

Chapter 56 - Invitation

Yan Lin looked at her mother sitting in front of her, not knowing how to argue for the first time. "I..."

Mother Yan pressed her shoulder, indicating she didn't need to speak, and continued, "When I slapped you at the hospital, I wanted to wake you up, but obviously it didn't work. When your father sent you abroad, his intention was to hope you'd calm down for a while, but as soon as you returned to the country, you went straight to Xiao Yue's house..."

Mother Yan said helplessly, "I thought there was no saving you. I was originally thinking of having your father assign you abroad for half a year, but then you suddenly got injured saving Ah Yue, so this matter was put on hold."

"This also made me realize that perhaps you just don't know how to handle things properly. You're not completely indifferent to Xiao Yue's feelings. That's why I'm sitting here talking to you about these things today."

Yan Lin pressed her lips tightly together. She was very clear that if her father insisted on making her live abroad for a year or two, she would have no chance to refuse. At this time, she hadn't fully taken over the company yet and couldn't be as decisive as in her previous life.

"Since you put Xiao Yue's safety before your own, then you can also control that wrong possessiveness of yours for her sake and learn how to properly love and protect your beloved."

"So, do you choose to protect this Xiao Yue," Mother Yan pointed to the photo of Feng Yue with smiling eyes, "or do you choose to personally destroy her?"

The room was extremely quiet. Yan Lin lowered her head to look at the photo placed in front of her. The Feng Yue in the photo was familiar—the one who had once shown her a bright smile, the one who had once held her heart full of love.

Yan Lin slumped down dejectedly, reaching out to gently touch Feng Yue's face in the photo. Her voice was still as calm as always, but now it was somewhat hoarse. "She... should have been like this all along."

Hearing this, Mother Yan showed a relieved smile on her face. She reached out to embrace Yan Lin, gently patting her back. "It's okay, it's okay. As long as you're changing, I believe Xiao Yue will see it someday."

Yan Lin slowly closed her eyes. What appeared before her was the memory of Feng Yue lying lifeless on the hospital bed, but as time passed, it was replaced by her vivid and brilliant smiles.

Because Feng Yue had been taking care of Yan Lin, her video updates had also stopped for a while, but fortunately, the previous lottery post worth 100,000+ yuan had concluded its drawing, and Feng Yue had gained the last wave of popularity from it.

It had been two days since Yan Lin was discharged from the hospital, and Feng Yue began organizing the prizes and winner lists one by one.

Because there were too many names on the list, Feng Yue had to ask her mother to help at home, and even Aunt Zhao was pulled in as temporary help.

The physical prizes were bought by Feng Yue herself, driving to the mall to purchase them one by one. She even made a small vlog about this, and when the video was released, the views weren't worse than her usual videos.

By the time all the physical prize packages were shipped out, it was almost the end of November.

Because she had stopped updating for a while due to personal matters, Feng Yue had been updating very frequently recently. This caused her to have to travel between Songhe Bay and home every day, which was very inconvenient.

So one evening after dinner, Feng Yue carried a gift she had specially bought for her mother and sat down beside her.

"Mom—" Feng Yue's call was both coquettish and sweet.

Mother Feng shuddered all over after hearing this. She looked at Feng Yue with an unfriendly expression. "You little brat, what are you up to now?"

"I bought you that scarf you liked before. Try it on quickly." She opened the shopping bag she was carrying, revealing a dark-colored fluffy scarf with tags still attached.

Mother Feng didn't let down her guard and instead pushed the scarf back in front of Feng Yue.

"Take it away, take it away. Who knows what mischief you're plotting."

"Look what you're saying. What mischief could I have?" Feng Yue took out the scarf and personally put it on her mother. "I just feel a bit tired lately."

"Then just rest well." Mother Feng looked at the scarf around her neck, obviously somewhat tempted.

"Yes, yes, yes, but I think if I didn't have to run back and forth between two places, I would definitely be much more relaxed."

Mother Feng's hand stroking the scarf paused, and she looked at Feng Yue with sharp eyes. "Want to move back there?"

Feng Yue sat up straight sheepishly, rubbing her nose and humming in agreement.

"Okay."

"If you don't agree—" Feng Yue hadn't finished speaking when she realized what her mother had said.

Feng Yue was simply incredulous. "You agreed?!"

"Mm." Mother Feng nodded with a normal expression.

Feng Yue muttered suspiciously, "But didn't you refuse adamantly before?"

Mother Feng took off the scarf from her neck, folded it neatly and placed it on her lap. "I didn't agree before only because I was afraid Ah Lin would come to harass you again, and your Aunt He also contacted me, asking me to try to keep you at home."

"Aunt He?" Feng Yue was somewhat surprised.

He Shuyun, Yan Lin's mother.

"Then now..." Feng Yue didn't finish her sentence.

Mother Feng said, "Ah Lin being willing to risk her life to save you means she puts you before her own safety. Plus, she's injured now, so your Aunt He won't let her run around. That's why I agreed to let you move back."

Feng Yue was noncommittal about what her mother said. She didn't want to have any more involvement with Yan Lin. However, being able to move back was still good.

So on December 1st, Feng Yue moved back to Songhe Bay. She never saw Yan Lin there again.

Days passed peacefully like this. In mid-December, Feng Yue received an official invitation from Maostation Video¹ to participate in their New Year carnival event.

The event was tentatively scheduled for January 2nd, at an event venue in Beijing.

Feng Yue was now a well-known blogger, so naturally she wouldn't refuse such an opportunity.

After she agreed, the planner in charge of coordinating with her sent Feng Yue the specific content of the event.

The carnival would start at 9 AM. During the day, there would be a small flea market at the venue. Food bloggers could apply for stalls to sell small snacks they made, and beauty bloggers could sell makeup and skincare products they had hoarded at low prices as a way to give back to fans.

In the evening was Maostation Video's award ceremony, where they would present trophies to outstanding bloggers of the year.

Feng Yue wasn't interested in the award ceremony but was very concerned about the flea market. After thinking about it, she also applied for a stall.

When the planner heard she wanted to set up a stall, they told her some precautions and additionally gave Feng Yue three entrance tickets.

Feng Yue took this carnival event very seriously, so she slowed down her video update speed and began focusing on preparing the small snacks she needed to sell.

Time flew by as Feng Yue prepared with focus, and soon it was New Year's Eve.

Beijing's rich second generation actually had their own circle, but because Feng Yue had been closely associated with their common "enemy" Yan Lin for years, she had been excluded from their group as well.

But perhaps news of Feng Yue and Yan Lin's divorce had spread too widely, because this time they called Feng Yue about their gathering.

"Miss Feng, this is Qian He. Do you remember me? We met at Wang Huili's sister's full moon banquet." The voice on the other end was sweet.

Feng Yue was obviously stunned for two seconds before remembering who the other person was. "Ah, Miss Qian, what's the matter with calling me?"

"We're having a small gathering at Sen'er Hotel² tonight. Would you like to join us? It's a normal gathering, all girls." Qian He invited.

Feng Yue frowned. She shouldn't have any connection with this Miss Qian, so why would she suddenly invite her to a gathering?

Mother Feng sat beside her, curious when she saw her frown.

"Miss Qian, I'm sorry, but I already have plans with friends today, so I probably can't make it."

Qian He sounded disappointed. "Ah, okay then, sorry to bother you. Let's meet up next time."

"Mm, okay. Goodbye."

"Qian He?" Mother Feng asked.

Feng Yue nodded. "Mm, she said she was inviting me to a gathering at Sen'er Hotel. I'm not even familiar with them."

"Qian Yaozu's³ youngest daughter, right? I remember this child is quite well-behaved. Every time she sees me, she smiles at me so sweetly, and those dimples are so adorable." Saying this, Mother Feng persuaded her again, "I think you should communicate more with everyone. Staying at home all day without any friends isn't good."

"And today is New Year's Eve! How come no one asked you out to play?"

"Qiongqiong seems to be in love recently and went on a date tonight. Wen Zhen's grandmother has been in poor health lately, so their whole family went abroad to visit her grandmother." Feng Yue shrugged to show she was helpless.

"What about the lawyer your little aunt introduced you to?" Mother Feng was obviously gossiping.

"Ah, Miss Xia? She seems quite busy with work. I heard her say she was going abroad this month, something about a work transfer."

Hearing this, Mother Feng shook her head. "So you obviously have no plans. Qian He even took the initiative to invite you, and you still won't go. Go, go! You staying at home will only interfere with me and your father's alone time!"

Feng Yue: "..."

"Then can I go back? This way I won't disturb you two."

Mother Feng choked for a moment, then remained indifferent and continued to encourage Feng Yue to attend the gathering.

Finally, Feng Yue was so annoyed by her mother that she had to swallow her pride and call Qian He again.

"Hello? Miss Feng!" Qian He's voice was very surprised.

"Miss Qian, I was stood up. Can I still join your gathering?" Feng Yue glanced at Mother Feng's satisfied little face and said helplessly.

"Of course!" Qian He said joyfully. "I'll send you the time and address right now!"

"Mm, okay. Thanks for the trouble."

"Not at all!"

Qian He hung up the phone and then sent Feng Yue the time and location via text message. She raised the corners of her mouth with an extremely happy expression, her dimples faintly visible on her cheeks.

"Feng Yue agreed to come! I've already sent her the specific information!"

"Great, great! Finally we can see the true face of this Miss Feng!"

"Indeed. Someone who could divorce that person without hesitation must have something special."

"I watched her livestream before, and her skin is unbelievably good. I must ask her how she takes care of it later!"

"I didn't expect her to be so easy to talk to. If Xiao Li hadn't mentioned her, I wouldn't have thought to invite her."

The girl called Xiao Li sat in the innermost seat, squinting her eyes with a smile. "I went to the same school as her before. She had a very good reputation at our school."

A group of girls started chattering again upon hearing this.

And that Xiao Li was none other than Wang Huili, who had previously caused trouble for Feng Yue.
