

Chapter 51: Protection

After saying this, Feng Yue no longer paid any attention to her and walked straight outside.

Yan Lin was pinned firmly in place by Feng Yue's words, overwhelmed by a tremendous sense of panic.

She knew that if she didn't properly explain this matter to Feng Yue today, they might never have any possibility together again.

So Yan Lin almost instinctively chased after her. Seeing this, Wen Zhen frowned and was about to follow, when Fu Sixue beside her reached out and grabbed her.

"Boss Wen, it's better if we don't get involved in other people's business." Fu Sixue smiled sweetly, her face looking incredibly youthful, but the strength in her hands was not lacking at all.

"Feng Yue is my friend. I have a duty to check if she's safe." Wen Zhen struggled to break free from Fu Sixue's restraint, but couldn't find a way.

Fu Sixue yanked the person toward herself, explaining, "Oh, by the way, I've practiced Brazilian Jiu-Jitsu¹, so I might be a bit stronger than ordinary people."

"As for Moon's safety, you don't need to worry about that at all. As long as Ah Lin is there, even if she herself were in mortal danger, Moon wouldn't come to any harm."

Wen Zhen was both anxious and angry. Just as she was about to say something, she heard a loud crash of something heavy falling outside, followed by people's exclamations.

Wen Zhen's face changed - something was wrong. Damn it, something had happened!

Wen Zhen glared angrily at Fu Sixue. "Let go quickly, something might have happened to them!"

Fu Sixue was also startled by the loud crash. Combined with Wen Zhen suddenly using more force, she was caught off guard and let the other person break free.

Watching Wen Zhen's hurried retreating figure and what she said before leaving, Fu Sixue also had an ominous premonition and quickly followed.

Damn, no way! She had a crow's mouth² just once and it came true?!

Everything went dark before Feng Yue's eyes. Besides the loud crash of heavy objects falling and Yan Lin's involuntary muffled groan, she couldn't hear anything else.

A few seconds later, she felt the arms that had been tightly clasped around her waist and the back of her head slowly loosen and slide off her body, followed by Yan Lin's entire body weight falling onto her.

Seeing Yan Lin's body about to slide down, Feng Yue finally snapped back to reality and quickly reached out to barely support the other person's body. Then she felt her palm touch a patch of warm wetness, followed by a strong smell of blood suddenly appearing in her nostrils.

Yan Lin was bleeding.

This fact made Feng Yue's head buzz, and only then did she pat Yan Lin's back and call out several times, "Hey, Yan Lin, Yan Lin, Yan Lin!"

Wen Zhen jogged out and saw Feng Yue barely and helplessly supporting Yan Lin's body, while Yan Lin seemed to have already fainted.

"Ah Yue, are you okay!" Wen Zhen looked at the signboard that had fallen nearby, feeling somewhat afraid.

"Sister Wen Zhen, quick - call an ambulance! Call an ambulance!" Feng Yue seemed to be brought back to her senses by Wen Zhen's words and anxiously shouted.

Wen Zhen came to her senses and quickly called 120.

"Holy shit, Ah Lin!" Fu Sixue arrived late.

Feng Yue supported Yan Lin's head with one hand and pressed firmly on the bleeding wound on Yan Lin's neck with the other. "Xiao Xue, help me lay Yan Lin flat on the ground."

Hearing this, Fu Sixue quickly stepped forward to help.

Feng Yue pressed the bleeding wound with one hand and quickly took off her jacket with swift movements, then used it to plug Yan Lin's wound.

November weather wasn't particularly good, and with the evening wind blowing, Feng Yue immediately shivered from the cold. But she didn't care, instead focusing even more seriously on helping Yan Lin stop the bleeding.

Feng Yue didn't know if Yan Lin's wound had injured an artery. With this amount of bleeding, Yan Lin might not be able to hold on much longer.

Fortunately, the ambulance arrived very promptly. Since it wasn't rush hour, the medical personnel quickly got out and lifted Yan Lin onto a stretcher, and the task of stopping the bleeding was transferred from Feng Yue to the medical staff.

Feng Yue stiffly let go, ignoring her numb legs from crouching, and quickly said to the attending doctor, "She has mild hemophilia A³, RH-negative blood⁴, drug allergy history is..."

"Are you a family member? Then come with us." The medical personnel quickly said.

Time was urgent. Feng Yue didn't have time to deny it and was brought along in the ambulance. However, before leaving, she asked Fu Sixue to contact Yan Lin's parents.

Fu Sixue quickly took out her phone to make calls, then prepared to head to the parking garage. She was worried and wanted to go to the hospital too, especially since Yan Lin's bleeding looked very abnormal. She also wasn't clear about what Feng Yue had mentioned about mild hemophilia A.

Now it was Wen Zhen's turn to stop Fu Sixue.

Fu Sixue looked back in confusion.

"Wait, I'll go with you. I've had drinks tonight and can't drive."

Fu Sixue raised an eyebrow slightly and nodded. "Black Range Rover. I'll wait for you in the car."

Wen Zhen nodded, then went back into the restaurant to arrange for someone to handle the situation outside, and also grabbed a jacket for Feng Yue from the break room.

At the hospital, Yan Lin had been rushed into the emergency room. Before going in, the wound was still bleeding, and the impact to Yan Lin's head from the falling advertisement sign could also potentially cause intracranial bleeding.

Feng Yue stood blankly in the corridor outside the emergency room. There was no one else here, just her alone.

The hospital's pungent smell of disinfectant and the "Emergency Treatment in Progress" sign glowing before her eyes were all stimulating her vision.

Feng Yue knew she couldn't be anxious, so she sighed softly and sat down in a nearby chair to wait.

Her phone was in her bag, and the bag should have been left at the entrance of Wen Zhen's restaurant. All she could do now was wait.

Before long, the emergency room door was pushed open, and a doctor came out to inform Feng Yue, "The patient lost a lot of blood, but we've finally managed to stop the bleeding. We've already started a blood transfusion, but our hospital's blood supply isn't sufficient, so it will take time to obtain more from nearby hospitals. If any of your family members have the same blood type, they could come quickly for blood donation."

"Thank you, doctor. I've already contacted them, they should be arriving soon."

Feng Yue knew that RH-negative blood was rare, so she also knew that to deal with such situations, Yan Lin's father donated blood at the hospital at fixed times every year, and even the bodyguards employed by the Yan family were preferentially selected from those with RH-negative blood type.

To put it bluntly, these people were like human blood banks kept by the Yan family to deal with such emergency situations.

Feng Yue lowered her eyelashes, estimating the time in her mind. People should arrive soon.

Sure enough, just after the doctor left, Yan Lin's mother and father appeared in the corridor. Behind them were five unfamiliar but robust-looking adult men.

"Uncle, Auntie."

"Xiao Yue, how is the situation? Are you okay?" Yan Lin's mother immediately noticed the bloodstains on Feng Yue's clothes when she arrived. Though anxious, her emotions were still relatively stable.

"I'm fine. Yan Lin's wound has temporarily stopped bleeding, but the hospital doesn't have enough blood and needs family members to donate." Feng Yue repeated what the doctor had told her.

Hearing this, Yan Lin's father didn't dare delay any longer and quickly took the five men to find the doctor for blood donation, leaving only Yan Lin's mother and Feng Yue waiting for the emergency treatment to finish.

Soon after, Wen Zhen and Fu Sixue also arrived outside the emergency room. Wen Zhen brought Feng Yue's bag and handed it to her along with a jacket.

"Auntie." Fu Sixue greeted Yan Lin's mother and asked, "How is it? Is Ah Lin okay?"

Yan Lin's mother smiled slightly. "She should be fine. As long as the bleeding stops, there shouldn't be major problems."

Feng Yue sat quietly on the side without speaking, her mind in complete chaos.

If she remembered correctly, when Yan Lin rushed over to protect her, not only was her neck cut, but the back of her head was also hit by that signboard. If the injury was severe and caused intracranial bleeding...

Feng Yue didn't dare imagine this possibility.

After a long while, the emergency room light went out, and the unconscious Yan Lin was wheeled out by the doctors, still with an IV blood bag hanging from her hand.

The doctor naturally also discovered the injury to the back of Yan Lin's head. Given that she was also a hemophilia patient, they now needed to take her for a brain CT scan to check for any intracranial bleeding.

Yan Lin's mother went along, with Fu Sixue accompanying her. Feng Yue was asked by Yan Lin's mother to help with the hospitalization procedures, since neither she nor Yan Lin's father could leave at this time.

Wen Zhen said nothing, just quietly followed beside Feng Yue, accompanying her as she ran around the hospital lobby.

The two walked quietly through the hospital corridors. Occasionally, a few nurses on duty would pass by, all looking exhausted, though their eyes would flash with surprise when they saw Feng Yue.

Feng Yue held the completed paperwork in her hands, lost in thought.

Wen Zhen looked at the dried bloodstains on Feng Yue's inner clothes and arms, then spoke up: "Ah Yue, let me accompany you to the restroom to clean up."

Feng Yue came back to her senses, looked at her hands, and nodded. "Ah, okay."

Feng Yue stood at the sink, carefully and thoroughly washing her hands. As for the bloodstains on her clothes, those would have to wait.

"Sister Wen Zhen, have you heard of hemophilia?" Feng Yue stopped what she was doing and suddenly asked.

Wen Zhen shook her head.

Feng Yue took the tissue Wen Zhen handed her and wiped the water from her hands, continuing: "It's a disease with blood clotting dysfunction. Such patients cannot be injured. Small wounds that would be nothing to us could be life-threatening for them, even a needle-sized wound could kill them."

Feng Yue said calmly: "Yan Lin is a hemophilia patient."

"Don't worry too much. Didn't the doctor say her wound has stopped bleeding? She'll be fine." Wen Zhen patted her shoulder.

Hearing this, Feng Yue shook her head. "For them, external injuries aren't the most fatal. Hidden internal injuries under the skin are what's most deadly for them. When Yan Lin rushed over to hold me, that signboard also hit the back of her head. She might suffer intracranial bleeding because of this."

Feng Yue disliked Yan Lin - this was an undeniable fact. But this didn't mean she wanted Yan Lin's life to be endangered because of her.

The two returned to the VIP ward in silence. Yan Lin had finished all her examinations and was now lying quietly in the hospital bed, her face still wearing an oxygen mask.

Yan Lin's mother sat on the sofa beside the bed, with Fu Sixue accompanying her. Seeing the two enter, she waved Feng Yue over.

Feng Yue sat down next to Yan Lin's mother.

"Xiao Yue, were you frightened? It's okay. Thanks to you being there today, otherwise Ah Lin couldn't have been sent to the hospital so promptly. If you hadn't helped stop the bleeding in time, Ah Lin's condition might have been much worse..." Yan Lin's mother said, her voice inevitably carrying a sob.

Feng Yue couldn't find any comforting words to say, so she could only sit quietly beside Yan Lin's mother and let the other person lean on her.

The atmosphere in the ward was oppressive until several medical staff arrived, breaking the stagnant atmosphere in the room.

"Is Yan Lin's family here?" The doctor came with Yan Lin's test results.

Yan Lin's mother quickly stood up to greet him. "I'm her mother."

Feng Yue gripped her hands tightly and also stood up.

"Hello. Your daughter's examination results are out. Besides the wound on her neck, there are no other injuries on her body. The brain CT results show no intracranial bleeding, just a mild concussion." The doctor said.

Hearing this, Feng Yue's heart, which had been in her throat, finally settled back into her stomach. Once her long-tense nerves relaxed, her legs went weak and she almost fell to the ground.

Fortunately, Fu Sixue was quick-eyed and quick-handed, supporting Feng Yue before Wen Zhen could.

"That's wonderful! Doctor, when will she wake up?"

"She's unconscious due to the concussion and excessive blood loss. Barring any complications, she should wake up tomorrow."

Yan Lin's mother asked the doctor many more questions before seeing him out of the ward.

Footnotes:

¹ Brazilian Jiu-Jitsu (巴西柔术) - A martial art and combat sport that focuses on ground fighting and submission holds

² Crow's mouth (乌鸦嘴) - Chinese idiom meaning someone whose words (usually negative predictions) unfortunately come true

³ Hemophilia A (血友病甲) - A genetic bleeding disorder caused by missing or defective factor VIII, a protein that helps blood clot

⁴ RH-negative blood (RH阴性血) - A rare blood type, particularly uncommon in Asian populations (less than 1% have RH-negative blood)