

Chapter 158_1 - Ending (Part 1)

Being called by this voice repeatedly, Ning Fuyi's heart felt as if ants were crawling over it, itching madly. She raised her hand to pull down those arms from her neck, slowly pressing them against the soft pillow on both sides.

Chu Qingqiu didn't dodge. She bit her lip and fell back, her jade-white body sinking into the bedding. Ning Fuyi lowered her head and gently bit her sash. Soon the fire-red garment and outer robe slipped off together, sliding outside the bed curtains.

Ning Fuyi lowered her head to kiss her palm. Chu Qingqiu sniffed and turned her head to stare at Ning Fuyi.

The woman's ink-black hair was like clouds, her shoulders barely visible. Her phoenix eyes seemed to sense being watched, then lifted from her palm, and their gazes met.

The reddened eyes were enchanting as a demon's. At this moment, her gaze was tinged with possessive desire, like transparent threads slowly binding a person, making them unable to move.

"Yiyi¹..." Chu Qingqiu's voice was hoarse. Her heart was [redacted], and she pulled Ning Fuyi's hand over, placing it on her chest, indicating for her to feel her heartbeat.

The soft sensation made Ning Fuyi's spine feel as if electricity had passed through it, her entire body generating summer heat.

Outside the window, the setting sun fell behind the hillside, colorful clouds filled the azure sky, and late-returning birds chirped as they swept through the sky, weary birds returning to their nests.

The sky's light was like indigo dye being dropped in, everything shrouded in blue smoke. Shadows and faint blue tones enveloped the entwined bodies, sensuously tumbling.

Ning Fuyi pulled the bedding from beside them to cover them both. The fragrance from their bodies mixed in the narrow space of the bedding. As Ning Fuyi's thoughts surged, she slowly slid deeper into the bedding.

But Chu Qingqiu suddenly broke free from her arousal, grabbing Ning Fuyi's arm with her other hand and pulling her back to face her.

"What's wrong?" Ning Fuyi's movements were interrupted by her, and she spoke lightly like a breath, reaching out to brush away the sweat-dampened hair at her temples.

Chu Qingqiu was silent for a moment, then opened her mouth: "Let me look at you."

"I want to look at you." Her voice was already hoarse before she even spoke, reaching up to cup Ning Fuyi's face, as if only by staring closely could she feel at peace.

So afraid this was a dream, so afraid she would leave.

Ning Fuyi smiled in surprise but still obediently turned to lie half on her side beside her: "Alright."

Then she reached her hand into the bedding, searching in the heat. Sweat was like the humid dew of summer nights, making the person in her arms become slippery like a fish, as if she couldn't be caught.

Chu Qingqiu immediately trembled. She bit her lip tightly, enduring without rolling away to avoid it. Her eyes quickly filled with moisture. She was half joyful and half unable to bear it, but her gaze never left the woman's face.

"You won't leave me again, will you?" Chu Qingqiu's teeth were chattering. She couldn't help but bend her knees, lifting the bedding, then forcefully gripped Ning Fuyi's neck, dominantly holding her within the clear sight of her eyes.

"Of course." Ning Fuyi's hands didn't stop, her phoenix eyes rippling as she leaned close to peck at her lips.

"If you forget me again, I will..."

"You will what?"

"I will..." Chu Qingqiu couldn't say any threatening words and finally shook her head. "I don't seem to have the right to say such things."

Usually, it was she herself who turned around first each time.

She didn't know that the person left behind would suffer a hundred times more than the one who left.

Ning Fuyi saw the softness in her eyes and knew what she was thinking at this moment. So her gaze lingered, and she smiled: "Alright, the past is like passing clouds. Let's not mention it anymore."

"Look, now you understand me, and I understand you too. Some things, when one is in that position, anyone with a conscience must do them."

"You protect the world, and this world also has me in it." Ning Fuyi kissed her gradually glistening eye corners.

"No." Chu Qingqiu shook her head again, tears sliding from her eye corners. "You are the world."

Ning Fuyi was stunned, then suddenly smiled even more. She suddenly turned in the bedding. Chu Qingqiu's face turned completely red, but she still followed her movements, lifting her long legs to straddle in front of her.

The sky light grew increasingly dark, so dark that all objects became shadows. Only the sounds of water and their breathing could be clearly heard.

The small room gradually filled with intertwined crying and laughter, faintly dissipating in the summer night wind. No one could hear it, only the flowers and grass blooming at night in front of the door quietly blushed.

The next day was another sunny day. The hazy sky light passed through the clouds, and a grass surviving in the cracks on the roof shook its body to shake off the dew, enjoying the baptism of morning light.

When Ning Fuyi opened her eyes, she was in a very delicate position, pillowing on Chu Qingqiu's extended arm, curled up in her embrace.

Because of the summer night's heat, the bedding had somehow been kicked off the bed. So when she focused her eyes, the scene she saw was exactly the same as last night.

Goosebumps and red clouds climbed up her skin together. Ning Fuyi hurriedly broke free from Chu Qingqiu's arm, waved her hand to conjure clothing, and carefully covered her.

Chu Qingqiu's figure was extremely beautiful - like bamboo, like divine flowers, like the bright moon. Her skin was white as if rolled in flour, and because of last night's excessive passion, it now showed large patches of red.

Of course, Ning Fuyi herself wasn't much better. She conjured an undergarment to put on, and in her daze, touched the stickiness on her fingers, becoming dazed for quite a while.

Then a smile crept up to the corners of her eyes and brows. Outside, birds chirped, and the empty mountains were serene.

It was just another ordinary morning. There would be countless more ordinary days and nights ahead. They no longer needed to live in constant fear for their lives or fight against evil spirits with iron horses and armor.

Perhaps she couldn't help but laugh out loud, waking Chu Qingqiu. The woman opened her eyes, which still retained the lazy aftermath of exhaustion.

She met Ning Fuyi's gaze, her body stiffened for a moment, then she calmly sat up, looked down at herself, and waved her hand to brush away those red marks and stickiness.

Then clothing seemed to grow from her skin, quickly wrapping around her entire body. But unlike usual loose robes with wide sleeves, this time they were tailored to show her waist.

"Are you tired?" Ning Fuyi asked.

Chu Qingqiu originally wanted to say how could this venerable one be tired, but then remembered something, lowered her peach blossom eyes, and nodded.

Her lowered gaze was originally to avoid, but to others, it looked like she was truly tired - soft and pitiable. Combined with her crying hard at the end last night, her eyes inevitably appeared red.

Ning Fuyi immediately softened her tone, coaxing her to lie down again while she squatted beside her, diligently massaging her waist.

"I forgot that you were also injured five years ago. Last night I was momentarily possessed and didn't consider this. It was my fault." Ning Fuyi looked at Chu Qingqiu lying powerlessly and felt full of regret.

"Now that you know, be gentler in the future," Chu Qingqiu reproached.

Ning Fuyi nodded repeatedly, massaging wholeheartedly. Chu Qingqiu squinted her peach blossom eyes, hiding the subtle satisfaction in them.

They leisurely lay until the sun was high, then the two got up and began cleaning the wooden house, restoring it to its former state. They even prepared water and firewood, storing them under a thatched shed like townspeople, presenting an appearance of living a settled life.

Footnotes:

1. Yiyi (衣衣): An affectionate nickname for Ning Fuyi