fell to the ground.

The Omega pheromones hidden inside scattered and drifted in the air.

Yan Si thought "Oh no" to herself.

Before she could think of a countermeasure, she felt the hand gripping her wrist suddenly tighten with great force.

She didn't resist, nor did she want to resist.

The moment she felt pheromones being injected into her neck, a drop of saline solution slid down from the corner of Yan Si's eye.

Yan Si's lips trembled, and it took several attempts before she could make a sound.

"Do you still like me?"

Yan Si hugged Yin Lingzhu. Her voice was very hoarse, carrying fragility and despair.

And hope that was deeply suppressed by despair.

But that little bit of hope was extremely weak, almost nonexistent.

The unconscious Yin Lingzhu naturally couldn't answer this question.

Yan Si held Yin Lingzhu tighter.

As if trying to merge Yin Lingzhu into her own bones and blood.

The force was so great that even the unconscious Yin Lingzhu frowned.

So the teeth biting into Yan Si's neck went even deeper.

Between the two of them, it was unclear who was tormenting whom.

This continued until midnight.

This absurd accident finally ended.

Unlike the unconscious Yin Lingzhu, Yan Si had remained awake the entire time, enduring everything bit by bit.

All the pleasure and pain.

Yan Si propped herself up and stood by the bed, looking at Yin Lingzhu's sleeping face.

Just like she used to do before.

Yan Si went to her hotel room to get suppressants, emptied one of them, and made it look like Yin Lingzhu had drunk it.

The next day, Yin Lingzhu covered her head and groggily opened her eyes.

The first thing she saw was an empty suppressant on the bedside table, and her heart immediately skipped a beat.

She couldn't have drunk that suppressant, could she?

But her sharp eyes noticed that under the empty suppressant, there was also a note.

She pulled out the note.

The handwriting was Yan Si's - she was certain of this.

【I left you four suppressants, enough for next month too.】

Yin Lingzhu gripped the note tightly until it became wrinkled.

Only then did she suddenly come to her senses and quickly let go.

She now almost wished Yan Si hadn't come last night.

It would have been better if she never knew about this.

With Yan Si helping her like this, she owed Yan Si a huge favor.

How was she supposed to repay this?

Yin Lingzhu felt somewhat troubled. How had she and Yan Si become so entangled that they couldn't separate?

Yin Lingzhu sighed. Just as she was about to get out of bed, she suddenly smelled a familiar rose scent.

Yin Lingzhu sniffed carefully and found that the most concentrated area was on the other side of her bed.

The hotel rooms all had double beds.

But she didn't think much of it. Perhaps Yan Si had accidentally gotten the scent on herself last night.

Thinking this way, Yin Lingzhu still changed to new bedsheets.

When Yin Lingzhu arrived at the film crew, it was already past ten o'clock.

There were only two hours left until the crew's lunch break, so this counted as seriously being late.

She had already prepared to be scolded by the director.

But when she reached the director's side, things weren't as she had imagined.

The director's scolding didn't come. Instead, he looked at her with concern.

"Little Yin, didn't I tell you that if you're not feeling well, you don't need to come?"

Yin Lingzhu was a bit confused, and the director's next words clarified things for her.

"Sisi already told me this morning that you weren't feeling well. You really are something, still insisting on coming."

Yin Lingzhu smiled. "I'm much better now. I was just afraid that my scenes might delay the crew's filming schedule."

Hearing her say this, the director seemed to remember something and slapped his forehead. "Oh my."

"What's wrong? Is there something?" Yin Lingzhu looked at the director's action and asked with some confusion.

The director met her gaze, his weathered eyes showing a bit of embarrassment.

"Little Yin, there are major changes to your script. You might have more scenes coming up."

Hearing him say this, Yin Lingzhu replied, "Director, don't worry. I can handle it."

Yin Lingzhu appeared very confident.

Her confidence also infected the director, who patted Yin Lingzhu's shoulder heavily.

"That's the spirit! I knew you could do it."

After the director left, Yin Lingzhu rubbed the spot where the director had patted her.

Just as she was massaging her shoulder, she suddenly saw Yan Si.

Yin Lingzhu immediately forgot about her sore shoulder.

Footnotes:

None needed for this chapter.