

Chapter 9: Agreement

Yan Lin hadn't contacted Feng Yue for the past few days, partly due to the time difference between them and partly because she still didn't know how to face Feng Yue.

So when Dai Shuangshuang reported Feng Yue's recent situation to her in great detail and mentioned this live stream, she had the urge to go take a look.

She did have a Weibo account, and it was a verified red V, with the verification information reading "Chairman and CEO of Yan Group" - just ten short characters.

So when she learned that Feng Yue wasn't recuperating properly at home but was instead doing this live streaming thing, she felt somewhat uncomfortable and worried.

She wanted to care for Feng Yue, but due to her personality and the guilt from not being able to see Feng Yue one last time in her previous life, she couldn't bring herself to demand what Feng Yue should or shouldn't do.

Having no other choice, since she couldn't interfere, she could only observe secretly.

Feng Yue's live stream was scheduled for noon, which was the middle of the night for Yan Lin. And indeed, she had been unable to sleep, waiting to watch Feng Yue's live stream.

The presidential suite of the five-star hotel was brightly lit. Those who didn't know might think some business person was still handling work until midnight.

There weren't many people in Feng Yue's live stream room, so when Yan Lin entered with her golden, gleaming red V, almost everyone noticed.

Drifting Messenger: ??? Am I seeing things???

Miracle Boy Red Red: Wait a minute, who is this!!!

Emotional Sword: This this this this, must be a fake account!!

Desire Red Silk Cloth: Is this the "Yan" I know about...?

Hundred Ghosts Night Walk: Holy crap! I exited to check, it really is that Yan!

by Water Little Rabbit: Ahhhhhhhh help! Why is CEO Yan watching this live stream!!

Not Good Morning: No way, are you guys making a mistake!

Hundred Ghosts Night Walk: Everyone, it really is her. I follow CEO Yan, if you click into that dynamic you can see she's watching this live stream.

Homework Like Shuttle: Hahaha, in just a few minutes, the gossip accounts outside have already exploded.

Logically speaking, Yan Lin was just the head of a company. Even if Yan Group was powerful, Yan Lin's account shouldn't receive this much attention.

But the problem was that when Yan Lin first took over Yan Group, she had been in the newspapers with just one photo. But it was this single photo that forcefully carved out a bloody path among the entertainment gossip hot search rankings, staying at number three for an entire day.

Netizens were basically all appearance-obsessed¹, so Yan Lin's official account gained wave after wave of followers. However, she didn't really manage this afterward, so everyone's enthusiasm died down.

But today, Yan Lin's account, which could almost be called a zombie account, became active again, and she was even watching a live stream by someone unknown. This seemed abnormal no matter how you looked at it.

This incident caused a small stir online, but the two parties involved had no reaction at all.

Yan Lin had cleared the screen early because the comments were getting in the way. And Feng Yue simply had no time to pay attention to the commotion in the live stream room.

However, since no one came out to respond, after waiting a long time without getting an answer, everyone began to focus on the live stream in front of them.

Feng Yue's technique was skilled - you could tell she was someone who cooked frequently. Combined with her gentle and graceful explanations, everyone's attention gradually became completely absorbed in the live stream.

It wasn't until Feng Yue put the oysters in the steamer and finished stir-frying the broccoli that she had a little time to look at the comments on her phone.

She picked a few netizen questions to answer, and before long, the steamer made a "ding" sound.

After both dishes were ready and she had displayed them, Feng Yue ended her somewhat hurried live stream.

Far away overseas, Yan Lin watched the live stream room go dark and slowly put away her phone.

It had been a long time since she had eaten food made by Feng Yue.

Whether it was this sudden thought affecting her body or not, she actually felt a bit hungry.

Yan Lin had always been a disciplined person who wouldn't eat after dinner, but today she particularly wanted to eat something more.

She thought this, and she acted on it.

Half an hour later, a portion of oysters and a vegetable salad were delivered to the presidential suite on the top floor.

Feng Yue's live stream ended just like that. Seeing everyone's comments synchronized in her comment section, a strange sense of satisfaction arose in her heart.

The overwhelming loneliness that had nearly drowned her before had disappeared.

Later, Dai Shuangshuang also called to ask how she felt. The two chatted briefly before hanging up. Dai Shuangshuang was also quite busy abroad.

At nine o'clock in the evening, Feng Yue lay in the guest room, thinking about the live stream she had conducted today, her heart somewhat excitedly warm. This was the first time in so long that she had chatted with so many people, giving her a long-lost happiness.

Feng Yue knew that deep in her heart, she craved friendship. She yearned for a friend she could talk to about everything, or at least someone who could pull her up when she was drowning in that feeling of loneliness.

A few days later, Feng Yue finally arranged to meet the lawyer that Dai Shuangshuang had introduced to her.

The two randomly found a tea house, and after the server brought tea, Feng Yue got straight to the point about her purpose.

"Hello, Lawyer Kong. I asked you out mainly to consult about matters related to divorce agreements."

Feng Yue spoke calmly, but Kong Ruifu across from her was not so calm. He almost instinctively looked at Feng Yue's hand to see if she was wearing a wedding ring. Sure enough, her fingers were bare.

Kong Ruifu, as Dai Shuangshuang's friend, naturally knew the identity of the person in front of him.

He was clear about how close Dai Shuangshuang and Yan Lin's relationship was, so he never expected that Dai Shuangshuang's sister-in-law would come to ask him about divorce matters.

This, this, this - did Dai Shuangshuang also know about this?

Feng Yue, having lived an extra lifetime, naturally guessed what he was thinking when she saw his expression.

She smiled slightly and said, "Lawyer Kong, just treat me as an ordinary client today. Keeping client confidentiality should be a rule in your profession, right?"

Kong Ruifu pushed his glasses and nodded, "Naturally."

"Miss Feng, ask whatever you want to know, and I'll answer honestly."

"I think Lawyer Kong should know who my spouse is. I just want to know, if Yan Lin and I divorce —" Feng Yue looked at him steadily, "what would be the fastest way to handle it?"

Kong Ruifu was somewhat surprised. He had thought Feng Yue wanted to know how much she could get from Yan Lin... After all, that was Yan Lin, that was Yan Group.

"Miss Feng, if both parties reach a mutual agreement, given Miss Yan's assets, naturally leaving with nothing would be fastest, since dividing Miss Yan's property would be very troublesome." Kong Ruifu carefully observed Feng Yue's expression, and seeing no unusual reaction, continued, "If you choose to divide property with Miss Yan, then it would depend on the prenuptial agreement you two signed."

Hearing Kong Ruifu say this, Feng Yue remembered that she and Yan Lin had never signed anything before marriage.

At that time, she had been completely focused on Yan Lin and had never thought there would come a day when she would divorce Yan Lin.

Feng Yue said with some frustration, "Yan Lin and I didn't sign any prenuptial agreement."

Hearing this, Kong Ruifu also frowned, "Without a prenuptial agreement, your divorce would definitely involve property division, and CEO Yan's assets..."

Although he didn't finish speaking, Feng Yue understood the meaning. Given Yan Lin's wealth and assets, divorce wouldn't be a matter of a day or two - too many things were involved.

Feng Yue thought for a moment and asked again, "Lawyer Kong, if I chose to leave with nothing, would it be faster?"

"Of course." Kong Ruifu nodded, then gave Feng Yue detailed explanations of various terms and conditions.

After they had discussed everything thoroughly, Feng Yue nodded and settled the divorce matter, "Lawyer Kong, since that's the case, please help me draft a divorce agreement. I'll transfer the consultation fee to your account."

"Alright, Miss Feng. After it's processed, I'll contact you as soon as possible."

Walking out of the coffee shop, Feng Yue finally felt a weight lift from her heart.

This was how it should be. It was time for both their lives to get back on track.

Feng Yue sat in Professor Fang's office, while Professor Fang across from her was seriously examining her test results with a grave expression.

After a while, Professor Fang finally took off her glasses and said with a pleased expression, "Miss Feng, your condition is better than any patient I've ever seen. This shows that the medication control is very effective."

Hearing this, Feng Yue also secretly breathed a sigh of relief, "That's good, thank you for your concern, Professor Fang." But she knew that if her condition was good, it might mean surgery, and once she had surgery, her hair...

Professor Fang saw her expression and felt a pang of sympathy. Considering her age, Feng Yue was about the same age as her own child. Having such a serious problem with her body, yet coming to the hospital alone for every checkup - whether to call her too strong or too pitiful.

"Don't worry too much. If we observe for a while longer and the situation remains this good, we can adopt conservative treatment and not perform surgery." Professor Fang patted her shoulder to indicate she shouldn't worry too much.

Wei Yuran, who had been standing nearby without speaking, also said, "That's right, Mrs. Yan. Your current condition is much better than most patients. Don't worry too much."

After being comforted by both doctors, Feng Yue finally felt much better. After getting her medication, she left the hospital.

After Feng Yue left, Professor Fang frowned and asked, "Little Wei, Miss Feng's partner is..."

"That CEO Yan." Wei Yuran probably guessed why Professor Fang was asking this.

Mrs. Yan really has suffered a great injustice.

The two looked at each other, both seeing a trace of sympathy in the other's eyes, but this was someone else's family matter - there was nothing they could do.

Wei Yuran sighed silently, then left Professor Fang's office with his phone.

If he could help Mrs. Yan, he should help a little.

Far away overseas, Yan Lin finally finished her last day of work, and Mo Yixu had also booked tomorrow's return flight.

But thinking about seeing Feng Yue soon, Yan Lin's heart felt like it was hanging in suspense.

Their meetings ended early here, and there was still a large portion of the afternoon to rest. Seeing that there was nothing else, Mo Yixu asked Yan Lin for the afternoon off.

Yan Lin was somewhat surprised. Even counting her previous life, the number of times this secretary had taken leave could be counted on one hand.

"Did something happen?" Yan Lin prided herself on caring about her subordinates.

Mo Yixu touched his hair and smiled embarrassedly, "Since we've finished dealing with everything here, I thought if I had free time this afternoon, I could go buy some gifts for my girlfriend and my mom to take back."

Yan Lin hadn't expected this answer. She suddenly remembered that in her previous life, she had indeed heard other employees discussing how Assistant Mo had a girlfriend but later broke up because he was too busy with work.

But gifts...

Mo Yixu looked at Yan Lin's thoughtful expression, somewhat puzzled. Logically, they had no schedule for the afternoon - did CEO Yan have other arrangements?

Mo Yixu's expression became serious, and he quickly said formally, "CEO Yan, no—"

"I'll go with you."

Mo Yixu's words were cut off by Yan Lin before he could finish.

Mo Yixu: "...?"

Then he actually watched Yan Lin stand up from her chair.

Until he got into Yan Lin's exclusive vehicle, Mo Yixu still hadn't quite recovered.

"CEO, CEO Yan, where are we going?"

Yan Lin put down her tablet, and for the first time, a trace of confusion appeared in her eyes, "Didn't you say we were going to buy gifts?"

Mo Yixu stared at her blankly for a while, then suddenly remembered that lady far away in the country.

Mo Yixu had a sudden realization, then said, "So CEO Yan, you're going to choose gifts for Mrs. Yan?"

Yan Lin silently raised her eyes and looked coldly at her capable subordinate. After staring until Mo Yixu felt somewhat uncomfortable, he finally heard a barely audible "mm."

Mo Yixu understood and quickly instructed the driver to head to the nearby shopping street.

How strange - he had been on so many business trips with CEO Yan, and this was the first time he had seen CEO Yan bring gifts back for Mrs. Yan.

Because he had a great Buddha² beside him this time, Mo Yixu didn't dare to be too casual in selecting his own gifts.

"CEO Yan, which store should we look at first?"

Yan Lin looked at the street packed with shops and tourists, and for the first time felt a bit like retreating.

"Every one."

Mo Yixu: ...?

However, when the boss spoke, subordinates had no choice but to listen, so Mo Yixu really accompanied Yan Lin starting from the first shop on their left.

Yan Lin mostly just glanced at the items in these shops before losing interest, but she also knew Mo Yixu needed to choose things, so she didn't arbitrarily decide to leave immediately.

The two browsed and looked around. Even after Mo Yixu had bought his things, Yan Lin still hadn't chosen anything suitable.

Since they had left their phone number and hotel delivery information at the shops, both were currently empty-handed.

The two stopped in front of a shoe store again. Mo Yixu looked at the sign above and said, "CEO Yan, this store sells the shoes you wear regularly. Should we go in and take a look?"

Yan Lin knew this store, so she nodded and walked inside.
