

Chapter 73 - Dragon and Phoenix Twins

Yan Lin received news of Feng Yue's trip abroad on New Year's Eve.

The person who brought her this news was none other than Fu Sixue.

After Yan Lin saw Feng Yue that day, she became like a stagnant pool of water, with no visible emotions in her eyes anymore.

For the first few days, people at the company just thought their president might be in a bad mood, but after Yan Lin's state persisted for several days, Chang Ya noticed something was wrong.

Perhaps women's minds were more perceptive than men's. She observed Yan Lin for several days before going to discuss this matter with Mo Yixu.

Although Mo Yixu also felt that his boss had become increasingly silent recently, he obviously hadn't thought deeply about the reasons.

When Chang Ya brought this up, only then did he become nervous.

This matter was then reported to Yan Lin's parents, and after Mama Yan tried to comfort Yan Lin without success, she called Fu Sixue.

Only then did Fu Sixue knock on Yan Lin's door on the morning of New Year's Eve.

Today was already New Year's Eve, and Yan Corporation had started their holiday from yesterday.

Without work filling Yan Lin's life, after waking up, she didn't know what to do.

She wanted to see Feng Yue, but after hearing Feng Yue's words that day, she couldn't muster the courage to contact her proactively.

Although Fu Sixue wasn't clear about what had happened between the two, she could somewhat guess that Yan Lin's condition must have been influenced by Feng Yue.

So before visiting, she specifically brought a large bag of alcohol.

How to comfort a heartbroken friend?

Drinking with her was definitely one of the answers.

Yan Lin, dressed in light gray loungewear, greeted Fu Sixue without any extra expression on her face.

"Why did you come?"

Fu Sixue: "If I didn't come, Auntie would be calling the family doctor to make a house call."

"I'm fine."

"I know." With that, Fu Sixue used a bottle opener to open two bottles of beer. "Want some?"

Yan Lin looked at the clock on the wall - it was only around 10 AM. She looked again at the beer bottle handed to her, then took it and tilted her head back to pour a large gulp into her mouth.

Although beer wasn't as strong as liquor, the spiciness that alcohol should have still stimulated Yan Lin to furrow her brow.

She had good alcohol tolerance, but that didn't mean she liked the taste of alcohol.

Fu Sixue wasn't in a hurry to ask what happened, but first accompanied her to drink this bottle of beer until they felt something.

After a few rounds of drinks, Fu Sixue finally leaned back on the sofa and asked: "So, what happened?"

Yan Lin held the bottle in her hand, her fingers anxiously rubbing the not-so-smooth surface of the bottle. After a long silence, she finally responded: "She told me not to see her anymore."

Fu Sixue raised an eyebrow: "That's it?" If she remembered correctly, Feng Yue should have said similar things to Yan Lin long ago.

Why such a strong reaction now?

"I could feel that this time was different..." Yan Lin's voice was somewhat hoarse, whether from the alcohol or because she was upset.

"I don't know how to describe that feeling. It's like flying a kite - no matter how high or far the kite flies, as long as there's still a kite string connecting you and the kite, you'll always reconnect. But this time, A Yue seemed to personally cut that kite string, and I could only watch helplessly as she flew away from me."

"Didn't you try to stop her or argue back then?" Fu Sixue roughly understood the seriousness of the matter from Yan Lin's words, frowning deeply.

Yan Lin silently shook her head, then drained the remaining alcohol in her bottle. The spicy alcohol taste spread in her mouth, stinging her eyes and making them sore.

Fu Sixue didn't know how to advise Yan Lin - whether she should encourage her to pursue love courageously or advise her to let go early for everyone's good.

Matters of the heart couldn't be predicted, nor could others make decisions for oneself.

She sighed deeply: "Hiding away like this won't work. If you've really decided to let go, then go live your own life well; if you still can't let go of Moon, then try again once more, twice if once isn't enough, three times, until you choose to give up."

Yan Lin didn't speak, just sat there silently, her whole aura becoming dejected.

Fu Sixue could understand her current confusion, so she softly advised again: "Think it over carefully. Take advantage of Moon and her parents being abroad to calm down and make your decision."

Hearing this, Yan Lin immediately stiffened. She looked up at Fu Sixue: "A-abroad? What do you mean?"

Fu Sixue: "You don't know? Moon and her parents went to Vancouver the day before yesterday. They said they were going to her uncle's house for New Year."

Yan Lin's fingers loosened, and the empty beer bottle in her hand fell straight to the floor. Fortunately, the floor was carpeted, so it didn't break.

But Yan Lin had no mind to notice this. Her head was filled with news of Feng Yue going abroad and the hiatus announcement she had seen on her homepage before.

No wonder she was stopping updates - she was going abroad...

Had she pushed her to this extent?

Yan Lin asked herself whether she should continue persisting, whether she and Feng Yue really had no future at all.

—

After flying for more than ten hours, Feng Yue's family of five successfully landed in Vancouver.

Feng Yue's uncle Jiang Pingrui and aunt Miller had been waiting at the airport early.

The two elderly people hadn't seen their eldest son and daughter-in-law for a long time either. They were so happy their faces were red, and Grandma Feng's eyes even reddened rarely.

But the airport wasn't a good place for reminiscing. Jiang Pingrui and his wife Miller took the large family and prepared to go home first.

Jiang Pingrui and Miller were college classmates. Jiang Pingrui had also attended university in Vancouver, and after falling in love with Miller, he naturally settled in Vancouver. The two had raised a pair of mixed-race dragon and phoenix twins¹ who were currently working in Vancouver.

The couple each drove a car - Jiang Pingrui took the grandparents, while Miller took Feng Yue's family.

In previous years, Miller would also return to China with Jiang Pingrui for New Year, so her relationship with Mama Feng (Jiang Si) was quite good, and her Chinese was pretty decent too.

Moreover, perhaps because her own children were too rebellious, she absolutely loved the well-behaved Feng Yue.

"Nuan nuan², how's your health? Are you recovering well?"

Feng Yue smiled lightly and nodded: "Recovering very well, thank you for your concern, Aunt."

"That's good, that's good. You must have a good time here before going back to China. We all miss you very much!"

"Okay."

After Miller finished caring for Feng Yue, she started chatting with Jiang Si.

Feng Yue sat in the back seat, looking out the car window at the scenery outside. All along the way were unfamiliar sights to her, but she didn't feel nervous or panicked at all. Instead, she felt a sense of relief.

Vancouver's weather wasn't much warmer than Beijing's, but the air quality was indeed much better than Beijing's.

Plus, her uncle's house was in a prime location. As soon as Feng Yue got out of the car, she took a deep breath.

Jiang Pingrui also liked his quiet and well-behaved niece. Seeing her like this, he smiled and teased: "Nuan nuan, are you satisfied with uncle's environment here?"

"Very satisfied!" Feng Yue curved her eyebrows and nodded emphatically.

"I heard from your mother that coming to Vancouver this time was your idea first?"

"Yes, I felt it was quite troublesome for you to return to China every year. Since this time Dad can have a good vacation, I thought we'd come here for New Year."

"You're thoughtful. Your grandparents also haven't been here for a long time, so they must be very happy to come this time."

Feng Yue thought of her selfish motives and pressed her lips together: "Mm, as long as everyone's happy."

Jiang Pingrui felt Feng Yue's emotions seemed a bit off and was about to say something when he saw the two children from his house running out excitedly.

"OMG! Luna! I missed you so much!"

Feng Yue only heard an urgent female voice, then found herself being bear-hugged.

The person was none other than Jiang Pingrui's daughter - Catherine, Chinese name Jiang Ming.

"Cousin, too... too tight, can't breathe!" Feng Yue's face turned red from being squeezed, reaching out to continuously pat Jiang Ming's arm.

But Jiang Ming acted as if she didn't notice, rubbing randomly on top of Feng Yue's head.

"Hey, Xiao Yue is about to be smothered by you." A tall young man walked over from behind Jiang Ming and lifted her up by her back collar.

Feng Yue was successfully rescued and could finally catch her breath to thank her savior.

"Cousin, long time no see."

"Small matter, mainly Catherine is too stupid." The one who rescued Feng Yue from water and fire was Jiang Ming's brother Louis, Chinese name Jiang Zhao.

The siblings Jiang Zhao and Jiang Ming had fought since childhood. When they first returned to China and saw Feng Yue, the two immediately fought over who could hug their little sister first.

The winner was naturally Jiang Zhao, who had more strength, but in the end, he was severely lectured by their mother Miller.

After the three children grew up, the siblings' love for Feng Yue hadn't changed. Every year when they returned to China, they would bring Feng Yue a pile of gifts.

But because of the distance and Feng Yue's single-minded focus on Yan Lin back then, Feng Yue felt in her heart that she had become somewhat distant from the siblings.

Although Feng Yue and Yan Lin didn't have a wedding when they got married, both families' relatives and friends had eaten together, so Jiang Ming had naturally met Yan Lin.

However, she had never liked Yan Lin, thinking that person's cold and uncommunicative appearance was very annoying.

So when she learned that Feng Yue had divorced her, she almost sent firecrackers to Beijing overnight.

A child as quiet and well-behaved as her little cousin obviously deserved a partner who would dote on her more.

Although Jiang Ming was mixed-race, she had inherited the Chinese habit of matchmaking to the fullest: "Xiao Yue, this time in Vancouver, cousin will definitely treat you well. Let's go to Liz tonight and have a blast!"

Feng Yue had heard that Liz was a famous bar nearby.

"Don't mess around. Xiao Yue and the others need to rest tonight to adjust to the time difference." Jiang Zhao unhesitatingly gave Jiang Ming a knock on the head.

Jiang Ming made a face at him, then turned to look at Feng Yue: "Then you rest well today, and we'll go tomorrow night! I'll introduce some friends to you!"

Feng Yue couldn't refuse her enthusiastic cousin and could only silently hope that Jiang Ming's friends would be more reliable.

As Jiang Ming's twin brother, Jiang Zhao could somewhat guess her intentions.

"You'd better not take Xiao Yue to bars. She can't touch alcohol at all."

"So what if she doesn't drink? Are there no other beverages at bars?" After saying this, she stuck her tongue out at Jiang Zhao and turned to pull Feng Yue back home.

Jiang Zhao: ...

His fists hardened.

Jiang Zhao: Fighting with my sister shouldn't be illegal, right?

Author's Note:

New characters appear! The cousin brother and sister are quite important supporting characters. I hope everyone likes them~

Footnotes:

1. Dragon and phoenix twins (龙凤胎) - A Chinese term referring to a twin boy and girl, considered especially auspicious in Chinese culture
2. Nuan nuan (囡囡) - A term of endearment used in some Chinese dialects, particularly in the Jiangnan region, meaning "little girl" or used as a pet name for daughters