

Chapter 87-2

The next day, Yin Lingzhu and the other seven people stood on the stage, listening to the rules from the director's team.

This round of games was still played in pairs.

The production team would give them specific props, and the two would sit facing each other.

One person would wear the props and look at their partner across from them to test their heart rate.

There were four groups in total, and the person with the lowest heart rate would win.

Yin Lingzhu looked at the rules and had no objections.

Her gaze turned to Li Li in the room, whose partner had been changed to someone Yin Lingzhu didn't recognize.

Yin Lingzhu only glanced at him briefly before looking away.

This had nothing to do with her.

Li Li noticed Yin Lingzhu's gaze and gritted his teeth hard.

If it weren't for Yin Lingzhu, how could his relationship with Qin Luo have become so strained?

Since that night, he had never seen Qin Luo again, and the messages he sent to Qin Luo had never received any replies.

He had put in so much effort to climb up to Qin Luo, and now it was all gone just like that.

Anger flashed in Li Li's eyes, but he immediately remembered that they were still live broadcasting.

So he forcibly suppressed the rage and panic in his heart.

Naturally, Yin Lingzhu was unaware of Li Li's psychological changes.

She took the props from the staff member and looked at Wan Miaoyin.

"Should you wear this, or should I?"

Wan Miaoyin looked at Yin Lingzhu, her eyes seeming to sparkle with light.

"Do you want to win or lose?"

Yin Lingzhu heard this question and looked at Wan Miaoyin with confusion. "Of course I want to win."

Wan Miaoyin suddenly showed a smile, but it looked more like a bitter smile.

She pushed Yin Lingzhu's hand to Yin Lingzhu's abdomen.

"Then you should wear it." She seemed to say jokingly, "If I wear it, we'll easily come in last place."

Yin Lingzhu heard her latter statement and was somewhat puzzled, but didn't show it.

As the director announced the start of the game, Yin Lingzhu put on the props and gazed at the person in front of her.

Her heart rate didn't fluctuate much, staying consistently at 75.

But Wan Miaoyin's face visibly reddened.

Faced with Wan Miaoyin's reaction, Yin Lingzhu's heart rate still didn't change much.

Wan Miaoyin could also see the heart rate on the screen. When she saw Yin Lingzhu's heart rate numbers, the light in her eyes seemed to slowly fade away.

Yin Lingzhu still showed no reaction.

After the final comparison of the four groups, Yin Lingzhu's group indeed won.

When the director announced it, Yin Lingzhu wasn't surprised at all. She didn't show any happy expression on her face, only a hint of smugness.

Wan Miaoyin also didn't seem happy.

Yin Lingzhu keenly noticed this and was somewhat confused.

"Didn't you want to win?"

Wan Miaoyin just smiled faintly but said nothing.

The director also noticed this situation and immediately made a decisive move to start an advanced version of the game.

This time, both parties would wear the props for the game.

The final result would be the average of both people's heart rates.

Yin Lingzhu didn't have much of a reaction. When she heard the new game rules, a victorious smile appeared on her face.

The person Wan Miaoyin liked was in another group, so there was no need to worry at all.

But immersed in the emotion of impending victory, Yin Lingzhu completely failed to notice that Wan Miaoyin's face had turned pale.

She looked at Yin Lingzhu with a complex expression.

Unlike Yin Lingzhu's confidence, she was very worried about the game that was about to start.

When the game began, following the director's command, their heart rate numbers appeared on the screen.

The contrast between Yin Lingzhu's numbers and Wan Miaoyin's numbers was very obvious.

Especially since Wan Miaoyin's heart rate was continuously rising.

Yin Lingzhu looked at the numbers on the screen and at Wan Miaoyin, frowning.

"Are you feeling unwell?"

Wan Miaoyin quickly nodded. "Yes, I didn't eat much breakfast this morning."

Yin Lingzhu had a moment of realization. "Then after the game ends, you should rest for a while."

【Not eating breakfast? I don't think that's it.】

【I think so too, Miaoyin's reaction today is very strange.】

【Her heart rate is beating so fast, could it be that my CP¹ is coming true?】

【I agree with the comment above, Miaoyin's reaction today is very unusual, I also think there's something going on.】

【Ridiculous, Wan Miaoyin clearly said the person she likes is Wang Qingran, what are you all fantasizing about?】

After finishing the game, Yin Lingzhu carefully helped Wan Miaoyin sit down.

At the same time, the results of this round of games also came out.

Yin Lingzhu's group indeed came in last place.

Seeing this result, Wan Miaoyin felt a bit bad.

"It's my fault that you didn't get first place."

Wan Miaoyin's voice was full of guilt, which made Yin Lingzhu want to laugh.

"It's fine, whether we get first place or not doesn't matter."

She spoke to comfort the dejected Wan Miaoyin.

But seeing Wan Miaoyin's expression, she knew she hadn't listened.

Seeing the director hand the cards to the winners of this round, her eyes lit up.

She patted Wan Miaoyin's shoulder. "Look, even now, we two still have the most cards among all the other partners."

Only then did Wan Miaoyin look up at Yin Lingzhu.

"Is what you're saying true?"

Yin Lingzhu nodded emphatically and even carefully calculated the number of cards the other people had for Wan Miaoyin.

Seeing that they were indeed in first place, Wan Miaoyin's guilt lessened considerably.

"As long as I didn't hold you back."

Wan Miaoyin said with relief.

Seeing that Wan Miaoyin had returned to her usual demeanor, Yin Lingzhu was also happy.

In the afternoon games, Yin Lingzhu continued to win first place with her physical fitness.

Her card count also steadily occupied the first position.

And today happened to be Saturday.

According to the initial rules, Yin Lingzhu could designate one person to spend Sweet Sunday with her.

When the production team asked Yin Lingzhu to choose someone, Yin Lingzhu pointed at Wan Miaoyin.

Just when everyone thought Yin Lingzhu was going to choose Wan Miaoyin, Yin Lingzhu slowly spoke.

"I want to give all my cards to Miaoyin."

The director was also stunned for a moment, then immediately asked: "Are you sure?"

Yin Lingzhu nodded vigorously. "Of course I'm sure."

Seeing this, the director didn't say much more.

He transferred all of Yin Lingzhu's cards to Wan Miaoyin and, following the same method he had just used to ask Yin Lingzhu, asked Wan Miaoyin again.

Under everyone's expectant gazes, Wan Miaoyin chose Yin Lingzhu.

Now this was something Yin Lingzhu hadn't expected.

She thought Wan Miaoyin would definitely choose Wang Qingran.

She looked around, trying to find where Wang Qingran was, suspecting that Wan Miaoyin had pointed to the wrong person.

But when she found Wang Qingran's position, she dismissed her previous thought.

Wang Qingran was several meters away from her. At this distance, the possibility of pointing to the wrong person was definitely ruled out.

Wan Miaoyin walked to Yin Lingzhu's side, playing with Yin Lingzhu's hands.

"Let's go, tomorrow is our Sweet Sunday."

Footnotes:

¹ CP: Internet slang derived from "couple pairing," referring to fans' romantic pairing of two people (real or fictional characters). Popular in Chinese internet culture for discussing potential romantic relationships between individuals.