

Chapter 73-2

After the director announced that he had won, he even excitedly hugged Li Li, who was standing beside him.

When Qin Luo's arm came over, Li Li originally wanted to dodge.

But thinking of his purpose, he could only forcibly suppress his desire to avoid it.

"I knew it, my baby is the best." Li Li spoke with a beaming smile.

"Of course, don't you see who I am."

Their voices weren't small, and Yin Lingzhu was disgusted by their conversation, moving away a bit.

But thanks to the goosebumps she just got, Yin Lingzhu felt the temperature on her face cool down.

Wan Miaoyyin had been watching Yin Lingzhu and naturally noticed that Yin Lingzhu's face was no longer red.

"Do you have someone you like right now?" She looked at Yin Lingzhu and asked quietly.

Yin Lingzhu looked at her with surprise, then shook her head.

"Not really. Right now I just want to step onto a bigger stage. I don't have the mood to think about these things."

Her tone was light, carrying hope for the future.

Wan Miaoyyin saw the seriousness in Yin Lingzhu's eyes and nodded. "Me too."

"When I saw you here back then, I was quite surprised." After Wan Miaoyyin finished speaking, Yin Lingzhu suddenly remembered her feelings when she first saw Wan Miaoyyin.

"I could tell." Wan Miaoyyin said with a smile. "You didn't expect me to appear here, right?"

"Yeah, I remember your dream was to be a singer. How did you end up here?" Yin Lingzhu's tone was full of confusion.

Wan Miaoyyin's smile didn't change. "My purpose is the same as yours."

Yin Lingzhu slapped her forehead, suddenly understanding.

How could she have forgotten about this?

[My emotions went through such ups and downs in an instant.]

[Same here, Bamboo's answer really tugged at my heartstrings.]

[I always feel like Bamboo's answer isn't sincere.]

[I have someone I secretly like. When friends ask, don't I also say I don't have anyone I like? Bamboo should be the same.]

[If you ask me, you people are really taking their script seriously.]

[All you ever say is "script" - do you only know those two words?]

Yan Si was in the audience, quite far from them, so she couldn't hear what they were saying.

But Yan Si could see their faces.

She could see the hope on Yin Lingzhu's face, something she rarely saw when Yin Lingzhu was by her side.

She lowered her head, the shadow of her baseball cap covering her eyes, hiding the broken expression in them.

It seemed she really was a failure as a person.

Now she had no one left by her side.

During the noon break, Yin Lingzhu lay on her bed, recalling in her heart the question Wan Miaoyyin had asked her.

Did she still have someone she liked?

When Wan Miaoyyin asked this question, the first person who appeared in her mind was Yan Si.

But even now, she didn't know whether Yan Si was still in her heart.

Perhaps she was.

People always find it hard to forget their first love.

But one cannot fall in the same place twice¹.

Yin Lingzhu's hand unconsciously rubbed her nape, thinking without awareness.

She looked at the time on the wall, closed her eyes, and slowly fell asleep.

Ji Jingrong returned to her own apartment and removed the dust covers from the furniture.

She first turned on the TV and searched for the variety show Yin Lingzhu was participating in.

On the plane, she had been watching on her phone's small screen, and due to network speed limitations, it was very blurry.

Now she could finally watch properly.

She thought this way, but when she clicked the play button for the variety show, her mood suddenly became low.

Ji Jingrong saw a black screen.

She knew this meant Yin Lingzhu was resting, but not being able to see the person in her heart still made her feel bad for quite a while.

Footnotes:

¹ One cannot fall in the same place twice: A Chinese idiom meaning one shouldn't make the same mistake twice or get hurt by the same person/situation repeatedly.