

Chapter 56-2

At the hospital, Yan Si's attending physician, just like last time, had Yin Lingzhu wait outside the consultation room door.

Yan Si had already notified the doctor before coming.

You Xiaoxiao looked at Yan Si, and even though she didn't want to say anything now, she still tried to persuade her.

"If this gets discovered, Yin Lingzhu will never forgive you."

Yan Si's tone was certain, "She won't find out."

"This is the only method I have now." Yan Si paused for a moment, then continued.

You Xiaoxiao looked at Yan Si, feeling helpless inside.

She had a whole bunch of persuasive words in her stomach, but now there was no opportunity to say them.

"Fine, just don't get discovered."

Hearing this, Yan Si took the diagnosis report that You Xiaoxiao had prepared and slowly walked out of the consultation room.

Yin Lingzhu took the paper from Yan Si's hands, and seeing that everything was normal with no signs of deterioration, she finally breathed a sigh of relief.

Yan Si watched her silently from the side, "You must keep your promise."

Yin Lingzhu put away the diagnosis report, "Definitely."

Back at the apartment, Yin Lingzhu took the bedding she had spread on the sofa and placed it on the floor beside Yan Si's bed.

Seeing her actions, Yan Si was shocked inside—this wasn't what she had meant.

"This way, you can sleep peacefully, and I can sleep peacefully too."

Yan Si hadn't expected this scenario, which was very different from what she had imagined.

But she also knew she couldn't be too hasty, otherwise it might backfire.

Therefore, even though Yan Si was dissatisfied with Yin Lingzhu's approach, she could only speak in a gentle tone.

"Sleeping on the floor might be bad for your health."

She really hoped Yin Lingzhu would change her mind.

But after hearing this, Yin Lingzhu pointed to the bedding she had spread on the floor.

"I've laid several layers. It's fine."

Seeing this, Yan Si immediately closed her mouth.

Just as Yan Si was about to turn off the lights, Yin Lingzhu suddenly called out to her.

"I'm afraid of the dark. Do you have a desk lamp?" Yin Lingzhu was sitting on her bedding, asking urgently.

Yan Si nodded, "I know you're afraid of the dark, so I bought one."

Hearing this, Yin Lingzhu felt relieved.

And Yan Si only turned off the bedroom lights after turning on the desk lamp.

The next morning, Yin Lingzhu opened her eyes and checked her phone, discovering that Ming Qingyun had sent her a message.

She originally didn't want to pay attention to it, but seeing part of the content on the lock screen, she changed her mind and read it carefully.

Ming Qingyun said she had something to tell her about Yan Si's illness.

She said she had found some information and wanted to speak with Yin Lingzhu in person.

Yin Lingzhu got up and glanced at Yan Si, seeing her eyes tightly closed and still sleeping, so Yin Lingzhu quietly left.

After she left, Yan Si opened her eyes.

Yin Lingzhu had made food for Yan Si and left a note.

On it, she said for Yan Si to eat on time, and that she was going to buy some groceries.

Yin Lingzhu didn't go to the supermarket but came to the place Ming Qingyun had mentioned.

"Tell me, what's wrong with Yan Si?"

Ming Qingyun was looking at her with a smile, the light in her eyes like sunlight hitting the river surface, reflecting golden waves—warm but dazzling.

Yin Lingzhu noticed this but pretended she hadn't seen it.

A few days ago, she had remembered why she had felt Ming Qingyun seemed familiar before.

"Long time no see. I've missed you very much."

Ming Qingyun's voice trembled slightly, but anyone could hear the cherishment in it.

Yin Lingzhu coughed and continued to pretend she hadn't heard anything.

"What you mentioned before about Yan Si being sick—what's that about?"

Ming Qingyun looked deeply at Yin Lingzhu, "She's faking her illness. Do you know that?"

Footnotes:

¹ This chapter reveals the conspiracy between Yan Si and You Xiaoxiao to maintain the fake illness, with You Xiaoxiao providing false medical reports despite her reservations about the deception.

² Yin Lingzhu's decision to sleep on the floor beside Yan Si's bed shows her commitment to caring for Yan Si while maintaining appropriate boundaries, though this frustrates Yan Si's romantic intentions.

³ The chapter ends with a cliffhanger as Ming Qingyun directly accuses Yan Si of faking her illness, setting up a confrontation that could expose Yan Si's elaborate deception.

⁴ Ming Qingyun's obvious romantic feelings for Yin Lingzhu add another layer of complexity to the situation, as she appears to be motivated partly by wanting to separate Yin Lingzhu from Yan Si.
