

Chapter 46-2

As soon as she entered, Yin Lingzhu discovered there wasn't a single customer inside.

She immediately knew the answer—Ming Qingyun had reserved the entire place.

"Please sit." Ming Qingyun pulled out a chair for Yin Lingzhu and said.

Yin Lingzhu's words of refusal couldn't come out in time before being blocked by Ming Qingyun's actions, so she could only sit down.

"You came to find me—is there something you need?" Yin Lingzhu asked directly, her brow slightly furrowed.

Ming Qingyun seemed not to notice Yin Lingzhu's displeasure and took out a drink menu, handing it to Yin Lingzhu.

"Would you like to drink something?"

Yin Lingzhu couldn't directly refuse her gesture, so she could only take the menu, but she didn't order anything to drink.

She pressed the drink menu under her hand.

"Does Miss Ming have something to discuss?" Yin Lingzhu repeated her question again.

This time, Ming Qingyun could only reveal her purpose.

Last night, when Yan Si informed Yin Lingzhu that there was a problem with the inhibitors, she also learned that there was a traitor among her subordinates.

The matter had been exposed.

Thinking of this, a flash of coldness passed through Yan Si's<sup>1</sup> eyes.

But she didn't have time to deal with that person right now. The urgent matter at hand was still resolving things on Yin Lingzhu's side.

A hint of sadness flashed in her eyes.

"Is Lingzhu being so formal with me now?" Ming Qingyun looked at her pitifully.

Someone who usually always appeared smiling was now showing such a pitiful expression.

It was quite impactful.

But this had no effect on Yin Lingzhu. Yan Si had shown her plenty of pitiful expressions before.

She had long since become immune.

"If Miss Ming has something to say, please say it now. I'm in a hurry to get back," Yin Lingzhu said without answering her question.

Ming Qingyun lowered her eyes. "I only just learned about this matter."

She took out her phone, which showed a video.

As she pressed the play button, the screen immediately came to life.

This video was exactly the one Yan Si had played last night.

After the entire video finished playing, Ming Qingyun looked at her.

"Actually, the video isn't what you think it is."

Seeing that Yin Lingzhu had no reaction, Ming Qingyun continued.

"The male voice in the video is my doctor who specializes in preparing inhibitors."

"You needed the inhibitors urgently at the time, and he didn't want to make them, so I had to speak that way."

After hearing her explanation, Yin Lingzhu straightened up.

"If Miss Ming has nothing else to discuss, I'll take my leave first."

Ming Qingyun indeed had nothing else to say now.

She had waited all morning just to explain this matter.

Yin Lingzhu returned to the hotel and saw the inhibitors on the table.

Her gaze was profound.

As for Ming Qingyun's explanation, she actually believed it in her heart.

Because she couldn't find any reason why Ming Qingyun would want to harm her.

Moreover, the two inhibitors Ming Qingyun had given her weren't on the table.

She had searched through the drawers too, but they weren't there either.

It seemed Yan Si had taken them away.

She had no evidence now to directly state that those two inhibitors were problematic.

That address of "Miss Ming" was just to remind Ming Qingyun that their relationship wasn't that close.

Her guard had always been very strong, and this was displayed thoroughly with Ming Qingyun.

The most thorough time she had given her heart away was also the time she was hurt the deepest.

Yan Si.

Yin Lingzhu silently recited her name.

This person had added another layer to the defenses around her heart.

---

In the afternoon, Yin Lingzhu received the new script.

In the original script, the scholar was a devoted supporting female character who even died for the female lead.

But in the revised script, the biggest change was in the romantic storyline.

She saw the scholar resolve all misunderstandings, successfully marry the princess, and live sweetly and happily together with the princess.

Yin Lingzhu's expression became somewhat subtle.

This script didn't seem like it was written by the screenwriter, but rather by a certain someone.

Yin Lingzhu raised her eyebrows and flipped the script to the first page.

She had just roughly skimmed through it earlier and was preparing to read it properly when the door was knocked.

Yin Lingzhu opened the door to find Yan Si standing outside, holding a script in her hands.

---

Footnotes:

<sup>1</sup> There appears to be a narrative inconsistency in the original text where it refers to "Yan Si's eyes" when the context suggests it should be Ming Qingyun's perspective. This has been preserved as written in the original Chinese text.