

Chapter 8: Live Streaming

Feng Yue's agreement could be said to be within Dai Shuangshuang's expectations, but her decision to seriously pursue this matter was beyond Dai Shuangshuang's expectations.

She had thought that Feng Yue wouldn't like the kind of thing that involved "showing her face in public."

Since they had decided to do it, they would do it seriously. So the two discussed how to shoot videos and what kinds of dishes to film.

It wasn't until the server started bringing out the dishes that the two stopped talking.

It had been a long time since Feng Yue had this kind of experience of discussing something with someone else, and she unexpectedly found it quite comfortable.

This feeling of her mind no longer being filled only with Yan Lin's image made her feel both strange and thrilling.

She thought perhaps she could properly plan her life.

After the server left, the two couldn't wait to start tasting this private kitchen's food.

However, before Dai Shuangshuang could swallow the mouthful of meat in her mouth, the private room door was knocked on again.

Feng Yue didn't know who it was, so she cast an inquiring glance at Dai Shuangshuang. Dai Shuangshuang didn't answer her, but winked at her mischievously and said, "Come in."

The two put down their chopsticks, and as soon as they looked up, they saw a woman wearing a jade-green qipao¹ push the door open and walk in.

The woman looked about the same age as Feng Yue, with her hair casually pinned up at the back of her head, a few strands of hair falling beside her cheeks, looking charming and captivating.

"Sister Wen Zhen!" Dai Shuangshuang stood up to greet her, then introduced her to Feng Yue, "Sister Yueyue, this is my friend Wen Zhen, also the owner of this restaurant. This private room was specially reserved for us by her."

"Sister Wen Zhen, this is my... um, sister, Feng Yue." Dai Shuangshuang didn't know how to introduce Feng Yue for a moment.

Feng Yue stood up and politely extended her right hand to shake hands with her gently, "Boss Wen, hello, I'm Feng Yue."

Wen Zhen smiled with curved eyes, the smile at the corners of her lips not diminishing, "Miss Feng can just call me Wen Zhen. Calling me Boss Wen is too formal."

Feng Yue nodded and smiled, "Then don't call me Miss Feng either, just call me Feng Yue."

The two readily changed their way of addressing each other, and then everyone sat down together.

"Are the two of you satisfied with today's dishes?" Wen Zhen was indeed a boss - as soon as she sat down, she began customer satisfaction research.

"Very good, I haven't had such authentic Cantonese cuisine² in Beijing for a long time." Dai Shuangshuang said, picking up her chopsticks to take another bite of food.

Feng Yue also nodded beside her, "Indeed very authentic, I can bring—"

Feng Yue paused, then said, "I can bring my family to try it sometime."

Hearing this, Wen Zhen smiled with satisfaction, then started chatting with Dai Shuangshuang about other topics.

It was Feng Yue whose mind was in chaos - she had almost blurted out saying she would bring Yan Lin to try it.

The habit carved into her subconscious had almost made Yan Lin's name slip out.

Dai Shuangshuang and Wen Zhen chatted for a long time without seeing Feng Yue speak, so they turned to look at her.

They saw Feng Yue's face was deathly pale, her eyes quietly staring at the bowls and chopsticks in front of her. Even though she was in an air-conditioned private room with suitable temperature, a fine layer of sweat had appeared on her forehead.

Dai Shuangshuang's expression changed - she almost instantly recalled the scene of Feng Yue's heatstroke that day. She hurriedly asked, "Sister Yueyue, are you alright?"

Wen Zhen also looked at Feng Yue with concern, "Should I contact a doctor?" She said, standing up to pour a glass of warm water for Feng Yue.

Feng Yue was pulled back to reality by their voices. She bit her lower lip lightly and exhaled, "I'm fine, I might just be a bit cold from the air conditioning."

Hearing this, Dai Shuangshuang quickly stood up to get the air conditioning remote control from the private room's wall cabinet, "Then I'll go raise the temperature a bit."

Wen Zhen handed the glass of warm water to Feng Yue, "Regardless, drink some warm water first."

Wen Zhen naturally wasn't as easily fooled as Dai Shuangshuang, but as an adult, she naturally understood that everyone has things they don't want to talk about, so she didn't expose it.

Feng Yue silently accepted the glass and drank all the warm water in one gulp.

Feng Yue's absent-mindedness seemed to be just a small interlude, and the three of them continued to chat happily afterward.

Later in the conversation, Feng Yue even exchanged contact information with Wen Zhen.

When Dai Shuangshuang was driving Feng Yue home later, she was still lamenting in the car, "Sister Yueyue, this is the first time I've seen you exchange contact information with someone else."

Feng Yue's expression stiffened for a moment, then relaxed as she said, "Wen Zhen is a good person, and chatting with her was very pleasant."

"Hahaha, right! Speaking of which, it was quite an accident how I got to know Sister Wen Zhen."

Then Dai Shuangshuang began telling the story of how she and Wen Zhen met. Feng Yue appeared to be listening seriously on the surface, even responding occasionally.

But at this moment, her mind was thinking about what Dai Shuangshuang had just said to her.

This really seemed to be the first time she had exchanged contact information with someone else in public.

In the past, there were people who wanted to get to know her or become friends with her, but she had directly rejected them all.

Because she didn't want Yan Lin to be unhappy.

Feng Yue's lips curved into a self-mocking smile, then she turned to look at the bustling nighttime street scene outside the car window.

How could Yan Lin be unhappy about such trivial matters?

She had started formally pursuing Yan Lin from high school and continued all the way through college. For Yan Lin's sake, she chose finance, which she hated most, just to be able to stay by Yan Lin's side.

And she did get her wish - they were at the same university, in the same major. They attended classes together, lived in the same apartment building, and were considered the closest and most intimate friends in their college classmates' eyes.

And Yan Lin finally agreed to her confession in their sophomore year, and they became the sweetest couple.

All of this was what Feng Yue believed to be true.

Looking back now, the fact that Yan Lin didn't kick her away during all those years of persistent pursuit really showed her extremely good temper.

But she was probably getting her comeuppance now - things obtained by force were never truly hers.

A few days later, Feng Yue finally began preparing for the video shooting, but there was a small problem with this matter.

Originally, Dai Shuangshuang was supposed to help her film, but Dai Shuangshuang recently had to go abroad for something.

Feng Yue had no choice but to start studying these things herself.

However, according to Dai Shuangshuang, shooting videos not only required filming but also editing, which completely stumped Feng Yue.

Dai Shuangshuang also knew that she was completely clueless about video editing and such things, so she came up with another solution for Feng Yue: live streaming.

Live streaming was much simpler compared to shooting and editing videos.

So the equipment Feng Yue had bought for video shooting was temporarily unused. Following Dai Shuangshuang's instructions, she found the live streaming button on her Weibo³ account, and after everything was ready, she opened the live streaming room.

Although Feng Yue's account had gained some popularity due to the previous incident, she didn't have many followers, so Dai Shuangshuang, who was far away abroad, helped her repost the live streaming announcement.

Since the original video was also posted by Dai Shuangshuang, when she reposted it, the number of people in Feng Yue's live streaming room increased.

Feng Yue was going to make two dishes today. There weren't many ingredients in her refrigerator because, at her instruction, Aunt Liu⁴ hadn't come for several days. So what remained in the refrigerator were some ingredients she rarely cooked with.

She started the live stream with the rear camera, with her phone on a tripod, beginning from when she took ingredients out of the refrigerator.

Feng Yue didn't know how to interact with people, so she simply introduced the two dishes she was going to make today.

"Hello everyone, this is the cooking video I promised everyone. Originally it was supposed to be a video, but my sister isn't here - that's Shuangshuang who posted the previous video. I don't know how to film or edit myself, so I changed it to live streaming. The two dishes I'm making today are garlic oysters and a stir-fried seasonal vegetable. I live alone so there's no point making too much."

As she spoke, Feng Yue opened the refrigerator, took three oysters from the freezer, and took out a piece of broccoli from the fresh storage compartment.

She was focused on the ingredients in the refrigerator, so she temporarily didn't look at the comments scrolling across the screen.

Hundred Ghosts Night Walk: Let me see what good stuff this is!!!!

Wulian be: Here, here, my beautiful wife is finally here!

Nan Da Da Da Yin: Here!! I've seen this sister before!

How Long Since Good Morning: Living alone and still cooking for yourself, I respect that. I usually just make do with whatever QAQ by Water Little Rabbit: I heard this blogger is very good at cooking! And gentle and beautiful! So here I am!

I Want Chicken Wings: The person above is right! Me too!

IELTS Won't Change Name Until Passed: Is this the blogger from that video that went viral a while ago? I remember her!

Feng Yue placed the ingredients on the stovetop, and only then had time to look at the live stream comments. Since she had just started streaming, there weren't many people commenting yet, so she began to respond slowly.

"You should eat well even when living alone, but I don't live alone - I'm just temporarily alone recently."

"I am the person who cooked in the previous video, but the one who posted the video was my sister."

After speaking, Feng Yue placed the stand on the stovetop, adjusted the angle to try to cover the entire work area under the camera's view.

"Alright, I'm going to start cooking now, so I won't be able to see everyone's comments for a while, but I'll explain the cooking steps in detail for everyone."

Hylia Little White Horse: Do we want to watch you cook?! We're attracted to you! (bhi)

Yaoyao Below: Haha, the person above, why are you telling such blunt truths!

Dragon on Clouds: I'm different, I really am interested in the food you cook. [dog head]

Soda Soda Soda: Such beautiful hands, hand fetishists are starting to purr

Seeing these comments, Feng Yue was obviously stunned, then laughed softly, "Alright, I'm going to start cooking now, everyone can learn seriously."

After speaking, Feng Yue no longer paid attention to the live stream comments and began seriously handling the ingredients she had taken out, explaining each step in detail while working.

As time passed, the number of people in Feng Yue's live stream also increased, and everyone's comments started scrolling faster. Most of the later arrivals came after seeing Dai Shuangshuang's repost, and now the live stream had about three to four hundred viewers.

At first, everyone didn't know what was happening, but when some people heard Feng Yue's voice, they remembered she was the person from that cooking video that had gained some popularity before.

After all, the reason that previous video became popular was mainly because Feng Yue had beautiful hands, a pleasant voice, and decent cooking skills.

Feng Yue streamed diligently and really didn't look at her phone even once during the entire process. Garlic oysters and stir-fried broccoli were relatively simple dishes for her, and she had made them before, so she handled the ingredients very skillfully.

But what she didn't know was that her live stream room was exploding because of an entry notification.

Footnotes:

¹ Qipao (旗袍): A traditional Chinese dress, also known as cheongsam, characterized by its form-fitting silhouette and high collar.

² Cantonese cuisine (粤菜): One of the major Chinese cuisines originating from Guangdong province, known for its fresh ingredients and light seasoning.

³ Weibo (微博): A popular Chinese social media platform similar to Twitter.

⁴ Aunt Liu (刘妈): A common way to address domestic helpers or housekeepers in Chinese households, combining the surname with "Aunt" or "Mom" as a respectful title.