

Chapter 155_2 - Jade Nectar

After a short while, a red jade archway appeared before her. Once Chu Qingqiu stepped through the archway, the scene of flying yellow sand in front of her suddenly burned away like white paper meeting fire, creating a hole through which another scene gradually unfolded. Directly ahead stood a towering wine house reaching into the clouds, with beast heads embedded at each of the six corner eaves - their blue faces and protruding fangs were beyond description in their ferocity.

Seeing someone enter the demon market<sup>1</sup>, the beast heads immediately let out roaring howls. Chu Qingqiu instinctively raised her hand but was pushed aside by a passing bull-headed person who said impatiently: "Move, move, move! Don't block the way!"

The bull-head carried a vegetable basket containing several bloody heads. He squeezed past Chu Qingqiu and quickly disappeared into the bustling demon crowd.

Chu Qingqiu retreated several steps before finding an unoccupied spot to stand. Looking around, even though she was well-experienced in worldly affairs, she couldn't help but slightly drop her jaw.

The wine house was actually the center of this demon market, with four long streets extending in all directions. Each street was packed with people, filled with strange and bizarre sights. There were demons shrouded in black robes who seemed like drifting demonic energy, monsters not yet fully transformed still bearing beast heads, and some with powerful demonic abilities who appeared no different from ordinary men, women, elderly, and children.

Chu Qingqiu was led by the blue feather toward the eastern street. The roadside was noisy and chaotic - on the left were stalls selling beast stones<sup>2</sup>, with various spirit beast stones emitting five-colored light.

A monster with wings on its back opened its bird beak to hawk: "Fresh beast stones! Buy beast stones, get beast heads, beast legs, beast hearts free! Take a look, come and see..."

"Freshly dug dead men's bones, fresh bones, fresh bones..."

"Miss, take a look - essence of strong young men from the mortal world, buy a bottle?" An old crone on the right, hunched like a shrimp, extended her arm seven feet long to grab at Chu Qingqiu's feet. Chu Qingqiu quickly dodged sideways, waving her hand in refusal.

Most stalls on both sides sold such items. Though the shops weren't as chaotic, they were still dark and sinister, reeking of old bloodstains. Chu Qingqiu feared something fierce might jump out from inside, so she didn't look much and quickened her pace despite her discomfort.

Only when she reached the end of the long street did that bloody smell mixed with rotting wood fade somewhat. Music faintly rang in her ears. After turning another corner, the scene before her eyes unfolded like opening a page of bamboo scrolls<sup>3</sup>, revealing a brightly lit, festively decorated sight.

The building ahead was several zhang<sup>4</sup> high, looking as if it connected with the dark red sky when one looked up. One entire side was windows, with bright lights inside the paper-covered windows, occasionally casting graceful silhouettes.

At the entrance, red silk was scattered with paper scraps. Two fox spirits with fox heads and beautiful human bodies twisted their waists into afterimages, approaching to pull Chu Qingqiu inside.

Chu Qingqiu really couldn't stand their fox smell, so she secretly flicked some immortal power with her finger, freezing the two foxes in place before entering.

Inside and outside the door were like two different worlds. Upon entering, there was brilliant light and fragrance for miles around. The door behind her quickly transformed into a wall after she entered. Chu Qingqiu stepped into the crowd and looked past the applauding people in front of her to see Ning Fuyi.

The Demon Lord, draped in black robes and wearing a golden crown, sat in the highest position with a cheerful smile. Beside her, more than ten beauties danced to "Yangzhou Slow<sup>5</sup>," dazzling the observers.

Some beauties, while dancing, would extend their delicate hands with crystal-clear fingernails to brush across Ning Fuyi's cheek, then improperly sit beside her, picking up wine cups to feed her.

However, in the next instant, the beauty's eyes widened, her hands involuntarily tightening, so the entire cup of jade nectar<sup>6</sup> spilled all over Ning Fuyi's face.

Ning Fuyi had been in a pleasant mood, but now was completely awakened by the cup of wine. Just as she was about to fly into a rage, she saw a length of white silk fly from the crowd, rolling all those beauties into a bundle and throwing them somewhere unknown.

Thus, the large area in front cleared out in the blink of an eye.

Ning Fuyi's good mood was thoroughly ruined. Her smile disappeared as she suddenly reached out, demonic energy flowing from her palm like a long silk ribbon, piercing into the crowd to directly drag out the troublemaker.

Fire-red sleeves flew up first, followed by the woman's body. Her skirt hem fluttered, covering the candlelight and brilliantly concealing her ankles.

Ning Fuyi had intended to teach this person a lesson, but upon seeing that face, she abruptly withdrew the Emei needle from her right palm, releasing her grip to let the woman fall, her red lips tightening.

"Little White?" Ning Fuyi said. "Do you really think this lord doesn't kill people?"

Chu Qingqiu couldn't bear to see her intimate with others. Now dragged to the front stage, that impulse faded, leaving only trembling fingertips.

"I came to offer a dance," she finally said.

Ning Fuyi looked her up and down, examining that beautiful but righteously stern face and letting out a light laugh. She waved her hand to dismiss the demons and sat back on the soft couch.

"Oh?" She tilted her head, resting her temple against her fingertips. Her earlier anger dissipated somewhat. "But if this dance can't appease this lord's anger, don't blame this lord for showing no mercy to your immortal realm."

Chu Qingqiu looked at her, then swept her long sleeves over the qin<sup>7</sup> placed on both sides. The strings began playing by themselves, with trickling music flowing out.

She drew out White Bone as a sword and tore open her sleeves.

Thus the wind became fierce, the sword cleaved through wind, dancing sword flowers under the lamplight. Countless fragments of silver blazed dazzlingly, and when the fire-red sleeves brushed past the silver fragments, they too were dyed with gentle radiance.

The figure wrapped in red clothes was extremely beautiful. Though somewhat thin, it was still a woman's body. The exposed skin was whiter than the White Bone in her hands, and when the sleeves occasionally swept across that piece of white jade, they left dazzling afterimages.

Ning Fuyi didn't move, but her gaze seemed to pierce through the red clothes before her, seeing a crescent of pure white moon.

She suddenly lowered her head, as if something wanted to break free from her mind, but couldn't find a crack and rampaged around, causing her head to ache.

Finally, the qin music stopped, the swift wind before her eyes also faded, and the woman stood before her without gasping: "Are you no longer angry?"

It should have been a placating question, but when she asked it, it was clearly neither humble nor arrogant.

It made Ning Fuyi, the world's greatest demon lord, feel as if she was being unreasonable.

"Not at all." Ning Fuyi rubbed her forehead to ease the pain, then answered coldly. "What kind of messy dance was that? Not a bit of softness."

She thought the woman before her would be angry about this, but the woman only remained silent.

So Ning Fuyi wanted to investigate further. However, just as she raised her face from the shadows, she saw the woman pull her other foot that had been lying across the couch down to the ground, then in flowing red clothes, turn and settle onto her legs.

The fragrant, warm body leaned against her chest, long legs draped over her knees. Ning Fuyi sensitively detected a soft mass.

Though the woman before her had no coquettish expression, touching her made Ning Fuyi, whose heart had been like still water since birth, experience for the first time what it meant to blush and have her heart race.

"How about this way?" Chu Qingqiu asked lightly.

Five years of separation and constant longing made Chu Qingqiu more fierce and reckless than ever before.

She wanted her back.

Ning Fuyi paused for a long time, not knowing how to speak. The woman suddenly picked up a wine cup from the table beside them, took a sip, then quickly leaned down.

Her sandalwood lips<sup>8</sup> softly pressed against Ning Fuyi's lips while pushing the mouthful of jade nectar into her body.

---

Footnotes:

<sup>1</sup> Demon market (魔市) - A marketplace within the Demon Realm where demons conduct business and entertainment.

<sup>2</sup> Beast stones (兽石) - Magical stones harvested from spirit beasts, likely containing their essence or power.

<sup>3</sup> Bamboo scrolls (竹简) - Traditional Chinese books made from bamboo strips, which opened by unrolling.

<sup>4</sup> Zhang (丈) - A traditional Chinese unit of measurement, approximately 3.3 meters or 10.8 feet.

<sup>5</sup> Yangzhou Slow (扬州慢) - A famous classical Chinese musical piece, often used for elegant dances.

<sup>6</sup> Jade nectar (琼浆玉液) - Literally "jade liquid," referring to high-quality, precious wine or nectar.

<sup>7</sup> Qin (琴) - A traditional Chinese stringed musical instrument, similar to a zither.

<sup>8</sup> Sandalwood lips (檀唇) - A poetic way to describe beautiful, fragrant lips, comparing them to precious sandalwood.