

Chapter 180 Part 1: Extra Story 3-1

After "You in My Memory" was released, it received rave reviews and became a dark horse at the box office.

Yang Shuyan was also considered box office insurance, but her previous movie had its script drastically altered, causing the plot to be disjointed. Both its reputation and box office plummeted, and she was mocked for a long time.

However, this "You in My Memory" was made by a relatively new team without any notable representative works. The only thing was that the director was very creative and energetic, and also very respectful of the main creative team. The screenwriter was someone with a strong overall vision, and at the time they had collaborated very happily.

Initially, no one had expected this movie to blow up, because there were too many competitive films in the same period.

Many people were aiming for the summer season slot. At a time when youth films were flooding the market, this family-themed movie appeared out of nowhere.

After seeing the cast and team lineup, audiences all thought it would definitely be terrible. Only Yang Shuyan's fans were working hard to promote it.

It happened that during that time Yang Shuyan had a regular variety show to appear on, so her fans had less energy to spend on promoting this.

The movie's marketing team was even worse—absolutely terrible.

They couldn't compare to the main creative team at all.

So everyone's expectations for it weren't high.

But unexpectedly, a video clip went viral on short video platforms, with netizens commenting below: "Cried my eyes out."¹

Everyone went to look up who played that character, only to discover it was Liang Shi.

Netizens: ???

Liang Shi's makeup and styling in this movie were indeed impressive—elderly makeup that truly looked like elderly makeup.

And she could even change her own gaze at will.

A person in her twenties directly portrayed the feeling of someone in their seventies.

And so, three days after its release, this movie began surpassing others in the same period. Later discussions were extremely high, it dominated the charts for a long time, and it created that year's box office miracle.

Twenty days after release, it leaped to become the second-highest-grossing film in history.

And near the end of its run, it became number one.

Many film critics reviewing this movie all said its quality was excellent—whether it was the cinematography, the makeup and styling, or the story's completeness and message, all reached a very high level.

Liang Shi also reappeared in the public eye because of this movie, including Shen Xuan.

【I really got my defenses broken by that shot of Liang Shi.】²

【Family, it's already been three months since this movie finished showing, who still hasn't gotten over it?!】

【It's me, it's me. Wuwuwu, I want to cry whenever I see Liang Shi's face.】

【Can Liang Shi please act in a sweet drama next time? Please, a beauty should properly use her face, okay?!】

【I think even one of those online sweet dramas with manufactured sugar would be fine, I want to watch a beauty fall in love, please!】

【Am I the only one who noticed that little cutie? So adorable, I want to squish her.】³

【How good-looking must her mom be to give birth to such heaven-defying looks? inhales Big sis can wait for you to grow up.】

【.....】

This movie's reputation remained consistently high, and its rating reached 9 points.

At the same time, both Liang Shi and Yang Shuyan won Best Actress for this movie.

A movie with two Best Actresses was very rare domestically.

That night's awards ceremony was broadcast live. Netizens were still debating whether Yang Shuyan or Liang Shi would win Best Actress, since both were nominated, but in the end it was actually dual Best Actresses.

Liang Shi and Yang Shuyan went on stage together to accept the award.

Yang Shuyan spoke first. As usual, she first thanked her company and fans, then thanked the entire crew's staff.

At the very end, just when everyone thought she was about to finish and many people in the audience were already preparing to applaud, she spoke into the microphone very seriously: "Oh right, I have one more thing to say."

Yang Shuyan was wearing a red evening gown, her long hair in big wavy curls. She looked toward the far right of the venue and lightly pursed her lips: "Zhao Ying."

The camera suddenly cut to Zhao Ying's face.

Zhao Ying herself was also confused. Although the two of them had been photographed holding hands while walking at their residential complex entrance before, forcing them to publicly announce their relationship.

But because of their different career directions and negotiations between their companies, the two of them hadn't appeared in the same frame together since the official announcement. Even their public platform messages wishing each other well were very brief and perfunctory.

Let alone appearing together in the same drama or variety show like before.

In the span of a year, the two had almost zero interaction.

But now, Yang Shuyan suddenly called out Zhao Ying's name on stage, and everyone looked toward Zhao Ying in unison.

"Let's get married." Yang Shuyan said.

Zhao Ying: "?"

Fans: ???

Netizens: !!!

This proposal came completely unexpected.

Zhao Ying was stunned, her mouth half-open in shock.

The host, knowing how to stir things up, passed a microphone to Zhao Ying.

A minute later, Zhao Ying asked: "What time tomorrow?"

Everyone:

Yang Shuyan answered: "Depends on when they open for business."⁴

After saying this, she smiled at the camera: "That's all I have to say, thank you everyone for your support."

Then she passed the microphone to Liang Shi.

Liang Shi was also somewhat surprised, but she quickly adjusted her expression and teased: "A double harvest in career and love is indeed enviable."

"Then... I also want to say something here." Liang Shi faced the camera and laughed lightly: "Thank you to my wife. Without her, there would be no Liang Shi today. I'm not very good with words, I just hope that from now on, my wife can happily do what she loves, and stay safe and healthy. Also, I've seen everyone's requests for me to film a sweet drama—I hope my next work can bring happiness to everyone."

Afterward, she thanked the entire creative team as usual.

1. "哭麻了" (kū má le) is Chinese internet slang meaning to cry so much that one becomes numb, expressing that something was extremely emotionally moving. ⇐
2. "破防" (pò fáng) literally means "broken defense" and is internet slang for having one's emotional defenses broken down—being deeply moved or affected by something. ⇐
3. "Rua" is an internet slang term that came from dialects, expressing the desire to squish, pet, or squeeze something cute. ⇐
4. She's referring to the Civil Affairs Bureau (民政局), which handles marriage registrations in China. They're essentially asking what time the marriage registration office opens so they can go register their marriage. ⇐

Chapter 180 Part 2: Extra Story 3-2

That evening, after the award acceptance video was released, everyone didn't know whose gossip to consume first or who to envy first.¹

However, the news of two top celebrities getting married was still more intriguing.

【Are they speaking in riddles? Why can't I understand—did Zhao Ying agree or not?】

【What riddles! It's clearly just the useless tacit understanding between a young couple.】

【She agreed! They're already discussing what time the Civil Affairs Bureau opens tomorrow.】

【kswlkswl】 ²

Of course, there were also discussions about Liang Shi.

【Does no one envy Liang Shi's wife? The entire thank-you segment! She only mentioned her wife.】

【Nonsense, she also mentioned the staff.】

【That was just professional courtesy for work, but everything else! That was all love!】

【Especially that look in her eyes—was she looking at her wife through the camera?】

【No, she was looking at me. As long as I'm willing, I'm her wife.】

【Hahahahahaha, the sister upstairs really spoke to my heart.】

【I heard she already has kids, and the reason she hasn't filmed these past two years is because she's been raising kids, but she didn't even mention them—only mentioned her wife. I'm really shipping this to death.】

【.....】

There were many CPs online, and they were all real CPs.³

For a moment, the sweetness level was off the charts.

Xu Qingzhu naturally also watched the livestream, and scrolled through the comments for a long time.

She even went to Liang Shi's super topic⁴ and saved some pictures, but quietly deleted her browsing history.

That night, Liang Shi went to the celebration banquet with the crew and drank a lot of wine again.

By the time she got home, Chaochao and Mumu were already asleep. She was a bit dizzy, standing in the entryway taking off her high heels, supporting herself on the shoe cabinet to sober up.

With a "snap," the lights came on.

Liang Shi raised her arm to shield her eyes.

Xu Qingzhu walked out of the room wearing pajamas. Liang Shi smiled at her dazedly: "Still not asleep?"

"Drank too much again?" Xu Qingzhu went to the kitchen and first poured herself a glass of warm water. Liang Shi immediately followed, trailing behind her like a little tail, answering slowly: "Mm."

Xu Qingzhu took out honey from the refrigerator and poured a glass of honey water for Liang Shi, leaving it there to cool.

Liang Shi lowered her eyes, hugged her from behind, and called out softly: "Wife."

"Hm?" Xu Qingzhu responded.

Liang Shi laughed lightly, her words carrying a hint of pride: "I won an award. Best Actress."

"Oh?" Xu Qingzhu made a tsk sound: "Teacher Liang is impressive."

Hearing this, Liang Shi frowned: "Didn't you watch the awards ceremony?"

Xu Qingzhu nodded: "There was an important meeting tonight, I didn't have time to watch."

Liang Shi: "....."

Very obviously, Liang Shi was unhappy.

The face that had just been smiling dazedly immediately fell.

Xu Qingzhu didn't pay it any mind, just gently supported her, "Go take a bath, then sleep after you're done."

Liang Shi leaned over and gently bit her ear: "Didn't you promise to watch my livestream tonight?"

"Who knew if you'd even be on." Xu Qingzhu said: "Watching the replay tomorrow is the same. Besides, you were only nominated."

Liang Shi: "....."

Even more unhappy now.

Xu Qingzhu turned around, her face meeting Liang Shi's directly, and blinked at her: "What's wrong?"

Liang Shi said in a muffled voice: "Nothing."

"You really don't look like nothing's wrong... mm....." Before she could finish speaking, it was all swallowed up.

Xu Qingzhu's waist was pressed against the kitchen counter, her long hair hanging down completely, the ends brushing past the counter. Liang Shi leaned forward pressing against her, not leaving her any space at all, kissing her mercilessly.

The quiet kitchen instantly became ambiguous.

Liang Shi gently bit her lower lip, eyes slightly open, eyelashes still trembling, "You didn't watch me."

Looking carefully, even the corners of her eyes were tinged red.

Whether from restless desire or from feeling wronged, it was hard to tell.

But Xu Qingzhu let out a surprised "ah," "Aren't I looking at you now?"

"My livestream." Liang Shi had drunk too much, her tone aggrieved, her hands still wrapped around Xu Qingzhu's lower back, even giving her a light pinch there, "I thanked you today."

Xu Qingzhu wanted to laugh but held it in, "Huh? Thanked me for what?"

"I'm not telling." Liang Shi huffed lightly, leaning in closer, the hot breath between their noses intertwining, "You don't care about me at all."

When drunk, Liang Shi spoke in a coquettish manner, with a hint of petulance.

"How don't I?" Xu Qingzhu said: "There really was a rather important meeting tonight, I couldn't make it."

"You just don't care about me anyway." As Liang Shi spoke, her long arms had already wrapped around her entire waist, and with the momentum, she picked her up in one motion and placed her on the kitchen counter.

Xu Qingzhu felt a moment of weightlessness, belatedly realizing she was already sitting up there.

And Liang Shi was looking up at her.

"What?" Xu Qingzhu asked in a low voice.

Liang Shi slightly tiptoed, closed her eyes and kissed her, saying indistinctly: "Making you care about me."

Xu Qingzhu felt like all her breath was stolen away.

The kitchen light was dim and yellow, spilling over both of them. The air was filled with a rich honey scent, sweet and cloying.

Liang Shi's nose bridge gently pressed against Xu Qingzhu's nose.

Xu Qingzhu tightly hugged Liang Shi's neck. Because Liang Shi was wearing a silver strapless evening gown, Xu Qingzhu's hands could reach down and touch her smooth back.

In that instant, she felt her toes curl up.

Tender yet intense, eager yet intimate.

Outside, heavy rain suddenly began to fall, raindrops pattering against the glass.

As if providing accompaniment to this passion.

From the kitchen to the bedroom.

Xu Qingzhu's back fell onto the soft bed, the mattress sinking down.

Liang Shi stood by the bedside.

Xu Qingzhu looked at her with a light laugh, then smiled mischievously and beckoned to her with a finger.

Liang Shi's throat moved slightly, her voice hoarse: "What?"

Xu Qingzhu's foot landed on her leg, but her hands were undoing her pajama buttons, from top to bottom.

Her cool voice rang out in the room, slow and unhurried: "Caring... about... you."

-
1. "吃瓜" (chī guā) literally means "eating melon" and is Chinese internet slang for consuming gossip or watching drama unfold as a bystander, similar to eating popcorn while watching a show. ↩
 2. "kswl" stands for "嗑死我了" (kè sǐ wǒ le), which means "shipping this is killing me" or "I'm dying from how much I ship this." It's commonly used when fans are excited about romantic interactions between their favorite couples. ↩
 3. "CP" comes from "coupling" and refers to romantic pairings that fans ship. "Real CP" (真CP) means an actual real-life couple, as opposed to fictional pairings fans imagine. ↩
 4. "超话" (chāo huà) or "super topic" is a feature on Weibo (Chinese social media platform) that functions like a dedicated fan community page for celebrities, shows, or topics where fans can post, share content, and interact. ↩