

Chapter 160-2 Extra Chapter Two

Ning Fuyi looked carefully at Chu Qingqiu. The other party's face showed no expression at this moment, making it impossible to read her inner thoughts. However, those lips were pressed into a thin line, showing no trace of happiness.

"What do you think is the cause of this situation?" Ning Fuyi decided to break this eerie silence and asked gently.

Chu Qingqiu shook her head. Her gaze lingered on Su Mo's eyes, as if she hadn't yet accepted this reality.

"Grandmother mentioned a few days ago that the celestial phenomena were unusual. Could this be related to this matter?" Jiang Li suddenly spoke up, thinking as she talked. "Perhaps the abnormal celestial phenomena caused time instability, which allowed Su Mo, who should have... to appear several years later?"

"It's not impossible, but I think this matter shouldn't be publicized, lest it be exploited by those with ulterior motives. Medical Immortal Jiang, you and I should seek out some people well-versed in the arts of yin-yang and the five elements to inquire about this situation... and what should be done." Jiuying was also biting her nails in difficulty.

"That's all we can do." Jiang Li shook her head. She looked at Su Mo again. "Then she..."

"Let her take care of herself." Jiuying suddenly smiled, her phoenix eyes looking slyly at Chu Qingqiu.

"Jiuying." Ning Fuyi warned through gritted teeth, and then Jiuying laughingly pulled Jiang Li away, disappearing together outside the barrier of the Tranquil Mountain Palace.

Thus, only three people remained in the palace courtyard, staring at each other. Ning Fuyi hesitated for a long while, finally having to endure Chu Qingqiu's cold gaze and crouch down in front of Su Mo.

A pair of gentle peach blossom eyes, clear as crystal, made Ning Fuyi unable to bear speaking.

"Um... do you know how long it has been since that time?" Ning Fuyi said softly, accompanying her words with gestures.

Su Mo nodded. She glanced at Chu Qingqiu again before answering: "When I woke up, I knew it had been many, many years."

She paused, pointed her index finger at herself, then turned it at her temple, and finally pointed it toward Ning Fuyi.

I miss you so much, she said.

Ning Fuyi's lips parted slightly, and for a moment she didn't dare look at the burning passion in those eyes, lowering her head and feeling a strange sense of guilt.

Chu Qingqiu, who could also understand sign language, clenched her sleeves even tighter at this moment, feeling the sharpness of her nails even through the fabric. She suddenly turned her gaze away, unable to bear the turmoil in her heart.

She certainly knew that Su Mo was herself, and she even remembered every detail of Su Mo and Ning Fuyi's interactions. In her heart, those were memories that belonged exclusively to the two of them.

But now, when another Su Mo stood clearly before her eyes, she suddenly felt confused, not knowing who exactly had been the one loving Ning Fuyi on that hillside several years ago.

Someone save me, Ning Fuyi despaired as she hugged her knees. Having lived two lifetimes, this was still the first time she felt so at a loss.

"The wind is strong outside. Let's go inside to continue talking." Chu Qingqiu spoke flatly and turned to walk up the corridor.

"Yes, the wind is strongest here. Your body is already weak, so you can't stay long." Ning Fuyi hurriedly followed, reaching out to help Su Mo up. But Su Mo was indeed physically weak, and the moment she stood up, her body swayed to one side.

Ning Fuyi quickly reached out to support her slender waist, frowning as she steadied the person in her arms.

However, when she looked back, she met Chu Qingqiu's gaze directly. Her hand went soft and she almost dropped the person, but in the next instant Chu Qingqiu had already looked away and strode off, disappearing behind the corridor.

Ning Fuyi breathed a sigh of relief and supported the person as they hid from the wind.

Su Mo was very obedient, even more obedient than she had ever been before. Sitting in Chu Qingqiu's hall, her eyes would sometimes look longingly at Ning Fuyi, sometimes fearfully examine Chu Qingqiu, and finally lower to her feet, saying not a word.

Chu Qingqiu meditated silently. Ning Fuyi didn't know what to say either, only occasionally making conversation. The three maintained complete silence for an entire day, until the autumn wind died down, the crescent moon rose, and it was time to rest. Only then did Ning Fuyi rise from beside the table.

"Uh... it's getting late. No matter what the situation is now, we all need to rest, especially Su Mo." She handed Su Mo a Shu brocade¹ blanket. "You must be very tired from traveling for days."

Su Mo smiled at her and walked toward the bed holding the blanket, but the clever girl quickly stopped, because on that bed were two embroidered pillows that were identical.

Ning Fuyi noticed too. She was about to use immortal power to hide one of the soft pillows when Su Mo said carefully and haltingly: "It's fine. I'll go sleep in another room. That's good."

With that, she lowered her head and quickly left. Ning Fuyi hurried to stop her, but Su Mo's body suddenly froze, and at the same time, the blanket in her hands suddenly flew up and landed in a pale, slender palm.

"I'll go." Chu Qingqiu had opened her eyes at some point and spoke flatly while holding the blanket.

Even a fool could see that the atmosphere was wrong, let alone Ning Fuyi. Seeing that Chu Qingqiu was about to leave, Ning Fuyi quickly stepped forward and took the blanket.

"Forget it, I'll go. I'll go to the side hall. You two rest peacefully, and we'll meet in the morning." Ning Fuyi felt like cold sweat was about to break out. Holding the blanket, she ran toward the outside.

Footnotes:

¹ Shu brocade (蜀锦) - A type of silk brocade originally from the Shu region (modern-day Sichuan Province), known for its intricate patterns and high quality.