

Chapter 94-1

The place Yin Lingzhu rented was near the ocean.

Yan Si looked at Yin Lingzhu sitting on the beach, feeling her heart soften.

She slowly walked over, her shoe soles stepping on the soft sand, creating one pit after another as Yan Si walked past.

Yin Lingzhu was currently immersed in her own world, not noticing someone approaching.

The azure blue ocean carried traces of ink black, inspiring infinite imagination while also making one unable to help but feel afraid.

Yin Lingzhu looked at the endless ocean before her, her eyes full of confusion.

What filled her heart were thoughts of Yan Si.

The wind from the sea surface blew over, carrying a salty taste.

Yin Lingzhu's pupils reflected a patch of blue.

Yan Si sat down behind her, silently watching the ocean together with her.

The wind blew through both of their hair.

Yin Lingzhu had been blowing in the sea breeze for a long time, but her mind hadn't cleared up in the slightest.

She looked up at the sky and suddenly realized that it had already gotten so late.

She stood up and patted the sand off her pants. When she turned around, she saw Yan Si.

And Yan Si had been watching her the whole time, so she didn't even have time to look away.

The moment their gazes collided, time seemed to stand still.

Yin Lingzhu didn't know how she should react.

But Yan Si was very calm. "I've come to deliver my life to you."

Hearing what she said, Yin Lingzhu instinctively wanted to scold her.

"Yes, I'm sick."

The corners of Yan Si's mouth held a smile as she spoke ahead of Yin Lingzhu, looking at her calmly.

Yin Lingzhu choked, her mouth that had opened immediately closed again.

She glared at Yan Si. "Good that you know."

After saying this, Yin Lingzhu walked past Yan Si without giving her another glance.

Yan Si stood behind her, watching Yin Lingzhu's hair being blown by the wind, the emotions in her eyes almost impossible to hide.

She followed behind Yin Lingzhu and booked a room next to Yin Lingzhu's.

Yin Lingzhu also noticed that Yan Si was following behind her, but she didn't care.

Yin Lingzhu had been touring around here very happily these past few days. If it weren't for the fact that she was almost out of money, Yin Lingzhu really wouldn't want to go back.

When stepping onto the airplane, Yin Lingzhu still felt a bit of unreality.

She didn't want to go back to work.

Yin Lingzhu sat in the window seat, looking at the scenery outside the window and letting out a long sigh.

She didn't even notice when someone sat down beside her.

Yan Si wore a baseball cap and a black mask, sitting next to Yin Lingzhu.

She had wrapped herself up very tightly, even wearing sunglasses over her eyes.

She was very confident that no one would be able to recognize her.

Yin Lingzhu pulled her gaze back from outside and casually glanced to the side, then frowned.

Why was Yan Si dressed like this?

Yin Lingzhu looked at her own short sleeves, then at Yan Si's black jacket, becoming aware of the temperature here.

She wondered with confusion: wasn't Yan Si hot?

Yin Lingzhu didn't want to ask, so she just took one look and turned back to the window.

But Yan Si thought that Yin Lingzhu hadn't recognized her, feeling both relieved and disappointed.

She looked at Yin Lingzhu again, but could only see Yin Lingzhu's profile.

The two remained silent the entire way, not saying a single word until the plane landed.

Yin Lingzhu walked straight off the plane without looking sideways and headed straight for the hotel she had reserved.

Perhaps it was because the time on the plane had been too long this time, but Yin Lingzhu felt that her neck was very uncomfortable.

She placed her hand on her neck, where waves of pain made it impossible for her to concentrate.

Yin Lingzhu lay on the bed, already planning in her heart to go to the hospital tomorrow to check her body.

Yan Si didn't continue following Yin Lingzhu either. She returned to the company and began handling the work that had piled up over the past few days.

All matters big and small in the company needed her to handle.

And she also wanted to give the best things to Yin Lingzhu.

Yan Si sat in her office chair, seriously reading the materials in front of her.

The excessive accumulation of documents made Yan Si's nerves somewhat fatigued, so she overlooked one document.

This document would make her regret deeply in the future.

The next day, Yin Lingzhu got up early. The pain in her neck made it necessary to go to the hospital as soon as possible.

And Yan Si also learned about Yin Lingzhu going to the hospital at the first opportunity.

Yan Si immediately put down the documents in her hands and rushed to the hospital.

Yin Lingzhu followed the doctor's instructions and lay down on the detection device.

With a 'beep' sound from the machine, Yin Lingzhu's consciousness suddenly disappeared.

But this technology wouldn't cause anyone to faint at all.

The doctor who had been monitoring the data was immediately frightened when he saw this scene.

But this machine's gland detection process couldn't be interrupted midway.

The doctor could only wait anxiously on the side for the time to finish.

As soon as time was up, the doctor immediately got Yin Lingzhu out.

He had just placed Yin Lingzhu on the bed when he heard another doctor's surprised voice.

The doctor walked over, and when he saw the report, he was equally shocked with wide eyes.

He exchanged glances with the other doctor, realizing the seriousness of the problem, and they both immediately hurried to You Xiaoxiao's office.

You Xiaoxiao looked at the report they brought. When she saw that the name was Yin Lingzhu, her heart stirred slightly.

But as she continued reading, You Xiaoxiao didn't feel too much surprise in her heart.

Unlike the two doctors in front of her who didn't understand anything, You Xiaoxiao clearly knew Yin Lingzhu's physical condition.

And the current situation was actually something she had already anticipated.

You Xiaoxiao put down the report in her hands.

"I understand her condition. I'll take responsibility for it."

The composure on You Xiaoxiao's face successfully convinced the two people.

"Alright, Director You."

After the two doctors left, You Xiaoxiao's face finally showed anxious expression.

She knew that Yin Lingzhu's body would have aftereffects, but she didn't know that these aftereffects would be this severe.

You Xiaoxiao picked up the report and carefully examined it.

At the same time, Yan Si also learned that Yin Lingzhu had fainted during her physical examination.

Yan Si looked at Yin Lingzhu lying on the bed, feeling a sharp pain in her heart.

She took a deep look at Yin Lingzhu, then turned and went to You Xiaoxiao's office.

You Xiaoxiao wasn't surprised by her arrival.

She waved at Yan Si. "Sit."

Yan Si let out a long breath and sat in the seat You Xiaoxiao indicated.

"Save Lingzhu."

Yan Si's tone rarely carried a pleading note.

On You Xiaoxiao's desk, Yin Lingzhu's report was still placed.

She didn't have much confidence about this surgery either.

Moreover, in her subconscious, she still harbored resentment toward Yan Si.

You Xiaoxiao crossed her arms. "Yan Si, I will definitely save the patient. Please leave."

Yan Si held back a big breath in her heart, but at this moment, she couldn't lose her temper.

She also had research experience with glands.

From the report just now, she clearly knew that if Yin Lingzhu's aftereffects weren't immediately cured, she would definitely lose her life.

But Yin Lingzhu's gland aftereffects were caused by extracting too much pheromones¹.

The only solution now was to input another person's pheromones into Yin Lingzhu's glands.

And Yan Si was the best candidate.

For this surgery, Yan Si only trusted You Xiaoxiao's skills.

Even though there were still barriers between them, she didn't want to give up.

"I only trust you."

Before leaving, Yan Si said this sentence.

But for You Xiaoxiao, this sentence was something she had longed for all along - it was a form of recognition.

The moment Yan Si stepped out of the door, she heard You Xiaoxiao say "Okay."

Footnotes:

¹ Pheromones (信息素): In omegaverse/ABO fiction, these are chemical signals that Alphas, Betas, and Omegas emit and respond to, playing crucial roles in attraction, bonding, and biological functions.