

Chapter 59-1

There was a reason why Yin Lingzhu felt that Ming Qingyun looked familiar when she first saw her.

During university, she was famously a sea king¹.

So Ming Qingyun was a fish she had caught, but their relationship had always only remained at the ambiguous stage.

They would give each other gifts and send good morning and good night messages in chat.

Thinking about this, Yin Lingzhu looked at Ming Qingyun again.

Back then, Ming Qingyun's family was not well-off financially, her clothing and appearance were very ordinary, and she looked quite harmless - the type who would disappear in a crowd.

This was completely different from the current Ming Qingyun.

This was why Yin Lingzhu initially felt she looked familiar but couldn't remember who she was.

The Ming Qingyun on campus wore simple green hoodies, her hair flowing behind her, and every time she saw Yin Lingzhu, her eyes would light up with a glow that was small but noticeable.

Her expression was also very shy.

Thinking of that person who would shyly look away whenever she saw Yin Lingzhu, and then looking at the Ming Qingyun in front of her now - although she was smiling, it felt cold and without warmth.

Dressed in a suit with sharp eyes, she was very different from before.

Yin Lingzhu couldn't help but feel a headache coming on as she looked at Ming Qingyun.

"I sent you a breakup message. Didn't you see it?"

Yin Lingzhu remembered that when she first arrived here, in order to focus on Yan Si, she had cut ties with everyone in her phone.

She shouldn't have missed Ming Qingyun.

Seeing that Ming Qingyun didn't respond, Yin Lingzhu took out her phone, trying to find some trace of evidence.

Ming Qingyun stepped forward a few steps and pressed down on Yin Lingzhu's hand.

"I received it."

Her voice was cold and stern, her gaze falling on Yin Lingzhu's phone screen.

The black glass surface was like a mirror, clearly showing her current unwilling expression.

"After I received it, I didn't want to break up, but when I tried to message you, I found that you had already blocked me."

Yin Lingzhu thought about it - this had indeed happened.

She felt that keeping these people around was useless, and waiting for their individual responses was too slow, so she had simply explained the situation briefly.

She had thought that no one would take a scumbag Alpha to heart.

Yin Lingzhu sighed. "It was my fault. I'm sorry."

She raised her head and looked at Ming Qingyun. "Can't we just let it end like this?"

Yin Lingzhu's voice was very light, as if a gust of wind could blow it all away.

Ming Qingyun stepped back a few paces from Yin Lingzhu and said, not answering the question: "Do you know why I like wearing these clothes?"

Due to the distance she had just created, Yin Lingzhu could now clearly see Ming Qingyun's entire body.

Ming Qingyun's suit was crisp without a single wrinkle, her whole being radiating an aura worth millions every minute.

Yin Lingzhu thought this and shook her head. "I don't know."

This suit really suited Ming Qingyun, transforming the once naive girl into someone unattainable. Perhaps having money made everyone like to dress this way.

"You like suits?" Yin Lingzhu thought this and unconsciously said it aloud.

Hearing Yin Lingzhu say this, the smile on Ming Qingyun's face faltered a few degrees, but she was still smiling.

She shook her head, her fingers touching the buttons on her suit, the cold sensation traveling from her fingertips to her heart.

"I don't like these stiff suits. This feeling of being bound makes me uncomfortable."

Hearing her words, Yin Lingzhu recalled that indeed, every time she had seen Ming Qingyun since their reunion, she had been wearing suits.

Whether at work or in casual settings, she was always in a suit.

"Then you..." Yin Lingzhu asked two words but stopped herself mid-sentence.

Ming Qingyun continued her words: "Then why do I wear suits every day?"

Seeing that she had already guessed, Yin Lingzhu saw no need to hide it and nodded.

"Because you once said that people in suits look good."

Ming Qingyun's smile carried expectation as she looked at Yin Lingzhu, hoping she could remember what she had said back then.

Hearing her say this, thinking back to that moment, Ming Qingyun couldn't help but cover her forehead.

In university, when they were eating at a street stall, they had casually found a TV drama to watch.

At that time, Yin Lingzhu was watching the main character in the drama, who looked very striking in a suit at work.

So she had said: "People in suits look so good."

But these two sentences had completely different meanings!

Back then, she had meant that the actor looked good, not that suits looked good.

"I have a lot of money now. We can do many things." Ming Qingyun's eyes sparkled as she looked at Yin Lingzhu.

"Everything Yan Si has, I have now too. You can try being with me."

Ming Qingyun said stubbornly, her voice also revealing obsession.

Yin Lingzhu was startled by her appearance.

"Uh, I want to say, if possible..." Yin Lingzhu paused, glancing at Ming Qingyun, but Ming Qingyun's face showed no expression.

She could only steel herself and continue.

"I hope that in the future, it would be best if we had no contact."

After finishing her words, Yin Lingzhu didn't dare to raise her head.

After all, this whole matter was entirely her fault from beginning to end.

Ming Qingyun looked at her, the hope in her eyes slowly freezing over.

"Why?" she asked with difficulty.

"Is it because I can't compare to Yan Si?"

Yin Lingzhu's hands waved repeatedly, and she said anxiously: "You don't need to compare yourself to Yan Si. It's my problem."

Yin Lingzhu remembered that she and Yan Si still had their marriage certificate. She clasped her fingers, wondering whether to use this as an excuse.

After weighing it carefully, Yin Lingzhu still didn't say it.

She looked at Ming Qingyun. "I have a girlfriend now. I don't want to betray her."

Ming Qingyun heard her words, and whether she believed it or not, she showed a smile.

"I don't care." She looked at Yin Lingzhu.

Her tone was full of persistence: "As long as you can be with me, I'm willing to do anything."

Yin Lingzhu felt her head aching a bit.

Just as Yin Lingzhu was thinking about what to say to make Ming Qingyun leave, she heard Ming Qingyun speak again.

"Yan Si doesn't want to divorce you. I know you two haven't divorced yet."

"If in this situation you can also have a girlfriend, then why can't I be your other girlfriend?"

Ming Qingyun said this while slowly approaching Yin Lingzhu.

Yin Lingzhu felt increasingly exhausted and didn't notice the distance between her and Ming Qingyun.

To tell one lie, you need countless lies to cover it up.

Yin Lingzhu thought of this saying.

She should have noticed earlier that with Ming Qingyun's current status, knowing such things wasn't surprising.

So why had she made up this non-existent girlfriend?

Yin Lingzhu thought this and silently cursed her brain for being stupid.

Just as she was about to speak, she suddenly smelled a fresh fragrance that seemed somewhat familiar.

She looked up and realized that Ming Qingyun was so close to her.

Yin Lingzhu reached out her hand, placing it in front of her chest to create a safe distance.

"Why are you so close to me?" Yin Lingzhu frowned and questioned.

But Ming Qingyun didn't care about her tone. Instead, she raised her own hand and placed it on Yin Lingzhu's shoulder.

She slowly leaned close to Yin Lingzhu's ear.

Warm breath hit Yin Lingzhu's earlobe, and Yin Lingzhu immediately came to her senses.

She immediately pushed Ming Qingyun away with the hand she had placed in front of her chest.

"I'm married now. I hope you won't make such gestures."

She looked coldly at the person in front of her and spoke as a reminder.

Ming Qingyun was pushed away but didn't approach again, instead standing in place.

She looked at Yin Lingzhu, her eyes showing determination to win.

A faint grassy scent spread through the air, so subtle that it couldn't be detected without careful attention.

Ming Qingyun's eyes stared intently at Yin Lingzhu, not relaxing for a moment.

Footnotes:

¹ Sea king (海王) - Chinese internet slang for someone who maintains ambiguous relationships with multiple people simultaneously, like a "player" who casts a wide net to catch many fish.