

Chapter 104-2 - Spider Lily

Outside the window came the chirping of summer night insects, peaceful and tranquil. The turbulent waves in Ning Fuyi's heart gradually calmed with the crackling lamplight.

She didn't rush to explore the truth, but instead rested her chin on Su Mo's shoulder, using sign language before her eyes: "From now on we won't go up the mountain anymore. Tomorrow I'll take you to the county to have fun, how about that?"

Su Mo nodded. She quickly stopped minding Ning Fuyi's earlier behavior, lowering her head with a smile.

She had never left the town since birth. The farthest place she had been was the big mountain before them. But strangely, she didn't yearn for distant scenery either, as if in her heart, all scenery was just ordinary.

What mattered was having Yiyi accompany her.

The news of having little life remaining seemed not to bring any change to their daily life. They embraced each other and slept soundly through the night. The next day, Ning Fuyi got up very early, made clear porridge and simple dishes for Su Mo, and set them on the table.

After Su Mo woke up, she brought the washing basin to Su Mo's bedside, causing Su Mo to shake her head in surprise and gesture: "I'm not long for this world, but I'm not weak and unable to care for myself."

"But besides this, I don't know how else to treat you well." Ning Fuyi smiled as she stuffed the face cloth into her hands. "After you wash, we'll eat."

With that, her tall figure turned around to prepare the pills Su Mo needed to take.

Su Mo's gaze followed her movement, quickly finished washing, dressed, and got out of bed.

Ning Fuyi was still counting various colored pills one by one when Su Mo suddenly stood on tiptoe, wrapped her arms around her waist from behind, and hugged her tightly from the back.

Feeling the softness and warmth behind her, Ning Fuyi turned around in her embrace, lowered her head to capture those rosy lips. Su Mo didn't dodge this time, but instead learned from Ning Fuyi to extend her tongue, making Ning Fuyi breathless.

Ning Fuyi was kissed until her breathing became soft. She leaned back against the table, reaching her hand down Su Mo's neck. Su Mo made sticky, soft sounds that made one's heart feel all warm and wet.

This kiss was lingering and tender. After a long time they separated, Ning Fuyi's lips burning hot, her tongue tip darting out to lick them as she smiled alluringly.

Su Mo then stood on tiptoe again and took a small bite of her earlobe. Ning Fuyi cried out softly in pain.

"Why did you bite me again?" Ning Fuyi asked helplessly.

Su Mo didn't answer. She shook her hair at Ning Fuyi, then turned to go eat. Ning Fuyi's embrace suddenly felt empty, and she touched herself with lingering reluctance.

After finishing breakfast and tidying themselves up, they pushed open the door to see a carriage with golden canopy and pearl curtains, painted with colorful walls, stopped at their courtyard gate.

Two beauties stood on either side of the carriage - the white one holding a bamboo umbrella and hat, the black one carrying a water pot and tea. A woman in red robes stood in front of the carriage, extending her long arm with a smile: "Please."

Ning Fuyi was completely confused as she looked at Jiuying, Hannya, and Xique: "Have you three been possessed?"

"Not at all. We simply heard that you two were going out together, felt happy in our hearts, and came specially to serve." Jiuying pretentiously placed her hand on her chest. "Please."

Ning Fuyi found this both amusing and exasperating, but knowing they wanted to make Su Mo happy, she said no more and reached out to help Su Mo into the carriage.

Su Mo was initially somewhat startled, but quickly put it behind her. After thanking the three of them, she lowered the pearl curtain.

The carriage started moving. Inside was spacious, burning rich incense. Ning Fuyi and Su Mo sat side by side, smiling at each other.

"These, are all your friends?" Su Mo gestured.

"Mm, they're close friends who've shared life and death with me." Ning Fuyi didn't hide anything.

"I also, really want, to be Yiyi's, close friend." Su Mo spoke aloud, resting her head on Ning Fuyi's shoulder with a smile. "But unfortunately, I can't accompany you, for very long."

Ning Fuyi smelled the clear fragrance of her hair, closing her eyes and saying softly: "You already are one."

"When you're not, with me, what are you, like?" Su Mo suddenly became curious. Perhaps because she treasured their time together, she had become much more lively.

"Are you an immortal? Do you know, magic?"

"I'm not quite an immortal. I'm a bad person." Ning Fuyi said seriously. "Of course I know magic."

"I don't believe it. You must be, a good person." Su Mo intertwined her fingers with Ning Fuyi's, playing with those hands she loved so much.

Thinking of how these hands always cradled the back of her head, or how they felt moving across her body, made her feel warmth rising in her heart.

Such an amazing, such a wonderful Yiyi, willing to stay in the mortal world and be a mortal with her - even if she died right now, she would have no regrets.

"Does the bumpy road hurt you?" Ning Fuyi touched the wooden board where Su Mo was sitting. Su Mo immediately reddened below her eyes, shifting left and right.

It did hurt a bit.

Jiuying, Hannya and the others were all non-mortals after all - how could they think that mortals needed soft cushions when riding in carriages? Ning Fuyi shook her head, wanting to take off her clothes to cushion for her.

But unexpectedly, the woman suddenly stood up, turned in a circle, and with a soft movement of her waist, sat on her lap.

That sensation made both of them feel heated for a moment. Ning Fuyi raised her hand to open a gap, letting the wind blow in, which made them feel better.

"I'm afraid, you'll forget me." Su Mo suddenly said. This was also why, despite feeling shy and embarrassed, she still wanted to stay close to her.

Su Mo placed her hands on Ning Fuyi's shoulders, carefully curling into her embrace, her voice tender.

"You really haven't lied to me - when the mortal Su Mo dies, you'll be able to see, the Chu Qingqiu in heaven?"
