

Chapter 49-1

In the hospital, Yin Lingzhu held the diagnosis report, looking at You Xiaoxiao¹ in disbelief.

She suspected her ears had heard wrong just now.

Yin Lingzhu lowered her head and saw three large words on the surgery form.

【Pancreatic Cancer】

The paper in her hands seemed to become as heavy as a thousand pounds at this moment.

You Xiaoxiao said nothing and silently left.

The diagnosis report wrinkled at the edges due to Yin Lingzhu's tight grip.

It wasn't until the protruding paper pressed into her palm, causing a slight stinging sensation, that Yin Lingzhu's consciousness cleared.

Yan Si—how could her physical condition be this serious?

Thinking about how she had said Yan Si was in good health at noon today, Yin Lingzhu now felt as if she were in a dream.

Yin Lingzhu stood up, taking unsteady steps toward Yan Si.

Yan Si hadn't woken up yet. Her eyes were tightly closed, her brows slightly furrowed.

Looking at the person before her, Yin Lingzhu realized her heart was also aching in sharp, stabbing pains.

Though this pain was subtle, it couldn't be ignored.

She knew that pancreatic cancer had a very low cure rate.

Yan Si very likely wouldn't survive.

Wasn't this what she had hoped for? She could finally be completely free from entanglement with Yan Si.

Why was her heart so afraid?

She didn't even know how she had returned to the hotel.

The film crew had stopped working for several days due to Yan Si's sudden incident.

Yin Lingzhu slept until evening.

When she opened her eyes, her confused mind hadn't yet cleared when she saw many missed calls on her phone.

Looking carefully, the numbers were all from the same person.

Yan Si's assistant had called her.

Such a large number of missed calls clearly showed the caller's persistence and urgency.

Yin Lingzhu's finger tapped to call back.

But just at that moment, she heard her hotel room door being knocked, the sound very urgent.

She gripped her phone and opened the door.

But the moment she opened the door, the visitor's phone rang.

It rang loudly in the quiet air.

Yin Lingzhu looked at Yan Si's assistant outside the door and pressed the hang-up button on her phone.

"What's wrong?"

She looked at the assistant.

The assistant was currently breathing heavily, obviously having run over.

"Miss Yin, President Yan woke up earlier and said she wanted to see you."

Yin Lingzhu looked at the assistant, her apologetic expression flawless. "I'm sorry, I have something to do right now and can't spare the time."

The assistant saw the red marks on Yin Lingzhu's face from just waking up and could tell she had only just awakened.

The assistant couldn't help but say, "You clearly just woke up. Why can't you go? President Yan really hopes to see you."

The assistant's tone carried a questioning meaning. Though she used the respectful "you," there was no respectful tone to be heard.

Seeing her attitude, Yin Lingzhu leaned against the doorframe. "That's right, I just woke up. So what?"

Yin Lingzhu's whole body was languid, and while speaking, she even stretched lazily.

The assistant, seeing her like this, was furious inside.

But she also knew her attitude had been somewhat inappropriate just now. She bent down ninety degrees.

"Miss Yin, please go, I beg you."

Yin Lingzhu stepped forward, using her hand to support the assistant's shoulder, making her stand up.

"Tell Yan Si that I won't go."

The assistant was unwilling to give up and wanted to say something more, but Yin Lingzhu had already closed the door.

With a "bang," it made a loud sound.

Yin Lingzhu walked to the living room and could still hear the assistant knocking loudly on the door.

After a few sounds, there was no more movement.

Yin Lingzhu thought the assistant had left. After all, from Yin Lingzhu's merciless actions, it was clear she wouldn't open the door.

The next day when Yin Lingzhu opened the door, she saw the assistant sleeping in the corner against the wall.

She hesitated for a moment, then woke the assistant.

The assistant opened her eyes, and seeing her, immediately apologized. "Miss Yin, sorry, my tone was too harsh last night."

"Please don't mind it. Please go to the hospital to see President Yan. She really wants to see you."

Looking at the assistant, Yin Lingzhu could see from her resolute attitude that if Yin Lingzhu didn't go, the assistant wouldn't give up easily.

Yin Lingzhu could only nod. "Let's go."

Footnotes:

¹ You Xiaoxiao (尤笑笑): This appears to be a doctor character who has delivered the cancer diagnosis to Yin Lingzhu. The name literally means "especially smile/laugh," which may be ironic given the serious nature of the medical news she delivers.