

Chapter 18_2 - Blindfolded

Ning Fuyi didn't know how long she had slept. In her dreams, the sky was dark and sunless. It wasn't until she felt a wet, sticky sensation on her hand that she awakened in alarm, only to be greeted by the white tiger's bucket-sized eyes and its tongue full of barbs.

Anyone would feel uncomfortable waking up to such a sight. Ning Fuyi cried out in alarm, but suddenly a hand covered her lips, blocking her words: "Silence, be careful not to attract fierce beasts."

Ning Fuyi swallowed her shout. She turned sideways wanting to look at Chu Qingqiu, but those hands suddenly pressed against her back, not allowing her to turn her head.

"Don't look around," Chu Qingqiu said coldly.

Ning Fuyi was bewildered. She was about to say something when she suddenly discovered that the immortal power that had originally been lost from her body had now been restored, even more abundant than before. The evil aura no longer affected her either. Her entire body felt light and airy, as if reborn.

"Why save me?" Ning Fuyi obediently didn't turn around but asked.

"I promised your mother, so naturally I must do it." Chu Qingqiu's voice carried fatigue. "Feed this to Bai Lin."

Speaking thus, her slender finger traced across Ning Fuyi's palm, leaving behind a pill.

The pill emanated an herbal fragrance with delicate coloring - clearly not an ordinary item.

No matter how much of a scoundrel Ning Fuyi was, she knew what constituted a life-saving grace. Although she still disliked Chu Qingqiu as always, the other party had saved her multiple times, so she could no longer harden her heart.

Thus she pushed herself up from the ground and slowly walked toward the white tiger. Leaping onto its back, she took advantage of when the white tiger opened its mouth and raised its head to throw the pill into its mouth with lightning speed. The white tiger obviously didn't like taking medicine and rolled its tongue trying to spit it out, but helplessly the pill dissolved upon contact, forcing it to swallow.

Earlier when sitting on the ground she couldn't see clearly, but now from this elevated view, she gasped in shock.

The ground that had previously only held bones was now littered with dozens of fresh corpses, all of strange and grotesque demonic beasts. Some still had evil aura emanating from their bodies, rolling black smoke, while colorful blood flowed everywhere, emitting a strong stench.

The divine beast white tiger beneath her also bore several deep wounds that reached the bone, with fresh red blood soaking its fur.

It seemed that during the time she was unconscious, a great battle had erupted here. Ning Fuyi thought to herself. If even the white tiger was injured this badly, then Chu Qingqiu she...

Just as Ning Fuyi was about to look at what injuries Chu Qingqiu had sustained, her vision was suddenly covered by a white silk cloth that blocked her sight completely.

"Don't look, slowly walk over here," Chu Qingqiu said, her voice carrying a trace of annoyance.
