

Chapter 92-1

Wan Miaoyín had previously held onto a little fantasy, fantasizing that by staying by Yin Lingzhu's side, Yin Lingzhu might accept her.

But after experiencing what had just happened, she knew that it was impossible between them.

Although Yin Lingzhu would protect her, that was all—just protection. There wouldn't be anything else between them.

Wan Miaoyín clearly understood this in her heart, but there was nothing she could do about it.

Between her and Yin Lingzhu, it was destined to end.

Perhaps they should never have started in the first place.

She had been entangled with Yin Lingzhu for so long, and until now, she had gained nothing.

Between them, the beautiful memories were just that little bit.

Wan Miaoyín looked at the dark purple bruises on her arm, feeling indescribable emotions in her heart.

In the hospital room, Wan Miaoyín suddenly burst into intense laughter.

Between her and Yin Lingzhu, they were destined to have no fate in this lifetime.

Wan Miaoyín's laughter carried a sharp and helpless quality.

The people passing by outside the hospital room were all startled and quickened their pace.

Yin Lingzhu was sitting in a chair, contemplating what to do in the future.

Suddenly, she heard a commotion outside.

She went out to see what was happening and followed the crowd to the base of a building.

Looking up, Yin Lingzhu saw a figure on the rooftop.

She squinted in confusion, and after clearly seeing that person's face, her heart filled with even more surprise.

For no other reason than the person on the rooftop was actually the director.

Before she could figure out why the director was standing on the rooftop, she heard the director's voice.

"Yan Si, you f*cking remember this—my death is all because of you!"

After saying this, the director immediately took a step forward from the rooftop.

Yin Lingzhu watched as the director fell straight down from the air and crashed to the ground.

The emergency air cushion was less than a meter away from where the director landed.

Yin Lingzhu glanced at this scene, feeling nothing in her heart.

She had no good feelings toward this director either.

It was just a pity—pity for the loss of a life.

On her way back to her room, Yin Lingzhu kept thinking about what the director had said.

Yan Si—what did this matter have to do with Yan Si?

Yin Lingzhu hadn't figured it out, but this incident had already stirred up huge waves online.

Because of the live stream, everyone watching the broadcast had seen this scene.

Some people had even noticed something was wrong in time and had started screen recording.

Yan Si hadn't anticipated that the director would actually jump from the building because of this incident.

But immediately, Yan Si sensed something was wrong.

She immediately instructed her assistant to investigate the director's background more thoroughly.

At the same time, looking at the trend of public opinion online, her brow furrowed tightly.

Because of what the director had said before jumping, many netizens turned their attention to her.

Following the trail upward, they dug into this program thoroughly.

Especially when they discovered that the previous director had also been dismissed, everyone's dark thoughts emerged.

They were unwilling to believe that both directors had problems; they preferred to think that this matter was related to Yan Si.

A large number of netizens began discussing online, and without exception, they were all maliciously speculating about Yan Si.

As for the online commentary, how much was from actual netizens and how much was from Yan Si's rivals was unknown.

Yan Si had offended too many people in the entertainment industry, and many were secretly trying to drag her down.

So they began disguising themselves as various types of people, launching comprehensive attacks on Yan Si.

Regardless of the reason, the online commentary about Yan Si was very negative now.

But Yan Si wasn't anxious. She stared at the malicious comments about her, but her mind was thinking about Yin Lingzhu.

She was wondering what Yin Lingzhu would think of her.

What if Yin Lingzhu thought she was a bad person? What would she do then?

Although she wasn't really that good to begin with.

In that instant, Yan Si thought about many things.

Due to the director's accident, the program now had to be suspended.

When this news was first announced, Yin Lingzhu was happy for a long time.

This was the only thing that had made her happy in so many days.

Not long after this notification came down, another notification hit Yin Lingzhu like a surprise.

【Due to the company's oversight, this season's program ends here. The company will compensate the relevant artists for breach of contract fees.】

Yin Lingzhu stared at these lines of text, confirming them several times. After confirming she hadn't misread, the joy in her heart was beyond words.

She didn't really care about the amount of the breach of contract fee mentioned later; she only cared that the program had ended.

This also meant that she was completely free.

Yin Lingzhu immediately packed up her clothes and escaped from this place at the fastest speed possible.

Yang Daiyi also discovered this immediately and waited at the door to welcome Yin Lingzhu's arrival.

The moment Yin Lingzhu saw Yang Daiyi, it was like seeing a friend she hadn't seen in a long time.

Her eyes were full of excitement.

Since Yin Lingzhu didn't have a house in this huge city, and Yang Daiyi's home wasn't suitable for housing people, they simply found a hotel.

After Yang Daiyi helped Yin Lingzhu find a hotel and was about to leave, Yin Lingzhu suddenly grabbed her.

Yang Daiyi looked at Yin Lingzhu with confused eyes.

"Sister Yang, for a period of time in the future, I want to be alone and quiet. Please don't book any programs for me."

After listening, Yang Daiyi expressed understanding.

She made an OK gesture to Yin Lingzhu, "Don't worry, just let me know when you've rested enough."

When Yin Lingzhu saw that Yang Daiyi had no intention of stopping her, she also breathed a sigh of relief.

As soon as she settled into the hotel, Yin Lingzhu immediately booked a plane ticket.

She was even considering in her mind whether to leave this city altogether.

In her view, there was nothing left in this city worth her nostalgia.

Yin Lingzhu lay on the bed, looking at the ceiling, feeling a sour sensation in her heart.

Everyone has imprinting tendencies¹, and this city was the first place she had encountered.

So Yin Lingzhu didn't want to leave.

But there was nothing left in this place worth missing.

Moreover, not only were there almost no beautiful memories, but most of the time, looking back now, had been meaningless and tiring.

Yin Lingzhu let out a long breath. After returning from this trip abroad, she would leave City A.

As she thought this, her open black eyes gradually became determined.

And the moment she booked her ticket, Yan Si also received a notification.

She squinted her eyes, looking at the information on her phone, her fingers continuously tapping on the table.

The light from the ceiling shone down, illuminating Yan Si's face, with most of her face hidden in darkness.

Yan Si lowered her eyes, her eyelashes concealing all the emotions in her eyes.

After a long while, her fingers moved slightly as she booked herself onto the same flight as Yin Lingzhu.

Moreover, when selecting seats, she chose the seat next to Yin Lingzhu's.

Footnotes:

1. Imprinting tendencies: Refers to the psychological phenomenon where people form strong emotional attachments to places, people, or experiences they encounter early in their lives, similar to how young animals imprint on their caregivers.
