

Chapter 49-2

When they arrived at the hospital, Yan Si on the hospital bed still hadn't woken up.

Unlike yesterday's Yan Si, today she looked even more haggard, and her face also had a breathing mask on it.

Yin Lingzhu was a bit surprised. She had slept late last night and only woke up around eleven today.

Yan Si still hadn't woken up by now.

Ming Qingyun<sup>1</sup> was in her office and had also learned about Yan Si's health problems.

In her heart, she carefully calculated Yan Si's current situation.

The signing pen spun rapidly in her hand.

Finally, she put down the pen in her hand, stood up, and rushed to Yan Si's hospital.

In the hospital room, Yin Lingzhu looked at the assistant.

"She still hasn't woken up?"

The assistant shook her head. "No, President Yan only woke up once. First she said she wanted to see you, then she gave instructions about some company matters."

Yin Lingzhu looked at Yan Si with worry, but after becoming aware of the feelings in her heart, she immediately restrained herself.

She put on an expression showing no emotional waves.

But the expression she had just revealed was still seen by the assistant and the newcomer.

Ming Qingyun, who had just arrived, darkened her gaze and walked into the hospital room.

The assistant first noticed Ming Qingyun's arrival.

She called out "President Ming."

Only then did Yin Lingzhu realize another person had come to the hospital room.

Before she arrived, many people had already come to the hospital room, mostly people from the film crew.

Fortunately, Yan Si's room was a VIP ward. The room was large enough that it didn't seem crowded.

Seeing Ming Qingyun standing beside her, Yin Lingzhu moved aside.

She distanced herself a bit from her.

Ming Qingyun noticed her behavior but said nothing.

She looked at Yan Si with worried eyes. "President Yan's health isn't seriously affected, is it?"

The news of Yan Si's cancer was known to only a few people. Ming Qingyun didn't know either.

The assistant showed a standard smile. "President Yan hasn't been resting well these past few days. She'll be fine after resting for a few days."

Ming Qingyun looked at the assistant. She knew the assistant wasn't telling the truth, but she also knew she couldn't get anything out of her.

She still needed to find someone to investigate this carefully.

"That's good. Many people are very worried about President Yan's sudden collapse. I'm also asking on their behalf."

Ming Qingyun smiled. No one present knew how many people believed her.

Yan Si's eyelashes trembled slightly. When she opened her eyes, she happened to meet the gaze of Yin Lingzhu, who had been watching her.

Yan Si wanted to show a smile, but after her mouth corners moved several times, she didn't succeed.

She didn't even have the strength to speak now, her voice very small.

"I'm very happy you came."

Looking at her condition, Yin Lingzhu lowered her eyes, her black pupils hiding all emotions. "Your assistant's work attitude is too good, that's why I came."

Seeing her gaze shift away, Yan Si said to the people around, "Lingzhu and I have some things to talk about. Please go out first."

Everyone in the room was sharp, especially since Yan Si had spoken so clearly.

Ming Qingyun was the last to leave. She whispered in Yin Lingzhu's ear, "I'll wait for you outside."

Ming Qingyun's identity was also recognized by some people, so the moment she walked out the door, people started chatting with her.

In the room, Yan Si looked at Yin Lingzhu.

"Can you stay with me a bit longer?"

Yan Si spoke almost in a whisper.

Seeing her weak appearance, Yin Lingzhu couldn't bear to refuse.

She nodded.

She casually found a chair to sit on, at a distance from Yan Si's hospital bed that was neither close nor far.

Seeing her choice, Yan Si felt hurt inside.

"Can you sit closer to me?" Yan Si looked at Yin Lingzhu pitifully.

Yin Lingzhu shook her head.

"I'm quite comfortable sitting here, and I can still get some sun."

Seeing this, Yan Si couldn't say anything.

She quietly looked at Yin Lingzhu, her gaze deep, like the darkness revealed after light had shattered.

She stared intently at Yin Lingzhu, as if wanting to place Yin Lingzhu deep in her memory.

Time passed minute by minute. Sunlight from outside streamed in, creating quite a peaceful scene.

Yan Si's body was better than when she first woke up, but her speaking volume was still not loud.

However, Yin Lingzhu could hear clearly.

Yan Si's voice softly spoke up, "Do you still hate me very much?"

Hearing this question, Yin Lingzhu was first stunned, then smiled.

But there was no emotion in the smile—it was just polite toward the outside world.

"I don't hate you, and I don't like you either." Yin Lingzhu said honestly.

Previously, regarding Yan Si, her heart held more annoyance than hatred, but now...

She looked at the person lying on the hospital bed. After learning that Yan Si had cancer, the emotions in her heart seemed to suddenly empty out.

The feelings of annoyance and hatred seemed to be suppressed by another emotion.

Yin Lingzhu didn't know what that emotion was at this moment.

Yan Si's voice quickly spoke up again, "If I really died, would you be sad?"

Hearing this question, Yin Lingzhu suddenly turned her head and met Yan Si's gaze.

Yin Lingzhu's heart trembled, "Everyone would be sad."

Looking at her, Yin Lingzhu added another sentence, "Including me. The entertainment industry losing a movie queen—that would make anyone sad."

Hearing Yin Lingzhu's answer, Yan Si seemed very excited, her voice even getting a bit louder.

"You know that's not what I mean."

Yin Lingzhu naturally knew what Yan Si meant, but she instinctively wanted to avoid it. Even if she couldn't avoid it, delaying it would be fine.

"I don't understand." Yin Lingzhu looked toward the window like she was escaping.

But Yan Si wasn't willing to let her go. "I want to know, if I died, would your sadness be the sadness for a lover, or ordinary sadness?"

The light in Yin Lingzhu's eyes flickered. She placed her gaze on Yan Si.

"Ordinary."

Yin Lingzhu quickly spat out two words and hurriedly walked toward the outside.

Outside the hospital room, the moment she closed the door, she let out a big breath.

The uncomfortable feeling in her heart also lessened considerably.

Regarding Yan Si's question, she actually couldn't give an answer right away.

Were those two words "ordinary" really what she thought in her heart?

Yin Lingzhu didn't know about this either.

She leaned against the door, calming her emotions. When she felt a bit better, she noticed there were so many people standing at the door.

However, these people were all surrounding Ming Qingyun and hadn't noticed her.

Perhaps some had noticed, but in their hearts, Ming Qingyun's value was higher than Yin Lingzhu's.

Yin Lingzhu walked around them, heading outside the hospital ward.

Ming Qingyun immediately broke free from the crowd and walked behind Yin Lingzhu.

"Do you really think Yan Si is sick?"

Ming Qingyun stopped Yin Lingzhu and spoke urgently.

Yin Lingzhu's footsteps didn't slow down. "What do you mean?"

"Yan Si has a private doctor at home, and someone who has medical checkups once a month—how could her health become this serious?"

---

Footnotes:

<sup>1</sup> Ming Qingyun (明青雲): A character who appears to be a business rival or someone with complicated feelings toward both Yan Si and Yin Lingzhu. The name literally means "bright blue clouds."

