

Chapter 51-2

When Yin Lingzhu finished washing the dishes and came out, she saw Yan Si holding her phone, standing blankly in place, not knowing what she was thinking about.

Yin Lingzhu walked to Yan Si's side and gently patted her shoulder.

Seeing Yan Si's body tremble and look at her with confusion, Yin Lingzhu explained: "Did something happen? I saw your complexion looked a bit off."

Yan Si shook her head and turned off her phone.

"The hospital said they want me to come in for a body checkup tomorrow."

Yin Lingzhu felt relieved—at least it wasn't bad news.

Yin Lingzhu glanced at the TV and asked Yan Si if she still wanted to watch.

Yan Si hadn't watched the TV content at all, so naturally she said she didn't want to watch anymore.

"If there's nothing else, then I'll go back to my room."

Yin Lingzhu turned off the TV and looked at Yan Si.

Yan Si's face showed some regret. If she had known, she would have said she wanted to watch TV—that way she could have spent more time with Yin Lingzhu.

But Yan Si's silence was taken by Yin Lingzhu as agreement.

Lying on the bed, Yin Lingzhu smelled the laundry detergent scent on the sheets lingering around her nose.

The mattress beneath her was much softer than the hotel mattress—not just by a little bit.

Yin Lingzhu comfortably collapsed on the bed, her thoughts drifting.

Yan Si really was someone who knew how to enjoy life.

Suddenly Yin Lingzhu bounced up from the bed and quickly opened her phone.

If she was going to take care of Yan Si, then filming would definitely be delayed.

Yin Lingzhu explained the situation to the director.

She only said that because she needed to take care of someone, she would need to take leave for a while.

However, she didn't say that the person she was taking care of was Yan Si.

The director replied very quickly.

【Little Yin, Si Si¹ has already told me. Your scenes with Si Si will be filmed after she gets better.】

Yin Lingzhu immediately replied with 【Okay.】

So Yan Si had already thought it through.

Yin Lingzhu exhaled and lay back down on the bed.

Looking at the director's words, she always felt something was strange.

But the overly comfortable bed made her brain unable to think clearly.

She decided not to think about it anymore.

Yin Lingzhu quickly finished washing up and crawled into bed. She was comfortably looking at her phone when Yan Si pushed open her door.

Yin Lingzhu was startled and quickly tucked her blanket tighter around herself.

"What's wrong?" Yin Lingzhu stuck her head out and looked at her.

Seeing Yin Lingzhu's action, Yan Si stepped back. "Did I disturb you?"

Yin Lingzhu looked at her phone. The phone screen was facing the ceiling.

An entertainment video was playing, and the laughter from it could still be heard.

"No, I was just watching videos. What did you come to find me for?"

Yan Si lowered her head. She was wearing thin pajamas, her frail shoulders seeming to tremble a bit, her voice muffled and heavy.

"I'm scared and can't fall asleep."

Yin Lingzhu reached out to turn off her phone. "It's okay, sleep with the lights on."

Because she herself was very afraid of the dark, Yin Lingzhu subconsciously assumed that Yan Si was also afraid of the dark.

Hearing her answer, Yan Si paused for a long while. "It's not that I'm afraid of the dark. I just watched a horror movie."

Yin Lingzhu understood—she had been scared.

"Then watch a comedy," Yin Lingzhu said with a tone carrying a bit of pride.

In the past, when she also had times of being scared but still wanting to watch, she usually used this method to reduce her fear.

This time Yan Si was silent for an even longer time.

Yin Lingzhu's body had already stiffened while waiting for an answer, but she still didn't dare move.

Yan Si suddenly spoke up: "I want to sleep with you."

The air became somewhat quiet for a moment.

Yin Lingzhu felt her whole body shiver. "No."

Almost the moment Yin Lingzhu's words fell, Yan Si immediately said, "Do you despise me because I'm a sick person?"

Yin Lingzhu's head shook like a rattle drum. "No."

But she didn't know how to explain, so she could only randomly make up an excuse: "I'm not used to sleeping with other people."

How obtuse.

Yan Si thought with some distress.

She silently turned around, closed the door, and step by step slowly approached the bed.

Watching Yan Si getting closer and closer to her, Yin Lingzhu swallowed.

For some reason, she felt the atmosphere was a bit off.

As Yin Lingzhu was thinking this and spacing out, Yan Si had already reached her side.

She quickly called out to stop her.
