

Chapter 84-4

All the way to the hospital room door, she kept looking back, hoping Yin Lingzhu would say something.

But there was nothing. Yin Lingzhu didn't say a word.

Seeing Yan Si walk away dejectedly, Ming Qingyun was in an exceptionally good mood.

"Lingzhu, what would you like to eat? I'll buy it for you."

Ming Qingyun's eyes revealed her pleasure.

Yin Lingzhu looked at her and pressed the pause button on the remote control in her hand.

"President Ming, sorry, I'm feeling a bit unwell today and would like to be alone."

Her words were already quite direct.

Ming Qingyun wasn't a fool either. She looked at Yin Lingzhu, wanting to say something.

But she also knew that if she continued to stay, it might annoy Yin Lingzhu, and then it would be counterproductive.

Ming Qingyun showed a shallow smile. "Alright then, get some rest early. I won't disturb you."

Seeing that both people had left, Yin Lingzhu let out a long breath.

This situation was really exhausting.

Just as Yin Lingzhu wanted to continue watching TV, she suddenly realized that her dinner still hadn't been settled.

After Yin Lingzhu pressed the call button, with the nurse's help, she learned that the hospital had patient meals.

Not only that, she also discovered that this hospitalization was once again paid for by Yan Si.

What could Yin Lingzhu say about Yan Si as a person?

She could only ask the nurse about her hospitalization costs, planning to pay Yan Si back later.

However, after this little episode, Yin Lingzhu didn't have the mood to watch TV anymore.

She randomly selected a channel and left it on as background noise.

Yin Lingzhu let her mind wander, starting to think about random things.

After this variety show finished filming, what should she do? Should she ask Sister Yang to see if there were any singing and dancing programs available?

Lost in her random thoughts, Yin Lingzhu gradually fell asleep.

She was woken up by a nurse bringing her the patient meal.

A small table was raised on Yin Lingzhu's hospital bed, and the nurse placed the food on the table.

"Go ahead and eat. Call me after you're done eating, and I'll collect the dishes."

The nurse arranged the food in order.

Yin Lingzhu felt like she was being a bit of a bother to the nurse.

But looking at the needle on the back of her left hand, then at the cast on her right arm.

She sighed.

After eating this meal, she should go to the hospital cafeteria herself.

After all, it was her arm that was injured, not her leg.

Thinking this, Yin Lingzhu prepared to use her left hand to hold chopsticks, but the presence of the needle on the back of her hand was impossible to ignore.

She got painfully poked.

But the cast on her right hand also clearly made it impossible to hold chopsticks.

Yin Lingzhu could only try to lean forward as much as possible, stretching her neck to reach the edge of the porridge bowl with her mouth.

Using this posture, she managed to drink two sips of porridge with difficulty.

Just as Wan Miaoyin entered, she saw Yin Lingzhu in this bizarre position.

She quickly walked to Yin Lingzhu's bedside.

"Where are they? How come you're alone?"

Wan Miaoyin naturally picked up the spoon, scooped up a spoonful of porridge, and brought it to Yin Lingzhu's mouth.

Although Yin Lingzhu felt a bit awkward, it was still acceptable.

She swallowed this mouthful of porridge. The bland taste made Yin Lingzhu slightly furrow her brows.

"With them here, I also felt uncomfortable, so I let them leave first."

Yin Lingzhu explained while eating another spoonful of porridge that Wan Miaoyin fed her.

Looking at Yin Lingzhu, Wan Miaoyin felt very fortunate about her previous plan.

Using a shield could save a lot of trouble, and she could openly interact with Yin Lingzhu without worry.

Thinking this, Wan Miaoyin quickly fed her the entire bowl of porridge, spoonful by spoonful.

Yin Lingzhu's mouth felt so bland, as if she hadn't eaten salt for eight hundred years.

When Wan Miaoyin saw the pained expression on her face, she couldn't help but laugh out loud.

After hearing Wan Miaoyin's unrestrained laughter, Yin Lingzhu's face couldn't help but show a bit of resentment.

"Let's just eat like this for now. I'll cook for you tomorrow."

Wan Miaoyin said comfortingly.

Having finished the meal that didn't have a trace of oil or fat, Yin Lingzhu could only nod at this moment.

In the hospital lobby.

As soon as Yan Si looked up, she saw Ming Qingyun standing in front of her.

She was feeling down now and didn't want to say anything, so she lowered her head again.

But Ming Qingyun didn't want to let this opportunity pass.

"Yan Si, you're having your day of reckoning too." Ming Qingyun pretended to shake her head regretfully.

Seeing that Yan Si still wasn't paying attention to her, Ming Qingyun made "tsk tsk tsk" sounds even louder.

"What's wrong? Lingzhu has already rejected you so clearly, and you're still waiting around."

Ming Qingyun said mockingly.

Yan Si sat in the lobby chair. Upon hearing Ming Qingyun's words, she suddenly stood up.

"Weren't you kicked out just the same?"

Yan Si's tone was flat, but full of sarcasm.

Ming Qingyun was speechless for a moment and couldn't say anything for a while.

She looked at Yan Si. "Hmph, so what? At least she acknowledged that I'm her friend."

"And you? You're just 'President Yan,' nothing more."

Having delivered this line, Ming Qingyun walked away triumphantly.

Yan Si only glanced at Ming Qingyun's retreating figure before withdrawing her gaze.

She had already seen the person she was waiting for.

Yan Si quickly went forward and intercepted the nurse she had just seen in Yin Lingzhu's hospital room.

"Hello, I'm a family member of room 102. I'd like to ask about the hospital cafeteria."

The smile on Yan Si's face was appropriate—the same expression that had never shown a flaw even when surrounded by various media cameras.

After some communication, the nurse finally agreed to deliver meals to Yin Lingzhu.

After doing what she needed to do, Yan Si left the hospital.

"Are you planning to sleep here tonight?"

Yin Lingzhu looked at Wan Miaoyin's preparations and asked with confusion.