

Chapter 5

Yin Lingzhu's finger swiped across her phone screen, filtering through lawyer information.

She finally chose a female lawyer with the highest success rate.

At X City's largest law firm.

Two lawyers looked at the information on the lobby screen, chatting as they returned to their workstations.

"Someone placed another order with her."

"I saw it too. She's really ruthless with herself. How much did she earn from the last case?"

"Not sure, but probably this much." The speaking lawyer held up five fingers.

"Wow, she really doesn't earn little."

The two returned to their workstations and saw Ji Jingrong nearby, so they tactfully closed their mouths.

Ji Jingrong heard their conversation but didn't pay attention, seriously communicating with her client.

"Do you have issues with the contract?" She typed on the keyboard, calculating the fee for this case in her mind.

Yin Lingzhu had just sent her requirements when she saw the reply message, couldn't help but marvel at this person's speed.

"Yes, and I have recordings and videos where he personally admitted that my contract was altered." Yin Lingzhu typed.

"Good, if you have concrete video evidence, it's very advantageous for you."

"If you have time, we can meet in person to discuss the key information for this case."

Yin Lingzhu looked at the content in the chat box and thought for a moment.

She currently had to resolve the contract issue and couldn't drag down Yan Si.

"Then let's meet at your law firm in half an hour."

It was now eight in the morning. If she was quick, perhaps she could have lunch with the movie queen.

"Alright."

The law firm was in the center of X City, and Yin Lingzhu's current apartment was also in X City.

In just ten minutes, Yin Lingzhu arrived at Ji Jingrong's law firm.

"Hello, I'm at the entrance of your law firm. Could you come down to meet me?"

Yin Lingzhu looked at the building in front of her - twenty to thirty floors. She didn't think she could accurately find the office.

Ji Jingrong saw this message and immediately left.

As soon as she came downstairs, she noticed Yin Lingzhu standing at the entrance. This person was too eye-catching.

Yin Lingzhu's eyes were half-curved, her clear black pupils pure and untainted, her lips naturally smiling, showing a perfect arc. Her cheeks were rosy white, appearing alluring.

She extended her hand, indicating her location. Her wrist was fair and slender, very fragile-looking.

Yin Lingzhu also noticed her.

The person who came out wore a black suit, her hair simply tied in a ponytail. Her skin was wheat-colored, her eyes determined, her whole being radiating a decisive temperament.

"Hello, are you Lawyer Ji?" Yin Lingzhu actively walked toward her and asked.

"My surname is Ji. Are you Yin Lingzhu?"

"Yes, that's me. Can we go upstairs to talk? It's getting a bit hot." Yin Lingzhu's clothes were a little thick.

No wonder her face was so red.

Ji Jingrong thought this and nodded at her. "Yes, follow me."

The two went to Ji Jingrong's office. Yin Lingzhu took out the contract and recording device she brought and handed them to Ji Jingrong.

Time slowly passed as Ji Jingrong reviewed the documents.

"Your chances of winning are very high." Ji Jingrong said to Yin Lingzhu after listening to the recording.

"So for my breach of contract penalty, I only need to pay one million?" Yin Lingzhu actually had confidence in the odds she mentioned.

"Actually, you don't need to pay a single cent." Ji Jingrong smiled slightly. "This contract is meaningless to you."

"If you want, you can use the evidence in your hands to demand compensation from the management company."

Ji Jingrong said this with a confident expression on her face.

When it came to claiming assets, she was quite skilled.

Yin Lingzhu hadn't expected this result. She thought the best outcome would be paying one million and then suing the company for contract tampering.

"Then I'll trouble Lawyer Ji."

"I can give you half of whatever compensation the company pays."

With Yin Lingzhu saying this, her and Ji Jingrong's interests were now tied together.

"No problem. I'll definitely do my utmost to secure the maximum compensation for Miss Yin."

Ji Jingrong's eyes were determined, her whole being radiating an aura of certain victory.

A deal was struck.

"Lawyer Ji, if there's nothing else, I'll leave." Yin Lingzhu looked at her phone - it was already past eleven.

She still had to go home and wait for Yan Si.

Thinking about being able to see Yan Si at noon, Yin Lingzhu couldn't help but feel happy.

"Of course, Miss Yin, be careful on the road." After a polite farewell, Ji Jingrong began searching through books. This case must be completed successfully.

On her way home, Yin Lingzhu sent Yan Si a message asking what she wanted to eat for lunch.

After waiting a while and seeing that Yan Si hadn't replied, she walked around near home, familiarizing herself with the area around the house.

She called this apartment home.

After finishing filming, Yan Si picked up her phone and saw a text message. Her pale fingers lightly tapped, replying with a few words.

"I won't be coming back to the apartment for lunch."

But not knowing what Yan Si thought of, she sent another message.

"I'll come back in the evening."

Yin Lingzhu saw these two messages, especially the second one, and was so happy her tail could practically wag.

"Then what would you like to eat tonight? I can buy it for you." Yin Lingzhu quickly sent a message.

Yan Si saw the word 'buy' and frowned.

"Anything is fine."

She sent three words.

Yin Lingzhu's gaze fixed on 'anything is fine.' She didn't know what to do next.

Yin Lingzhu thought for a while, then sent You Xiaoxiao a message asking what Yan Si usually liked to eat.

You Xiaoxiao was specially hired by the hospital. With her unusual status, except for extremely difficult cases, people generally wouldn't seek her out.

She was listlessly organizing the consultation room when her phone rang. She picked it up and saw Yin Lingzhu's message.

"She doesn't have any particular favorites. Just don't make it too strong-tasting."

You Xiaoxiao replied to Yin Lingzhu after thinking it over.

Tsk tsk, yesterday she swore she'd never marry, today she's asking what she likes to eat. Yan Si's charm is still so great.

After thanking her, Yin Lingzhu began checking restaurants in the area one by one.

No to those too far from home, no to unsanitary ones, no to those with flavors too strong.

After Yin Lingzhu's screening, she selected three restaurants and pre-ordered some dishes, planning to pick them up personally in the evening.

All afternoon, Yin Lingzhu's heart was tense and anxious.

Under Yin Lingzhu's anticipation, night fell.

At eight o'clock, she sent Yan Si a message asking what time she'd return, getting the answer of around nine.

She joyfully went downstairs and brought the pre-ordered food up to the room.

She considered that Yan Si didn't want others to know about their relationship, so she didn't let the staff come up.

Also, because she was afraid that carrying too much food at once might cause her to accidentally spill it.

Yin Lingzhu went downstairs, got food, came upstairs - running back and forth five or six times before bringing all the food up.

She lay against the window, trying to see people below from the twenty-third floor clearly.

"Click—" The door was opened from outside.

Yin Lingzhu heard the sound and came to the living room. Seeing Yan Si return, she wanted to take the bag from her hands.

But Yan Si dodged away.

Yin Lingzhu's hand paused in mid-air, then she naturally withdrew it as if nothing had happened.

"What did you buy to eat today?" Yan Si hung her bag on the coat rack and asked Yin Lingzhu.

Yin Lingzhu quickly walked to the table and began listing the dish names one by one.

Yan Si noticed that these dishes were all light.

"I specifically asked Xiaoxiao." Yin Lingzhu understood the confusion in Yan Si's eyes and proactively explained.

"Mm, let's eat." Yan Si said flatly.

Seeing she wasn't happy, Yin Lingzhu asked carefully, "Don't you like it?"

"I like it. Let's eat together." Yan Si said with her mouth, but her face was still cold.

"Oh." Yin Lingzhu obediently sat down, not daring to raise her head, picking up chopsticks to only eat the dishes in front of her.

So she didn't notice that although Yan Si's chopsticks were moving, she wasn't actually putting much food in her mouth.

This meal felt torturous for Yin Lingzhu. She didn't know what she had done wrong.

Seeing Yan Si put down her chopsticks, she also put down hers.

"Are you finished eating?" Yin Lingzhu asked.

Seeing Yan Si nod, she got up to clear the dishes and prepare to wash them in the kitchen.

"The kitchen has a dishwasher." Yan Si saw Yin Lingzhu preparing to wash by hand and proactively reminded her.

Hearing Yan Si's words, Yin Lingzhu looked around the kitchen and indeed found the machine.

She didn't dare look at Yan Si, burying her head as she put the bowls and plates into it one by one.

After finishing everything, Yin Lingzhu saw Yan Si in the living room and couldn't help asking her question.

"Don't you like today's food?"

Yan Si was concentrating on reading her script and unconsciously spoke her true thoughts: "I like home-cooked food, not bought food."

Hearing this reason, Yin Lingzhu felt relieved.

"Um, You Xiaoxiao said your heat period¹ is in the next few days." In her relaxed state, Yin Lingzhu said what she had been thinking about all afternoon.

Hearing this, Yan Si put down the script in her hands. "What, you want to mark me?"

Hearing her say this, Yin Lingzhu's face reddened again.

"The contract also mentions it." Yin Lingzhu's voice was small.

Yin Lingzhu's heart was extremely chaotic. She clearly knew that Yan Si didn't like her, but she really, really liked Yan Si.

Yan Si was a few centimeters shorter than Yin Lingzhu. Even with Yin Lingzhu's head lowered, she could see Yin Lingzhu's expression.

Noticing the struggle in her eyes, Yan Si pretended not to notice.

"After washing up, come to my room." Yan Si dropped this sentence and gracefully went to her own room.

Hearing that sentence, Yin Lingzhu's brain exploded with a 'boom.'

She patted her face to clear her head.

She walked into the bathroom with the same hand and foot coordination². Inside, there was actually a set of sleepwear - white and thin.

She dawdled inside for half an hour before coming out, the white clothes covering everything that might arouse imagination.

Yin Lingzhu stood at Yan Si's door, pacing back and forth, not knowing how to knock.

"Come in."

Hearing this sentence, Yin Lingzhu's hand pushed open the door.

After Yin Lingzhu entered the room, Yan Si came to stand in front of her, fingers trailing across her collarbone and shoulder, then walked to the bathroom.

Yin Lingzhu's body stiffened, feeling the warmth of fingertips. The places that were touched seemed to have electric currents, sending tingling sensations to her limbs.

She understood about marking and knew where the rose fragrance came from.

Yan Si came out of the bathroom after washing, entered the bedroom, and directly turned off the room's lights.

Seeing her turn off the lights, fear couldn't help but emerge from within Yin Lingzhu.

"Could you please turn on the lights? I'm a little afraid of the dark." Yin Lingzhu asked Yan Si tremblingly.

Yan Si was very familiar with the room layout. Using the faint moonlight, she pushed Yin Lingzhu down onto the bed.

Hearing the Alpha say this, she pressed her index finger to her lips. "Shh, don't speak. I'm here."

Yin Lingzhu was enveloped in Yan Si's presence, the fragrance gradually eroding her brain.

Half-dreaming and half-awake, she vaguely bit the place where the rose scent was most intense.

Footnotes: ¹ Heat period (发情期) - In Omegaverse/ABO dynamics, this refers to the recurring biological cycle when Omegas experience heightened sexual desire and fertility, typically requiring an Alpha's pheromones or marking for relief.

² Same hand and foot coordination (同手同脚) - A Chinese idiom describing awkward movement where someone moves the same-side hand and foot together instead of opposite sides, indicating nervousness or confusion.