

Chapter 69-1

You Xiaoxiao slowly walked to Yan Si's side, waiting for Yan Si to speak.

But Yan Si wasn't in a hurry. Her gaze was fixed on Yin Lingzhu on stage, and only after the two separated did the coldness she was emanating slow down a bit.

"Go investigate Wan Miaoyin's identity—I'm afraid it's not that simple."

Yan Si's voice was very low but carried urgency.

You Xiaoxiao had no choice but to quietly leave the scene and follow Yan Si's instructions to investigate Wan Miaoyin.

But she didn't think Wan Miaoyin would have any significant identity or background.

A year ago, she had also investigated Wan Miaoyin's identity and found nothing.

This time, it was probably just Yan Si overthinking.

You Xiaoxiao thought this in her heart, but her pace didn't slow as she hurried off to find someone to investigate.

After You Xiaoxiao left, Yan Si's gaze returned to the stage.

This Wan Miaoyin definitely had problems.

As a CEO, she knew the value of this dating variety show.

This show had undergone major changes, and the biggest difference from previous seasons was the addition of live streaming elements.

And this was something the production team didn't plan to tell these guests about.

Yan Si's gaze became profound.

All of Wan Miaoyin's behavior seemed like she knew this was a live broadcast.

This was very illogical.

Moreover, considering that Yin Lingzhu was exhausted from filming, she had planned to have Yin Lingzhu's agent notify her to rest for a while.

But when she called that day, Yang Daiyi suddenly told her that the variety show contract had already been signed.

At first, Yan Si thought Yang Daiyi had helped make the connection, but thinking about it later, that wasn't possible.

This variety show—she knew you couldn't get in without certain connections.

Yang Daiyi didn't have that ability.

Thinking of this, Yan Si looked toward Wan Miaoyin standing beside Yin Lingzhu.

She definitely had problems.

Wan Miaoyin seemed to also notice Yan Si's gaze. She looked in Yan Si's direction for a moment, but quickly withdrew her gaze.

Because Yin Lingzhu was calling her.

The production team had just been distributing rewards—four cards in total.

Because Wan Miaoyin had just been distracted, all four cards were now in Yin Lingzhu's hands.

"Take them all."

Yin Lingzhu held all the cards between her thumb and index finger.

Her action left Wan Miaoyin somewhat shocked.

She didn't reach out to take them, but instead looked up at Yin Lingzhu.

"Are you sure?" Wan Miaoyin asked.

Unlike her hesitation, Yin Lingzhu seemed very decisive.

"I'm sure. Don't you have someone you like? These would be better for you."

Yin Lingzhu's words made Wan Miaoyin freeze for a moment.

But she immediately recovered, not letting Yin Lingzhu notice her momentary daze.

"Yes, I do have someone I like."

She murmured.

Wan Miaoyin smiled as she took the cards from Yin Lingzhu's hands.

Today was already Tuesday, and the cards could be used on Friday evening.

Wan Miaoyin looked at the small cards in her hands.

Yan Si watched Yin Lingzhu on stage from below. She knew that Yin Lingzhu didn't want to see her right now.

So she was willing to stay in a small corner, quietly watching Yin Lingzhu.

All emotions were forcibly suppressed by their owner, impossible for anyone to glimpse.

The baseball cap Yan Si wore cast a large shadow, blocking her eyes.

If Yin Lingzhu would be happy without her, she could never appear again.

Thinking this, Yan Si's hand supporting the camera became somewhat unsteady.

Yin Lingzhu looked down again, this time with a specific target.

It was a person wearing a baseball cap below the stage.

Yin Lingzhu glanced forward—the director was announcing something, and she couldn't get away for the moment.

As soon as the director left, she immediately stepped down from the stage and walked toward the person wearing the baseball cap.

Wan Miaoyin had just been about to talk to Yin Lingzhu when she noticed her hurried steps, so she didn't speak up.

She just quietly watched Yin Lingzhu walk away.

Yan Si also noticed that Yin Lingzhu was coming in her direction. She swallowed nervously, feeling somewhat tense.

When she realized Yin Lingzhu was still two or three meters away from her, she immediately lowered her head.