

Chapter 64-1

Yin Lingzhu's question went unanswered for a long time, but she wasn't in a hurry now.

Time passed minute by minute.

After a long silence, Yang Daiyi finally gave her an answer.

"No, I went and negotiated with the production team myself."

Yang Daiyi's voice carried guilt, and anyone could tell she wasn't being truthful.

But Yin Lingzhu didn't press further. This answer didn't really matter to her anyway.

"Alright, when the show starts filming, Sister Yang can just let me know."

Yin Lingzhu's voice echoed in the hotel room.

It inexplicably made one feel lonely.

Sister Yang hummed in response, and after confirming several times that Yin Lingzhu had nothing else to discuss, hung up the phone.

After hanging up, Yang Daiyi let out a long sigh.

She knew Yin Lingzhu didn't believe her, but there was nothing she could do about it now. She also couldn't believe that this opportunity had come from that person.

Yin Lingzhu looked at her phone screen, which had fallen into darkness, rhythmically tapping the screen with her finger.

She was thinking about who had given her this variety show opportunity.

It was either Ming Qingyun or Yan Si.

But she had no way to verify.

Yin Lingzhu knew clearly in her heart that if she wanted to keep standing on stage, she had to maintain her popularity.

But now, ever since their group disbanded, she had only been filming and hadn't appeared in the public eye.

If this continued, audiences would definitely forget about her.

Yin Lingzhu's eyes darkened.

She absolutely had to seize this variety show opportunity.

She couldn't help but think about her time in that other world.

In the past, she had listened to her parents' words, and even though she became someone else's ideal child, so what?

She didn't know what she wanted, like a robot.

If not for this unexpected incident, she probably would have spent her whole life wandering aimlessly.

In this world, she couldn't live like that again.

Thinking this way, the ambition in Yin Lingzhu's eyes grew heavier and heavier.

But soon she calmed her emotions down.

The previous show she had participated in was a singing and dancing variety show, so she had to practice dancing and songs every evening. The workload was heavy and exhausting.

This variety show was different. The program atmosphere was focused on being light and pleasant, so Yin Lingzhu didn't really need to do much preparation—she could just go on the show directly when the time came.

But it wouldn't be completely effortless either. She still needed to prepare in advance.

So until Yang Daiyi notified her, she had been frantically absorbing experience from the previous seasons.

Yin Lingzhu looked at the destination and time Yang Daiyi had sent her. It said arriving by eight o'clock would be fine.

But since she wasn't very famous, and to make a good impression, Yin Lingzhu arrived more than an hour early.

But what she hadn't expected was that someone had arrived even earlier than her.

Yin Lingzhu walked over to say hello, but discovered that she actually knew this person.

It was Wan Miaoyin.

Wan Miaoyin was wearing a white dress today, revealing her delicate collarbones, with a gentle smile on her face.

Seeing Yin Lingzhu arrive, Wan Miaoyin seemed quite surprised, but the surprised expression didn't last long. She smiled and greeted Yin Lingzhu.

Yin Lingzhu knew what she was surprised about. This program didn't announce the participants in advance.

She also smiled back in greeting.

The atmosphere became a bit awkward for a moment.

Yin Lingzhu sat on the sofa somewhat stiffly, cleared her throat softly, and tried to find a topic of conversation.

But this was quite difficult for her. Previously, their interaction pattern had always been Wan Miaoyin finding topics to talk about.

Now that the roles had suddenly switched, Yin Lingzhu found it a bit hard to adjust.

But Wan Miaoyin seemed to notice her discomfort.

"It's been a long time since I've seen you. Where did you go after our group disbanded?"

Wan Miaoyin sat on another sofa, looking at Yin Lingzhu and asking gently.

Seeing her speak, the awkward atmosphere was broken, and Yin Lingzhu breathed a sigh of relief.

Yin Lingzhu also smiled. "I was filming a drama. It just finished recently."

Wan Miaoyin nodded, not seeming particularly surprised that Yin Lingzhu had been acting. "This is your first time acting, right? Did you find it very difficult?"

As the conversation gradually opened up, Yin Lingzhu also relaxed, and her tense body got some relief at this moment.

"It was alright. The people in the crew were very good to me," Yin Lingzhu replied.

Just as they were chatting enthusiastically, people began arriving one after another.

Yin Lingzhu was barely acquainted with the people who came later.

On the first day, the director didn't arrange any tasks, wanting the guests who came to get familiar with each other first.

In just one afternoon, it was already clear who was closer to whom.

Yin Lingzhu was also carefully observing in secret.

Among the people who came, she was an Alpha, and Wan Miaoyin was an Omega.

According to the show's arrangement, there should be two As, two Os, and four Bs.

There should still be one more Alpha and one more Omega coming.

But based on what Yin Lingzhu observed, the A and O who had come were already together, and they had no intention of hiding it.

The male Alpha was an unknown actor, and the male Omega was an internet celebrity¹ with thirty million followers.

When they arrived, they got out of the same car.

And after arriving, no matter what they were doing, the two were always together.

If restrooms weren't gender-separated, these two would probably be completely glued together.

Yin Lingzhu thought to herself.

The remaining people were four Betas.

Yin Lingzhu also roughly knew their professions: two singers and two actors.

But what surprised Yin Lingzhu was that none of these people were particularly famous, or rather, compared to previous seasons, they didn't have much renown.

This didn't match the style of previous seasons of this show.

When dinner time came in the evening.

Yin Lingzhu sat with Wan Miaoyin.

The Omega sat with the Alpha.

The remaining four Betas paired up: actors with actors, singers with singers.

After this arrangement, everyone began eating.

What was supposed to be a peaceful meal was interrupted when someone spoke up.

"Lingzhu, we've met before. Do you remember?"

The Alpha other than Yin Lingzhu suddenly spoke.

After hearing this, Yin Lingzhu swallowed the food in her mouth.

She looked at the Alpha who had spoken, trying to recall in her mind.

Yin Lingzhu thought for a long time. She just felt that the person in front of her looked somewhat familiar, but she couldn't say his name.

"We've met before, but I can't remember," Yin Lingzhu said honestly.

The man didn't say anything else and just smiled as he said, "Let's eat."

Yin Lingzhu couldn't very well keep pressing the matter, so during the meal, she ate while thinking, but still couldn't remember.

In the end, Yin Lingzhu's head started hurting, and she decided to stop thinking about it.
