

Chapter 15: Follow-up Examination

The weather in Yanjing¹ was gradually entering early autumn, but when it should be hot, it was still hot, just much better than before.

Today was the day for Feng Yue to go to the hospital for her follow-up examination. She had been in a very good mood recently because Yan Lin had been trying to avoid meeting her ever since what happened that night.

She would leave early and return late every day, even going on business trips out of town several times. There might be work-related reasons for this, but Feng Yue could see that Yan Lin was avoiding her.

But the only thing that made Feng Yue somewhat dissatisfied was that Yan Lin said she wanted to accompany her to today's examination.

So far, apart from the doctors at the hospital, Yan Lin was the only one who knew the specifics of Feng Yue's condition, so Feng Yue felt that stopping her wouldn't be of much use, so she simply agreed.

It would be even better if Yan Lin could still consider her serious condition and not engage in a tug-of-war with her, directly signing the divorce agreement.

The two sat together in the car, which was probably the first time they had faced each other calmly in quite a while.

One closed her eyes to rest, while the other turned her head to look at the fleeting scenery outside the car window.

After this period of thinking, Yan Lin had barely managed to find a bit of the reason why Feng Yue wanted to divorce her.

She remembered that when she was reborn and came back, it was around their wedding anniversary, and that period happened to be the busiest time for that overseas project.

She remembered that in her previous life, Feng Yue had even quarreled with her that night. She had drunk quite a bit that night, and she had long forgotten what exactly she had said.

For her, this was already something from more than three years ago, and she could no longer remember some of the specific details.

But she knew that Feng Yue's current desire to divorce her definitely had something to do with that incident.

So to compensate Feng Yue, Yan Lin decided to care about Feng Yue a little more, such as accompanying her to the hospital for follow-up examinations.

Feng Yue didn't know what Yan Lin was thinking. She still thought Yan Lin wanted to see just how serious her condition really was.

Professor Fang and Wei Yuran were already waiting for them in the office. As soon as Feng Yue arrived at the hospital, she was taken by the nurse to do various examinations one by one, while Yan Lin went to Professor Fang's office to wait.

This was the first time Yan Lin met Professor Fang, but Professor Fang's impression of Yan Lin was not that good.

Feng Yue was good-looking with a nice personality, and was about the same age as Professor Fang's child, so during the previous few times when Feng Yue came to the hospital for follow-up examinations alone, she had secretly felt somewhat dissatisfied with Yan Lin, this partner.

However, this emotion was minimal, after all, she was still a professional doctor.

Feng Yue's examination was completed quickly, and the report was also quickly transmitted to Professor Fang's side.

Professor Fang looked at it for a while, then raised her head with a smile and said to Feng Yue: "The examination results are very good. The probability of needing surgery is not high anymore."

Upon hearing this, Feng Yue's face also broke into a smile. After all, she was still a girl in her twenties who loved beauty. Not needing surgery meant she didn't have to say goodbye to her long hair.

"There's nothing major to worry about, but starting from this time, we'll increase the dosage of your medication. These drugs may cause you some symptoms of dizziness and vomiting, which are all normal. However, prolonged vomiting will still put some burden on your body, so you need to start paying attention to your diet. Don't eat spicy or irritating foods anymore, eat more stomach-nourishing and light foods. Once you get through this stage, the subsequent treatment will be much better."

Feng Yue nodded and carefully made note of this. Yan Lin, who had been staying beside her all along, also secretly memorized these points, preparing to go back and instruct Liu Ma² to pay attention to these situations.

"Alright, the prescription is ready. Go get the medicine now, and when you bring it back, I'll tell you the dosage for each time." Professor Fang printed out the prescription.

Feng Yue nodded and was about to take it, but Yan Lin beside her suddenly reached out and took the slip, "I'll go, you rest here." After saying this, without caring whether Feng Yue agreed or not, she turned and left.

Wei Yuran had been staying nearby. He exchanged a glance with Feng Yue, then said: "Miss should not know where the pharmacy hall is, I'll take her there." Then he also hurriedly left.

Yan Lin walked through the hospital corridor holding the prescription, feeling a sense of relief for the first time.

In her previous life, it wasn't that she hadn't heard explanations of Feng Yue's condition, but in her previous life, although she was listening, her mind wasn't really on it. It was more their parents who were worried about Feng Yue's condition.

No matter how unwilling she was to admit it, she couldn't deny that she hadn't really cared much about Feng Yue's condition in her heart back then.

She thought that as long as she gave Feng Yue the best medical conditions, Feng Yue would definitely get better and would definitely return to her former appearance.

But when she received that phone call from her mother, she finally understood that money really wasn't omnipotent. No matter how much money she had, she couldn't save her wife.

She hadn't even seen Feng Yue for the last time.

And what caused this result was her arrogance, indifference, and neglect.

Yan Lin clenched the prescription in her hand and slowly exhaled.

She wouldn't agree to the divorce. This time, she would definitely see with her own eyes Feng Yue return to her former healthy and happy appearance.

Wei Yuran accompanied Yan Lin to get the medicine and returned to the office, then Professor Fang gave them medical instructions regarding the medicines in the bag.

Since the two had left home early in the morning, Professor Fang simply had Feng Yue take a dose of medicine right there in her office.

Feng Yue had difficulty taking medicine and would drink a lot of water when taking one dose, so she went to the bathroom with a bitter face right after taking the medicine, leaving Yan Lin alone in the office.

Yan Lin understood Feng Yue's condition, but due to the shadow from her previous life, she still felt that perhaps the foreign hospital where Feng Yue had been treated in her previous life might have a better grasp of her condition.

As soon as she thought of this, she directly brought it up with Professor Fang.

Professor Fang initially thought that this young lady from the Yan family³ didn't care about her partner, but now it seemed she might have misunderstood.

"I know the hospital you mentioned. The neurosurgery doctors at that hospital are indeed very famous, but Miss Feng's current condition is very good. If surgery isn't needed, she can be treated very well domestically, and a familiar environment is also beneficial for her recovery."

"My wife's chances of recovery..."

"Miss Yan, please rest assured. Miss Feng's condition is good, perhaps it's also related to her mindset, so her chances of recovery can reach eighty percent. As long as she maintains this state, the possibility of recurrence after recovery is also very small."

Yan Lin nodded silently. Indeed, it was still related to her mindset. Not having a conflict with Feng Yue that night was the right choice.

After the follow-up examination, the driver first took Feng Yue home, then took Yan Lin to the company.

Mo Yixu saw Yan Lin's dedicated elevator stop on this floor and knew Yan Lin had arrived. He prepared all the documents that needed Yan Lin's review and signature, then went up to meet her.

"President Yan, these are all documents that need to be approved before noon today. Later there are two short video conferences that need to be held with overseas heads, at 2 PM there's an appointment with President Chen from Heheng Real Estate⁴ to discuss a project, and there's a business engagement at 6 PM tonight."

Yan Lin listened quietly until she sat down in her office, then she interrupted Mo Yixu's words.

"Assistant Mo."

Mo Yixu stopped what he was doing and waited quietly for instructions.

"You... how do you usually keep your girlfriend in a good mood?"

Mo Yixu: "?"

Mo Yixu was truly full of question marks, even thinking he had misheard. But years of professional training told him that their President Yan was currently troubled, and as a special assistant, he should quickly propose a solution.

"Generally it's giving gifts, dating, things like that."

Yan Lin: ?

Now it was Yan Lin's turn to be full of question marks. She didn't think that just some gifts and dates could keep Feng Yue in a consistently good mood. Moreover, she didn't know how to date Feng Yue.

However, giving gifts... should be worth considering. The shoes she gave last time were her oversight. This time she definitely wouldn't make that mistake again.

Yan Lin thought for a moment, then opened the information about Feng Yue that Mo Yixu had previously compiled, then casually waved her hand to indicate that Mo Yixu could leave once he finished his work.

Mo Yixu nodded, put down what he was holding, and turned to leave.

But Yan Lin called out to stop him again, "Have someone clean up the rest room. I won't be going home for the next few days."

To avoid arguments, she should still avoid confrontation.

Mo Yixu was stunned, then nodded, "Alright."

President Yan had definitely quarreled with his wife again! No wonder her face had been so sour the past few days. Someone who was already cold had become like she just returned from the Ice Age, both cold and hard.

The office became quiet again. Yan Lin looked at the documents placed in front of her, but somehow couldn't focus on reading them.

She stood up and paced to the window, took out her phone and made a call.

After hanging up, Yan Lin finally felt somewhat settled. Her mind was now completely occupied with how to keep Feng Yue in a good mental state, thereby alleviating her condition.

She really didn't want to see Feng Yue pale-faced and emaciated again. She hoped Feng Yue could be like when they first met, passionate and vivid, happy and lively.

At that time, Feng Yue seemed to have endless energy every day, like a little bird chattering around her.

What was she like herself? Yan Lin silently reminisced, but no matter how she recalled, she could never remember what she was like when Feng Yue wasn't by her side.

Probably cold, quiet, and not talkative.

These were all evaluations of her from people around her, and Feng Yue would loudly object every time she heard them.

"A-Lin⁵ is not cold at all! She just doesn't like to talk and is quiet and introverted. Are you jealous of how pretty someone is, always talking behind people's backs."

These were the words Feng Yue said when defending her.

That day during class break, Yan Lin was in a bathroom stall arranging her clothes, then heard several girls come in talking and laughing, one of the voices being Feng Yue's.

Then the other girls started chatting about recent gossip, and somehow the conversation turned to Yan Lin.

It was probably the acidic jealousy among young girls that made them have no good feelings toward Yan Lin, so they said those things.

And Feng Yue was like a firecracker, instantly ignited by those words. She said those words that Yan Lin still remembered to this day.

Actually, Yan Lin didn't think "cold" was a derogatory evaluation of her. She didn't even care what those people thought of her. But when she heard Feng Yue defending her, she still couldn't help feeling secretly pleased.

It was also from that time that she became less rejecting of others, became less cold and hard, and began to be willing to accept new friends other than Fu Sixue.

Although that was only directed at Feng Yue.

Yan Lin pulled back her thoughts and focused her gaze on the photo frame placed on her desk.

After a moment, she opened her email, clicked on that email she had suddenly received not long ago, and replied.

【When are you returning to the country?】

After finishing the reply, she finally turned her attention to the documents in front of her.

Sunlight shone down from the window beside her, illuminating that photograph. The three girls in the photo were full of youth and vitality.

Footnotes:

¹ Yanjing (燕京): An ancient name for Beijing, the capital city of China. It literally means "Capital of Yan" referring to the ancient state of Yan.

² Liu Ma (刘妈): "Ma" is a respectful term for older women, often used for housekeepers or nannies. Liu Ma would be the household staff member, likely a housekeeper.

³ Yan family: In Chinese culture, referring to someone by their family name followed by "family" indicates their prestigious family background and social status.

⁴ Heheng Real Estate (合恒地产): A fictional real estate company name. "Heheng" combines the characters for "cooperation/harmony" and "permanence/persistence."

⁵ A-Lin (阿霖): An affectionate nickname for Yan Lin. The prefix "A-" is commonly used in Chinese to create intimate nicknames for close friends and family members.