

Chapter 87-1

After eating with Wan Miaoyin, Yin Lingzhu returned to her room and let out a long breath.

What should she do about the relationship between her and Yan Si?

Yin Lingzhu lay on the bed, frowning as she pondered what to do next.

No matter what, as long as Yan Si wanted to, she could find her at any time.

The more Yin Lingzhu thought about it, the deeper her frown became.

Finally, her gaze became increasingly determined.

At worst, she'd just go back to her old profession.

Yin Lingzhu thought with a sense of self-abandonment.

Although her major was computer science, she didn't love those codes.

Why was it that after she found her passion, she couldn't continue pursuing it?

Yin Lingzhu thought with self-destructive pessimism.

Her contract with Yan Corporation had about a month left.

She estimated that after this variety show ended, her contract would expire.

Yin Lingzhu had already made up her mind at this moment.

After the contract ended, she would go abroad for a while.

Partly to clear her mind, and partly to avoid Yan Si.

Yin Lingzhu closed her eyes. After making her decision, she started playing with her phone.

Currently, all social media platforms were paying great attention to this program.

Because it was the first live broadcast show, there was great curiosity and novelty about it.

Although some people suspected there was a script involved, the popularity remained high.

Executives from other companies were also paying attention to this program.

If the controllability of this show could be guaranteed, they would also launch similar programs on a large scale.

Therefore, tomorrow's broadcast debut would surely receive attention from everyone.

Moreover, since they, the few guests, now knew that the entire format of this program was live broadcast, they would definitely need to "perform" a bit.

Yin Lingzhu sighed. Tomorrow she would also need to perform a bit, commonly known as establishing a persona.

But the key issue now was that she didn't even know what her persona was supposed to be.

However, Yin Lingzhu wasn't anxious.

After all, they had already been live broadcasting for a while, and the audience already had a general understanding of them.

Yin Lingzhu casually scrolled through her phone, thinking in her mind.

Suddenly, she saw a video.

This video was also related to her.

Yin Lingzhu clicked into their homepage and discovered that this person should be her loyal fan.

Because this blogger's homepage was full of her videos.

Her singing, dancing, and some clips from this show.

Moreover, Yin Lingzhu also discovered that this blogger's first video was actually from the first small concert she had participated in.

This made Yin Lingzhu feel very surprised.

At that time, she hadn't been married to Yan Si for even a year yet.

That concert was also something she had to participate in due to company assignments.

But regardless, at that time Yin Lingzhu hadn't taken that concert seriously at all.

She had treated the performance as just a task to complete.

The concert wasn't taken seriously by many people either, and not many people watched it.

Not to mention things like replays.

Thinking of this, Yin Lingzhu opened the video.

Looking at the angle of the video, she confirmed her guess.

This blogger was someone who had been at the concert venue.

Yin Lingzhu was secretly surprised in her heart.

Regarding this person who seemed to be her loyal fan, Yin Lingzhu felt a bit curious.

However, Yin Lingzhu only watched all of the blogger's videos and didn't leave a single comment.

When Yin Lingzhu exited the blogger's homepage, she only then realized that she had actually performed on so many stages.

Discovering this point, she felt a slight sense of satisfaction in her heart, but more than that was a kind of regret.