

Chapter 64-2

After finishing dinner, although they didn't need to wash dishes, they had to put the plates and utensils in the kitchen.

Yin Lingzhu helped carry Wan Miaoyin's portion.

When she finished putting the dishes in the kitchen and was coming out, she happened to encounter that Alpha.

Yin Lingzhu instinctively called out to him.

The man also seemed to know that Yin Lingzhu would call him, and steadily stopped in his tracks.

"What's wrong?" the man asked, feigning ignorance.

Yin Lingzhu walked to his side. "Could you tell me your name? Maybe I'll be able to remember."

Throughout the entire afternoon, the man had been with his Omega, so she felt embarrassed and hadn't had time to ask.

The man glanced at Yin Lingzhu. "My name is Li Li."

After saying this, he seemed to be watching her as if enjoying a good show.

Yin Lingzhu thought about this name in her mind, but her brain remained blank—she still couldn't remember anything.

"Sorry, I really can't remember."

Yin Lingzhu looked at his face, slightly furrowing her brow.

An expression of "as expected" appeared on the man's face. He ignored Yin Lingzhu and walked straight away.

Back in her room, Yin Lingzhu was still thinking about this person.

But in the end, her brain still had no reaction.

The next day, before Yin Lingzhu had even woken up, she heard the director's loudspeaker.

Yin Lingzhu frowned but still got up.

After all, the show was going to be broadcast. If she was caught sleeping in on camera, she wouldn't have any face left.

But in a few days, she would soon learn some shocking news.

For now, Yin Lingzhu was still leisurely eating breakfast.

Wan Miaoyin sat beside her, also eating the breakfast provided by the production team.

In corners they didn't know about, people were already shipping them¹.

【Ahhhh, tell me, are these two a couple?】

【Definitely! With my twenty years of experience shipping CPs², if they're not a couple, I'll do a handstand while washing my hair.】

【Screenshot taken, be careful there.】

【Are you guys crazy about shipping CPs? You think any two people you see are together.】

【Why are you being so aggressive? This is a dating variety show. If you're not here to ship CPs, what are you doing here?】

The bullet comments³ suddenly became a battlefield.

But none of the eight people serving as dating guests knew about any of this.

Right now, they were listening to the director's requirements.

After breakfast, the director had them play their first game, called 【Guess the Word】 .

The production team would give out a word, which the first person would see and then act out for the second person.

The second person would watch the first person's performance, guess a word, then act out the word they just guessed for the third person.

This would continue until the last person.

The eight people were divided into two groups.

Yin Lingzhu, Wan Miaoyin, Li Li, and one Beta formed a group.

The remaining people formed another group.

The group that guessed more words correctly would win, and each member of the winning group could receive a card.

After all the games ended in the evening, the person with the most cards could give a heart-fluttering guest an offer, inviting them to hang out on the weekend.

And the invited person couldn't refuse.

After four words, unexpectedly, the winning group wasn't Yin Lingzhu's group, but the other group.

【What the heck, I could see clearly that Li Li wasn't playing properly.】

【I agree, Li Li clearly could have guessed it but deliberately didn't say it.】

【Wasn't it because you saw the answers beforehand, so you could guess them? Obviously the people in front didn't act well.】

【Exactly, I think so too. It was all the fault of the people in front. Little brother Li Li clearly tried very hard to guess.】

【The last one was "tiger"—anyone with working eyes could guess it.】

【Whatever, you guys saw the answers anyway, so you can say anything.】

The bullet comments immediately became chaotic again.

Yin Lingzhu originally didn't mind losing, but when she noticed Wan Miaoyin's disappointed expression beside her, she patted Wan Miaoyin's hand.

"Did you really want to win?"

Wan Miaoyin didn't speak, just nodded.

Yin Lingzhu looked at her, thinking about the things she had done wrong to Wan Miaoyin before, and encouragingly patted Wan Miaoyin's shoulder.

Then she suddenly ran to the director's side, asked something, and ran back.

"From now on, I'll give you all the cards I win."

Footnotes:

¹ Shipping (磕起來了): Internet slang meaning fans are pairing up characters or real people romantically, creating imaginary relationships.

² CP: Short for "couple" in internet culture, referring to a romantic pairing that fans support, whether real or fictional.

³ Bullet comments (彈幕): A feature in Chinese video platforms where viewer comments scroll across the screen in real-time, like floating text overlays.
