

Chapter 134-1

An Omega's heat period came on fiercely.

The last time Xu Qingzhu's heat period arrived, the original owner had hidden all the suppressants in the house, leaving Xu Qingzhu with no way to seek help.

If Liang Shi hadn't transmigrated over at that time, there would have been only two possible outcomes: either Xu Qingzhu would be marked by the original owner, or Xu Qingzhu would die from the fever.

Either ending would have been tragic.

This time, the Omega's heat period was delayed by more than half a month. Recently, Xu Qingzhu seemed to have recovered, but in reality, she had been in a daze inside.

Not knowing what day it was.

Now that Liang Shi had returned, she finally felt a sense of reality.

She never expected that just a few glasses of wine could trigger her heat period.

It might also have been because the Omega was attracted by the Alpha's pheromones.

Xu Qingzhu and the others had stayed in the private room for too long, and they had all been drinking. No matter what scents mixed together in the room, everything smelled like alcohol, so they hadn't noticed anything unusual.

What Shen Hui said before leaving served as a reminder to Xu Qingzhu.

The scent of tea, the smell of alcohol, the cloying strawberry fragrance.

When Xu Qingzhu was in the car, she calculated the days—it should be close to her heat period.

She had encountered delayed or early heat periods before. Her health wasn't great to begin with, especially during the period after she first differentiated when she was taking medication—her heat period had never been stable.

So she didn't think much of it.

For Alphas' susceptible periods and Omegas' heat periods, being delayed or early by up to a month was considered normal. Each cycle usually lasted 3-5 days, varying by individual constitution. Some people had 7 days, and in more extreme cases, some had half a month.

Xu Qingzhu usually only had 3 days.

During the day, after taking suppressants, they could still work and live normally. But at night, if they didn't take suppressants, the restless heat would be unbearable, and they would have to do something about it.

This was the case for both Alphas' susceptible periods and Omegas' heat periods.

Even after taking suppressants, they would still feel feverish at night. Normally, they could just endure it and it would pass.

But no matter what, it wasn't as comfortable as being marked by an Alpha/Omega.

This was the physiological characteristic of the ABO world.

Their special body structure created this special way of handling relationships between sex and love.

Breaking it down further, Alphas had it slightly better than Omegas.

Omegas had the hardest time enduring heat periods.

So in this world, early marriage and early childbearing were very common phenomena.

The legal marriage age for Betas was 21, while the legal marriage age for Alphas and Omegas was 19.

But with economic development, Omegas began seeking more expensive and effective suppressants to resist this natural instinct. The marriage age for Omegas was gradually increasing, and some Omegas would find regular sexual partners to solve their heat period problems, only creating a temporary mark. When it was time to break up, they would just wash away the mark.

When an Alpha marked an Omega, they would emit a large amount of concentrated pheromones, simultaneously making the Omega feel uncomfortable while also making them feel pleasure—it was a process too complex to describe.

When an Alpha in their susceptible period marked an Omega in heat, it became a permanent mark.

If only one party was in their heat period (a general term), the marking would be a temporary mark.

Of course, this wasn't absolute.

In actual practice, there were differences—the depth and positions all mattered greatly.

And in this world, to increase conception rates, unlike in Liang Shi's previous world where people were embarrassed to discuss sex, there were actually many educational films specifically for learning about these matters, in order to view this topic more rationally.

There were even specialized courses taught at many universities, and even Betas had the right to attend.

Many people differentiated during puberty, roughly between ages 13 to 16, but Betas could also undergo secondary differentiation.

During the 20-24 age range, some Betas would undergo secondary differentiation and become Alphas or Omegas.

So no university would reject people who might become part of the reproductive reserve.

Even if Betas didn't undergo secondary differentiation, after taking those courses, they would gain new insights and improve their experience in those matters.

During the permanent marking period between AOs, the Omega's conception rate would greatly increase.

Ranked by conception rate from high to low: permanent mark, temporary mark, no mark.

If one wanted to conceive during a period with no mark, it would require tremendous effort.

It was a very difficult thing.

Liang Shi had previously watched educational documentaries—the proper kind.

While watching, she exclaimed at the high difficulty level, roughly the kind of thing you couldn't do without having practiced yoga.

So most AO pregnancies still involved marking.

Marking wasn't that complicated. When one party was in their heat period and their pheromone concentration was extremely high, they just needed to bite the other party's glands.

Both parties' glands would become extremely sensitive during heat periods (general term).

Kissing the other party's glands during their heat period was something that brought great pleasure.

And this was generally something that would happen when emotions ran deep.

So in this world, the pregnancy rate was extremely high.

Chapter 134-3

Having come to a new world, Liang Shi had done enough homework.

But she didn't expect to use it so soon.

At first, saying she "couldn't do it" was just to help Xu Qingzhu relax and not be hostile toward her. To put it bluntly, back then it was just to complete her mission.

Her single-threaded brain that processed work and emotions really couldn't spare the capacity to think about all those twists and turns.

After all, at that time, she could barely even keep her life.

She didn't know how many things happened or how her feelings had changed.

All in all, living under the same roof, her heart would ache because of Xu Qingzhu, would laugh along with her, would feel satisfied just from eating a meal together, would feel happy from watching a movie together, and after leaving her... would desperately want to return to her side.

If one hasn't experienced life and death, they would always think life and death are the most important.

And would never see clearly what was truly most important.

But in that split second between life and death, she wasn't thinking about how miserably she would die—she was thinking: Xu Qingzhu, please don't cry.

As long as Xu Qingzhu didn't cry, her death seemed like no big deal.

Heaven knows how much she used to value her own life.

The light in the entryway was dim and yellow. Afraid that Xu Qingzhu might not see clearly when she came home and stub her toe, Liang Shi had even installed a strip of LED lights under the shoe cabinet. It was also glowing with a warm yellow light now, adding a touch of softness to this small space.

Xu Qingzhu's shoes had already disappeared somewhere.

The doormat was something Liang Shi and Zhao Xuning had picked out at the mall on moving day. It was quite expensive.

A small mat like this cost four digits. For Zhao Xuning who wasn't short on money, she would have taken it without even furrowing her brow, but Liang Shi had hesitated for a long time.

It was only later, when she thought about how Xu Qingzhu had the habit of stepping barefoot on the ground for a few seconds when taking off her shoes.

So in the end, she still bought it.

The four-digit mat felt soft and comfortable to step on, so it wasn't a waste after all.

Liang Shi's shoes had also been kicked off somewhere unknown. The originally cold door had taken on some heat from Xu Qingzhu leaning against it for a while.

Liang Shi's hand felt a bit hot when she placed it there.

The fierce onset of the heat period manifested specifically as an elevation in the Omega's body temperature, high enough to seem like a fever.

If Liang Shi hadn't watched the educational content, she probably would have thought Xu Qingzhu was sick.

An Omega's body temperature during heat could reach up to 40 degrees Celsius. Along with this came an increase in the Alpha's body temperature. Their bodies would become weak and powerless, but the temperature would drop during marking or temporary bonding.

Even if their body temperature didn't drop, it wouldn't cause them any discomfort.

Perhaps because they were swept up in the waves, they couldn't really perceive it.

The principle behind taking suppressants during heat periods was that suppressants would lower the Alpha's or Omega's body temperature, returning their bodily values to normal.

This correspondingly reduced desire.

The white tea scent spread throughout the space. Liang Shi's ears and cheeks had turned completely red, her body temperature continuously rising. She could also feel the strangeness in her own body.

It was different from last time.

Last time, it was still the original owner's body. After she arrived, all she could feel was pain—uncontrollable pain.

But now, both her soul and body felt pleasure.

Lips pressed against lips.

Liang Shi reached out and turned on the room light.

It lit up in an instant.

She opened her eyes to look at Xu Qingzhu.

Xu Qingzhu's hair was already disheveled, looking as if it had been blown by the wind. Sweat beaded on her small, delicate nose. Her cheeks were impossibly red, like a ripe tomato—one light pinch could squeeze out bright red juice.

She leaned weakly against the door, the two of them separating to an appropriate distance.

If Liang Shi weren't still holding her from behind, she would probably have collapsed right there at the doorway.

The strawberry Baileys scent in the air grew increasingly rich, fragrant and sweet, carrying a hint of tipsiness.

It seemed like one whiff would make a person drunk.

Xu Qingzhu struggled to open her eyes, her eyelids seeming to weigh a thousand pounds. Once opened, those eyes were glistening wet, as if washed by water.

The corners of her eyes were tinged with red. Her usually cool voice now sounded like a newborn kitten's mewling, sounding aggrieved and pitiful, "Jie... jie..."

Even her speech was halting.

Liang Shi's throat tightened at the sound.

She hooked Xu Qingzhu's chin with one hand, caressing it, while her other hand remained at her waist, giving her enough support.

The Alpha's strength was fully on display at this moment.

Her heated fingers lightly traced across Xu Qingzhu's chin, causing her to furrow her brow. One soft, powerless hand reached up and landed on Liang Shi's wrist.

On Liang Shi's wrist was still the heirloom bracelet that Xu Qingzhu had bid on at the auction.

The silver still gleamed on her wrist.

Xu Qingzhu pressed her rippling, glistening lips together, bright red and dripping, as if she had applied the most vivid lip gloss, "Jie... jie..."

When she called out again, her voice grew even smaller, as if she was about to cry.

Liang Shi reached out to brush her hair behind her ear, looking at her with lowered eyes, and asked once more: "You really won't regret it?"

Her voice had also been drawn into a husky quality.

After hearing this, Xu Qingzhu buried her body into her embrace, completely giving up on any other support.

Liang Shi was even jolted by the impact, feeling a pain in her chest.

"Jiejie~ I feel so awful." Xu Qingzhu's voice sounded like she was about to cry.

During heat, an Omega was exceptionally fragile both physically and emotionally. When faced with a fierce heat period, the situation would be doubled.

Omegas during this period were clingier than usual. If facing the person who marked them, most of them would turn into koalas, holding onto their partner and refusing to let go.

Liang Shi gradually lost herself in her calling "jiejie" again and again.

Yet she still retained the last shred of rationality, and said with a trembling voice: "I don't have experience, so I might just directly mark you... I don't have any technique to speak of either... mm..."

Xu Qingzhu was being tormented badly by the restless heat in her body. Before she could even speak, physiological tears had already started falling.

She tilted up her slender neck and bit down fiercely on Liang Shi's throat with her teeth.

At this moment, Xu Qingzhu couldn't control her strength at all, scrambling Liang Shi's words into fragments. For a moment, all words were stuck in her throat, not knowing what to say.

After a moment, she finally pulled her rationality back again, grabbed Xu Qingzhu and asked: "Xu Qingzhu, do you really..."

Before she could finish, Xu Qingzhu interrupted her while crying: "Can you... do it or not?"

She hadn't taken defensive suppressants for a long time, and hadn't thought about this issue either.

Adding to that the early suppression of her last heat period and the delayed date of this heat period, all these factors combined meant this heat period was destined to be difficult.

Her body was already unbearably uncomfortable, yet Liang Shi was still dawdling.

She had clearly remembered everything already.

Xu Qingzhu asked her with reddened eyes: "Are you... are you still thinking about Qi Jiao?"

Liang Shi: "...?"

"How could I?" Liang Shi immediately refuted: "I'm just afraid you'll regret it... After all, this is your heat period right now, and you're in a state of..."

"You talk too much, wuwuwu." Xu Qingzhu's legs were already wrapped around her calves, practically crying while talking, "If you really can't do it, then... then let me find someone else..."

"No." Liang Shi gritted her teeth, directly scooped her up in a princess carry, and kicked open the bedroom door.

//

On this snowy night, bright moonlight emerged, spilling onto the pristine white snow, adding another layer of translucence.

It passed through the glass and fell into the bay window. The bay window cushion was a tender pink, with several plush toys piled on top.

The windows were shut tight. All day, unless she had no choice but to come home to sleep, Xu Qingzhu wouldn't stay here long. It would make her feel lonely and desolate, missing Liang Shi even more. After falling asleep in this bed, she might even cry during the night.

It was saddening.

The room was lit only by the bright moonlight spilling inside. Liang Shi was holding Xu Qingzhu and couldn't turn on the lights. Only after gently placing her on the bed did she free her hands to turn on the bedside lamp.

The brightness of the bedside lamp was also adjusted to the lowest setting, rendering the room in enchanting colors.

As soon as Xu Qingzhu reached the soft bed, she immediately curled up her body, as if only this way could give her a sense of security.

Liang Shi's outer clothes were also gone, leaving only her inner tank top and bra.

Xu Qingzhu was in slightly better shape than her.

Afraid Xu Qingzhu would catch cold, Liang Shi hadn't done anything yet.

But Xu Qingzhu wasn't behaving in her arms, seemingly punishing her for what she had said at the door, tormenting her until she had no choice.

There was still the wound on her collarbone from Chen Liuying's stabbing, covered with gauze. She couldn't feel pain from there anymore; only the marks remained.

Including those on her arms.

So carrying Xu Qingzhu back to the bedroom wasn't difficult.

It was just that her clothes were scattered all over the floor.

Xu Qingzhu was lying on the bed, sobbing and crying.

Liang Shi turned her body over and stood by the bed, bending down to look at her.

The person lying on the bed had hair spread out like seaweed. Her body was slender but not bony—still full where it should be full, slim where it should be slim. Her eyes could barely stay open anymore, yet tears kept flowing continuously.

With her remaining rationality, Liang Shi thought: an Omega's heat period was really unkind.

It caused too much harm to the Omega's body.

Before she could finish lamenting in her mind, Xu Qingzhu said with a tearful voice: "Jiejie~ go find someone... else for me."

Liang Shi: "?"

She was stunned, "What did you say?"

Xu Qingzhu bit her lower lip, trying hard to restrain her somewhat pitiful tearful voice.

But the more she tried to cover it up, the more it showed.

It sounded pitiful yet alluring.

Liang Shi stared at her reddened eyes, her fingertips landing on her superior jawline, rubbing with a bit of punishing force, making it even redder.

As soon as Xu Qingzhu spoke, she sounded extremely aggrieved, "If you... can't do it... just find... someone else."

Xu Qingzhu cried as she said: "Wuwuwu I feel so awful..."

Liang Shi was so angry she gritted her teeth, firmly patting her waist, "Who do you want to find?"

It hurt Xu Qingzhu, and her tears immediately fell like beads from a broken string. She scolded her with a tearful voice: "Meanie."

"You're the meanie." Liang Shi leaned by her ear and blew a breath, questioning: "Who do you want to find?"

"Anyone will do." Xu Qingzhu said petulantly, "Wuwu~ as long as she can do it."

The way she said that...

Liang Shi didn't know whether to laugh or cry.

How could she not tell that she was using reverse psychology?

Liang Shi smiled helplessly, pressing her nose tip against hers, nuzzling tenderly and affectionately.

The thin sweat on their nose tips mingled together. Liang Shi licked her lips, her voice very soft: "Then I can do it."

Liang Shi said: "As long as you won't regret it."

Her long hair hung down on one side like an impenetrable curtain, looking like faded orange-pink under the bedside lamp's glow, the strands soft.

Liang Shi's voice was very low, coaxing gently: "Little princess, don't cry anymore."

Xu Qingzhu's tears were kissed away, yet they still flowed endlessly.

Liang Shi bit her lips, "It breaks my heart."

Xu Qingzhu blocked all her words, only managing a sobbing: "Jiejie~ mark me."

She said: "I don't mind."

In between kisses, Xu Qingzhu caught her breath and added: "And I won't regret it."

Liang Shi: "....."

Only now did she belatedly realize that her constant retreating back then seemed to have caused some psychological harm to Xu Qingzhu.

Given how clever Xu Qingzhu was, she had probably long known that she was the person who had experienced the kidnapping with her when they were children.

So in their relationship, Xu Qingzhu had been the one constantly yielding.

The usually cold and proud princess had woven a gentle net of affection for her, letting her sink into it without worry.

The princess hadn't held a sword, but instead held up a protective umbrella for her.

She... what had she done to deserve this?

Liang Shi felt deeply guilty.

Then Xu Qingzhu added another line: "You also... don't need to take responsibility."

Liang Shi sighed, closed her eyes, and rushed toward this feast.

When emotions ran deepest, she said: "I will take responsibility."

Liang Shi gently bit Xu Qingzhu's glands, calling out softly: "Little princess, don't cry."

But Xu Qingzhu's tears only became more unrestrained.

It was very much like: fine when not comforted, but crying harder once comforted.

Just like a child who couldn't get candy.

Liang Shi's throat tightened. She leaned by her ear and blew a breath, saying in a husky voice: "Baby."
